The "Spinster's Fortnightly Club" entertainment in the opera house last Friday night was not greeted with as large an audience as it was the first night, however, we understand, the ladies made money out of it. The inclement weather was against the ladies.

Everybody who heard him was delighted, Eli Perkins, Bill Arp or Sam Jones never captured an audience as does Col. Ham. The large audience was held spell-bound by his wit, and his story telling was never equalled by any public speaker in this part of the country .- Mansfield (III.) Express.

Josephine, five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Henry, of this place, died at Medix Sunday and was buried in the Baptist cemetery yesterday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Henry were visiting at Medix and Josephine took pneumonia. Her remains were brought to Reynoldsville on the early train Monday morning.

From the introductory sentence to the last word, Orator Ham had his audience laughing, cheering and applauding. He was the lion of the occasion. His word picture of the "Snollygoster in Politics" met with instant recognition. When Col. Ham finished the entire audience rose and gave him three cheers .- Columbus (O.) Disputch.

Special Election.

A special election was held in West Reynoldsville Saturday to vote for water for fire protection and gas for street lights. There were 104 votes polled, 55 for water and gas and 49 against it. It is very likely that the Reynoldsville Water Co. will furnish at Falls Creek Wednesday afternoon, the water.

Postoffice Keys Redeemed.

By an order issued from the Postoffice Department Oct. 23, 1896, all postoffice box keys that are presented to the postmaster any time between Dec. 1st. and 31st, 1896, the amount deposited for the key will be refunded to the holder of the key. This order is only good during this month.

Leg Broken.

Clair, four-year-old son of S. D. Martin of Hopkins, had his right leg broken below the knee last Thursday. A temporary shed had been erected for a shooting match Wednesday and the next day some boys were playing around the shed when it fell down upon the little fellow with above results. Clair had joined the larger boys only a few minutes before the shed fell.

One Deer.

Two weeks ago yesterday Dr. S. Reynolds, Lawyer C. Mitchell, Henry and Jacob Deible and Henry Iseman went into the wilds of Elk county to hunt. They all had pressing business and excuses enough to get back home again, with the exception of Mr. Iseman, who remained to watch the camp, Jacob Deible, who brought a large deer home Friday, returned Saturday and the others will return to camp this Changed Hands Again.

A few weeks ago mention was made In THE STAR that M. M. Fisher had purchased, and was fixing up, the James Tapper property on Main street, next door to Fisher's harness shop. Last week Dr. J. H. Murray purchased the property from Mr. Fisher. An addition was built on to the house so it will be large enough for a dwelling and also give Doctor a reception room and office down stairs. Dr. Murray expects to occupy this building a year or two and then build an office and dwelling on his Main street lots near the R. & F. C. R'y.

Too Many Air Guns.

to use air guns on Main street some person may lose an eye, as a shot from an air gun will knock out an eye in quick order. There are entirely too many of these guns used on Main street for shooting birds. If the boys must shoot birds they should be compelled to go out of town to shoot them, or at least go on back streets where there would be no danger of doing harm to persons passing by. Ye editor was walking up Main street several days ago and was shot on the head with a little bullet from an air gun.

Birth Notices.

After this week we begin the publication of birth notices under a special heading, and in order that no family may be slighted when a boy or girl comes to their home to stay with them. we ask that our readers will make it their business, either by postal card or word of mouth, to let the editor or some representative of THE STAR know about the increase, also to what gender the infant belongs and date of birth. Hereafter if any of our readers fail to see their names under this heading when their family has been increased, don't complain, because it will be your own fault.

Another Opera House.

We have been informed by Mr. John H. Corbett that next spring a forty foot addition will be built on to the Centennial Hall, which will make the scating capacity of the building from eight to ten hundred. A large stage and beautiful scenery will be added to the interior. There will also be a front and back entrance into the hall, or opera house as it will then be called. One of the crying needs of Reynoldsville for sometime has been a larger building to accommodate the people on various occasions, and this will be a proper step in keeping with the progress and advancement of the town. The Centennial as it now stands has been substantially built, and there is no doubt but that the new addition will be put up solidly.

Was Known in Reynoldsville.

John Hilderbrand, Sr., who was t resident of Sandy Valley a number of years, died at the home of his son, Reuben S. Hilderbrand, at Falls Creek on Monday night of last week. Funeral services were held in the M. E. church conducted by Rev. W. R. Buzza, of Falls Creek, and Rev. A. J. Bird, of Du-Bois, and the remains of the old patriarch were laid beneath the sod of the Falls Creek cemetery to await the resurrection morning. The Herald says: "About thirteen weeks ago be received paralytic stroke, other complicated diseases followed, which finally resulted in his death. Nearly all the members of his family were present when he passed away. John Hilderbrand Sr. was born in Mifflin county nearly seventy two years ago. He removed to this county in 1861 and has been a resident of Falls Creek about eight years, removing to this place when there were few residents and still fewer houses. For a number of years he filled the position of night watchman at Osburn and Shaffer's saw mill, but was obliged to quit work several years ago, on account of his advanced age and declining health."

Found His Former Wife.

