"Unele William," Editor. Address all communications relative to this department to Editor Educational Column, care of THE STAR.

Don't waste your time with paper toys, Nor cuff the ears of smaller boys, Nor in the building make a noise, But study.

Don't howl and yell along the street, Annoying everyone you meet, In all your actions be discreet, And study.

Don't think, my boys, you know it all, Considering further knowledge small. Such egotism sure must fall, Then study.

Be carnest, gentlemanly, polite, And do whate'er you do just right, The plow that's often used is bright, Then study.

Don't waste your time in idle jest, But labor here and do your best, Vacation is the time to rest, Then study.

Then hearken ye who read this rhyme, Who would the hill of science climb, Be energetic; waste no time, But study.

There has been considerable comment during the past week or ten days upon the detention of pupils after school, especially those who staid out in order to attend fairs and circuses, and were detained in order to make up the lost recitations. Now there are two ways of looking at the matter, therefore let us carefully consider both sides and we may then perhaps be better able to decide rightly whether or not it is judiclous and advisable. We will admit in the first place that there is an undue attraction in a circus for the average American youth, and that it doesn't seem just right when the pupil has been excused by the parent, that the school authorities should compel the pupil to make up lost time; but on the other hand, there has been a course of study laid down and a code of regulations governing the schools, and every day's work is laid out for each pupil who must, in order to complete each year's course, not omit one portion of it, and if unavoidably compelled to lose any time should willingly, and of his own accord, make up the deficiency. Parents should encourage this feature, or the result will be, if omissions are allowed, that the pupils may fail in examinations for promotion. Then the parents will complain that the teachers have not done their duty, when the whole cause of said failure rests entirely with the pupil himself. We must take into consideration which is the most important, the momentary pleasures derived from a circus or a fair, or the lasting benefits derived from regular attendance and a close application to the study of the twelve years' course as adopted by our schools. Life is short and time is fleeting, and it is the present with fleeting, and it is the present with which we have to do rather than the future. We would suggest that everyone look on both sides of this matter before condemning hastily. It is the duty of every parent in town to endorse our school system and anything that pertains to the benefit of their children individually, and to the schools as a whole. Encourage the boys and girls to right motives and energetic action. The teachers must stand by the princicleal, pupils by the teachers, the board of directors have been sent the nerents by the above in its entirety in order to make our schools a success. SCHOOL NOTES.

TO MY CYCLE.

Dear other self, so silent, swift and sure,
My dumb companion of delightful days,
Might fairy fingers from thy orbit rays
Of stoel strike music, as the gods of yore
Prom reed or shell. What melodies would pour
On my giad ears! What songs of woodland ways.
Of summer's wealth of corn or the sweet lays
Of April's budding green, while evermore
We twain, one living thing, flash like the light Down the long tracks that stretch from sky to sky!

sky! Thou hast thy music too. What time the noon Beats sultry on broad roads, when, gathering night,

night,
We drink the keen edged air, or, darkling, fly
Twirt hedgerows blackened by a mystle moon.
—Adriel Vere in London Spectator.

DID IT HURT YOU?

A Question That Is Often Out of Place

The old hymn in Sam Taylor's "Original Poems" beginning with "Who ran to help me when I fell?" ought to have a provisional clause added to it. The person who hastens to help a sufferer who has been shocked by a fall should not say a single word. Of course the benevolent bystander is brimful of questions: "Where are you hurt?" "Have you sprained your ankle?" and lastly the insane request to know whether you can fall down a flight of 20 steps or from a piazza 10 feet above ground and not be damaged any more than if you had thrown yourself on a down pillow only a foot away.

Of course you are hurt, and the nerve The old hymn in Sam Taylor's "Orig-

Of course you are hurt, and the nerve shock is so great that any sort of ques-tion, even if "they" shall fetch hot water, is an additional blow to the nervous system. You are suffering, per-haps, too much to speak, yet they pelt you with questions while every power of your body is endeavoring to regain self control. You ought not to answer. You would like to scream that "it hurts" a hundred times more for being summoned to speak and to diagno yourself.

All instructions in the line of "First aid to the injured" should begin with, 'Be perfectly silent when you run to lift or help a person who has been knocked down or who has fallen and is still partly dazed with the tremendous shock." Let it be for the sufferer to say, "Oh, my head!" or "Oh, my leg!" or back. He will indicate as soon as it is necessary the injured part, but meanwhile you are driving him nearly fran-tic by asking about it. These simple yet important directions do not seem to be impressed upon the average beipful mind.

Tact, of all things, is as necessary as a knowledge of a tourniquet made from a stick and a pocket handkerchief. Hot water, of course, is required for all bruises and sprains, but let it be brought without asking. The relief to the victim of an accident in having swift and noiseless helpers about him or her—absolutely silent, yet knowing ex-actly what to do—is very great. Any one who "has been there" knows it all. Yet how quickly is it forgotten when we run to lift up somebody else and be-gin to pelt him with: "Where did it hurt you?" "Are you hurt?"-Philadelphia Record.

Red Turtles In a Boiling Spring.

That portion of southern or lower California called Hell's Half Acre appears to be situated directly over a substratum of fire, which causes the mud and water to boil as if in a caidron. At one place on the Half Acre there are over 100 boiling springs and hot mud geysers on a plat of ground that is not of greater extent than a common city square. The chief spring in this queer aggregation of boiling and spouting jets of mud and water is called the Fountain of the Boiled Turtles on account of its curious habit of occa-sionally ejecting numbers of small red turtles. The temperature of this spring is 236 degrees, 14 degrees higher than the temperature required to boil water ander ordinary atmospheric pressure. under ordinary atmospheric pressure. Notwithstanding the fact that the tem-perature is sufficient to boil meat per-fectly within a few minutes, the small red turtles spoken of live and breed there just as the ordinary variety does in waters of common lakes, rivers and other streams. The spring is called the Fountain of Boiled Turties because the queer, hard shelled creatures which inhabit it have the appearance of being cooked perfectly done.—St. Louis Republic

Monkeys Have No Fleas.

It is curious that monkeys should be thought to be infected with what nat-uralists call the pulex irritans and what ordinary people know as the flea. As every zoologist is aware, monkeys have neither fleas nor any other para-site whatsoever; in which, of course, they differ vastly from man.

As a matter of fact, when monkeys begin to pick each other about in the friendly way we have all observed, they merely detach bits of hardened sebaceous matter which has been excreted by the glands, and the fica idea is entirely fabulous.—Pearson's Weekly.
