One of the unfortunate things for the average man is the fact that he gets most of his valuable experience at the wrong end of life. Just about the time he has accumulated enough information about life and how to run things he finds himself at the end of the race. If the whole thing could be reversed and he could have his experience to start on he would make things hum. It is true that the world has most any quantity of experience laying around where any young man can get at it, but it looks shop worn and old and he perfers to get some of his own which he proceeds to do and finds after all it is the same old stuff he refused in his younger days.

M. and the second train will arrive and depart some time during the afternoon. Neither one of the trains will remain here all night. A freight and passenger station combined is now being fixed up near the company store. The trains will stop at the Main street crossing.

Desperate Characters.

The Courier of Monday contained an account of the actions of two very bad men at Punxsutawney and Big Run Saturday. At Punxsutawney the men entered a house in the suburbs of town Saturday afternoon and knocked the woman down with a revolver, shot at her and one of her daughters. Six or seven shots were fired in the house. The men then left the house. Their only object, apparently, was to terrorize the women. They traveled towards Big Run and met a boy on horseback and shot at him, but missed him. Saturday evening Constable Dan Bilmyer, of Big Run, received word from Punxsutawney to watch for and arrest two men wanted for robbery at Punxsutawney. The constable and an assistant, named Harvey Dickey, walked about a half mile out of Big Run and met two strange men whom they attempted to arrest, but the men did not propose to be arrested and they opened fire on the officer and his deputy. Bilmyer and Dickey were both shot, not seriously, however, and the desperadoes escaped. There is no doubt but these are the same chaps who committed the robbery at Punxsutawney and amused themselves by knocking the woman down with a revolver, shooting at her daughter and at the boy on horseback.

RBPUBLICAN "BLOW OUT."

Brass Bands, Martial Music, Tin Horns, Glare of Torch and Red Lights Galore.

The biggest and loudest political demonstration held in Jefferson county during the present campaign was the Republican "blow out" held in Reynoldsville last night. There was an elaborate display of flags, bunting and Chinese lanterns along Main and some of the other streets of the town which showed off to good advantage under the glare red fire and torch lights.

At 7.00 P. M. a delegation of from 300 to 400 hundred people from Summerville, Brookville and intermediate stations, including the brass and martial bands from Brookville arrived here. At 8.00 a special train from Punxsutawney, DuBois and Falls Creek was run in on the R. & F. C. R'y with Saturday and received a cut in his left about four hundred passengers on it, including brass bands from each of the three places named. There was also a special train run down from Rathmel. besides a large crowd of country people walked and drove to town, making it the largest political gather ever held in Reynoldsville. The parade was formed on Pike streei, West Reynoldsville, and marched over into this borough up Main st. to Fifth, to Grant, to Russ, to Main, to Tenth, to Jackson, to Russ, to Main street to the halls. It was a very large parade. There were over 200 horsemen and about 800 men on foot in the parade. Red lights were burned along the line of march.

As there was not one building in town large enough to hold the people who wanted to hear the speeches, the opera house and Centennial hall were both thrown open and packed. The speakers present were Major Alexander Mc-Dowell, of Sharon, Hon. E. E. Robbin, of Greensburg, Westmoreland Co., Hon. W. A. Stone, of Allegheny, and Hon. Henry Houch, of Hacrisburg.

The Brookville Glee Club sang several lively campaign songs in the opera

Barn and Horses Burned.

About two o'clock last Thursday norning the barn of Benjamin Burkhouse, McCalmont township, near Panic, was burned down with all its contents but the cows. A horse and colt, new wagon, and the summer's harvesting of gran, hay, straw, &c., was burned. When first discovered the fire was in the second story of the barn. Mr. Burkhouse thinks it was the result of incendiarism. There was $500.00 insurance on the barn but no insurance on the contents of the barn. Mr. Burkouse was not at home when the barn burned. He had been at a political meeting and when returning home discovered that two good sized boys from Reynoldsville had stolen a one-horse wagon load of his best apples and had stuck in a mud hole not far from his farm. He hitched up a horse and buggy and he and one of his sons started to Reynoldsville to get a warrant for the boys to have them arrested when they arrived in Reynoldsville, and it was while he was in this place his barn was

The boys had been too greedy and verloaded the old "plug" they were driving and could not make it home and left the horse and wagon under a friendly shed by the roadside and walked into town, and by so doing escaped the officer who was looking for them. The next morning the boy who drives the one horse rig, accompanied by his father, went out to bring in the load of apples, but Adelsperger met them on their way into town on a "snails gallop" and the apples were unloaded at Brennan's camp.

Will Have a Deep Snow.

The great growth of "rag weed" in the fields throughout the country revives the old saying that the blanket of snow that will cover mother earth this winter will be as deep as the weeds are high. The average height of the weeds ranges from two to three feet and we may accordingly look for snow as deep.—Ex.

"If all the world was always bright, Without a shadow creeping; And suns kept shining day and night What would we do for sleeping.

If all the skies were always clear, And spring kept on a staying. And bees made honey all the year What would we do for sleighing. If everything went just our way, And not a storm was howling; And cash come in for work or play What would we do for growling.

Just let the plan of nature rest.

Be glad for any weather:
The one who always does his best.
Brings heaven and earth together.

Boys and girls, eight weeks of this year's school days have passed, one fourth of the present term is gone, have you improved it? And has it been profitable to you? If not who is to blame? Think over the matter carefully. "Talk little, think much," waste not a moment of your time; you now have a reading room attached to our school which gives each one of you an opportunity to cultivate a taste for good reading; improve it, cultivate it not only for the instruction it gives, but for the pleasure it affords, read carefully and intelligently, and a marked improvment will be the result. Prof. Lenkerd is putting forth every effort to place every advantage within your reach and you should reciprocate by entering into your work with energy and heartily co-operating with Principal and your teachers. The professor is at present perfecting arrangements for a first class lecture course during the winter which will be of great benefit to the course of study and an advantage which our public schools never before had. The professor will select the very best talent in this direction and you will have an opportunity to hear notable talks from the monarchs of the lecture platform. Pay particular attention to the regulations; you did well last month, but you can do better this. The golden moments freighted with knowledge come to you but once; grasp them firmly and gather from them their store; do not relax your hold upon them for they are as treacherous and slippery as an eel and when they once slip through your fingers they are gone forever. Keep your eye on the present, the past is gone beyond recall and of