The following appeared in the Pittsburg Commercial yesterday as a special from Reynoldsville: "Word has been received here that Nick Moore, who left Reynoldsville for England a short time ago to claim a legacy that had been bequeathed to him by his mother, has gotten into difficulties since his arrival in his mother's country. Moore, it is said, was married before his immigration to America some years ago, and after his trip to this country he married wife No. 2, who is living at Rathmel, Pa., with four or five children. Moore. upon arrival at his old home, was surprised to meet his first wife, who said that if he attempted to take any action in the case, she would make the ease known to the proper authorities and she and her children would come in for their share of the legacy, which is all in real estate. It is generally supposed that Moore will remain with his first wife and children. He owns property at Rathmel consisting of a house and a large blacksmith shop, of which, no doubt, wife No. 2 will retain posses sion."

Expect a Change,

The teachers' institute of Cameron county was held in the little town of Driftwood last week. There are other counties where the institutes are passed around. The time is coming when the county seats all through the state will only get the institutes occasionally. It is a county affair and all the tax payers "chip in" to help it along, and for the life of us we cannot see why the county seats should have any better right to the institute than other places. This year the Jefferson county institute was held at Brookville; next year we expect a change, and have a perfect right to expect it. It has been hinted that there is not a building large enough in Reynoldsville to hold the night entertainments during institute week, and for that reason the institute could not be held here. While we think that is only an excuse, however, in another column of this issue it will be seen that this town will have a building by next fall amply large Unless the small boys are forbidden enough to accommodate the institute without crowding the "dear" teachers in the least.

Hid in a Bed Tick.

On the 24th of December, 1895, Louis Scalzo, an Italian, was killed at Walston. Last Saturday the chief of police and constable of Punxsutawney arrested an Italian named Jos. Aiello, who is charged with the murder of Scalzo. After stabbing Scalzo the Ike skipped for Canada where he remained until last week when he returned through jealousy, some one having written him that his wife was unfaithful and was living with his brother. The officers learned that Aiello was at an Italian's house in Lindsey. They failed to find their man at first, but after a search they found him concealed in a bed tick. He was taken to Brookville jail. This will make three murder trials for the December court.

Prize Winners.

Four good prizes were offered at the Star Shooting Gallery last week for the best marksmanship. Following were the winners: First prize, off-hand shooting, $11.50 clock and bronze statute, David R. Cochran; second prize, $3.00 pair of shoos, Henry Shields; first prize, rest shooting, $10.50 clock and bronze statute, George Ayres; second prize, $6.00 pair solid cuff buttons, John

Not too Strict.

Suspensions are the rule this winter in the Reynoldsville school. If a pupil looks crooked he or she is suspended for a week and that much schooling is missed. It seems as though there should be some other mode of punishment if the rules are disregarded. This way of doing is not looked upon as the proper thing, as it does not generally punish the suspended scholar. If they want a week's recreation they can get it by violating some trivial rule laid down by the powers that be.—Reynolds-ville Correspondent Punxsuawney

It is a fact that "the powers that be" are governing our schools with strict rules, but we think none too strict. The worthy correspondent knoweth full well that it requireth strict rules to govern pupils sometimes. The assertions that if a pupil "looks crooked" or violates "some trivial rule he or she gets a week's recreation," is not strictly correct, and we think the correspondent wrote the above item without making a thorough investigation himself, but took some other person's word for it. We have been informed that only two or three pupils have been suspended since school began, and they virtually suspended themselves by refusing to do what the principal requested of them, which we understand was not unreasonable. If boys are encouraged by parents, and are successful in their attempts to thwart the laws of the school, they ever after do about as they please and soon have a large following. Parents should coincide with the principal in enforcing the rules of the school, even though the rules may not be just as they would make them were they in a position to do so.

Big Coal Deal,

At last, after many attempts during the past fourteen years, it looks as though the coal lands lying on the west and southwest of town would be sold. A deal is on foot for the sale and development of this field, and it is so far advanced that it is practically assured. Only the withdrawal of the prospective purchasers can circumvent the scheme and this would involve a big expense to them.

The movement for the deal has been on foot all summer. The Record has this place last week. been aware of it almost from Its Inception, but has refrained from publishing it by request. So many abortive attempts have been made to make a sale in the past that those concerned did not want their efforts made public until they were assured one way or the other.

However, everything now is in an excellant shape. Options are taken on the coal lands, the field mapped out, and the veins thoroughly tested. Engineers are surveying the field and everything looks favorable for an early consummation of the deal. It is generally supposed that the Eric company is back of the deal, which is being worked up by responsible parties. No details as to further developments are yet made public, but an early development of the field in case the sale is successfully terminated may reasonably be expected. The purchase is not likely to be made to lie undeveloped .-Brockwayville Record.

Church Notices.

Under this heading will be found the subjects and texts of the pastors of various churches of Reynoldsville for the following Sunday.

John Hilderbrand at Falls Creek Wed-"Growed the Gal Darndest." An old gentleman from near Summerville was in Reynoldsville yesterday who was heard to remark thusly: "This town has growed the gal darndest since I use to haul coal from the old Reynolds bank thirty year ago. I was surprised like thunder when I walked up town yisterday. I couldn't find the old brick hotel that was the only big house in the town thirty year ago." Just then the train pulled into the A. V. station and the old man hurried out and jumped on the train before the passengers got off, notwithstanding the fact that the brakeman tried to keep the old man back until the passengers were off.
