

The Deathwatch.

In 1903 I had two chums of the name of Beth and Cleve Dodge, who lived down in the forks of Coon, about four miles below us. The boys were hauling wood to town, and they told me that the woods down in the forks were alive with squirrels, and that if I would go back with them that evening they would get their father to let them have the next day off, and we would have lots of fun. I went home and got my No. 14 muzzle loader, plenty of ammunition and my dog, and went home with them. Father Dodge had built a new frame house, but it was not large enough to accommodate the family and any strangers, so Cleve and I slept out in the old log house. I shall never forget the scare we got that night. As boys will, we lay there a long time discussing the various propositions that suggest themselves to two boy chums who haven't seen each other for some time. Along toward midnight we thought we discovered the presence of somebody under our bed. To make it more certain, we distinctly heard the ticking of his watch. We became uneasy, for the ticking of that watch was regular and incessant. At last Cleve quietly slipped out of bed, went over to the new house and called his father, who came and investigated. Much to our chagrin the old gentleman soon discovered that the cause of our dread and forebodings was only a deathwatch at work in an old log by the side of the bed.—Forest and Stream.

Don't Trust It.

Because the weather is mild and the air balmy we cannot count on being rid of rheumatism or neuralgia. The very sudden changes of temperature or exposure to draughts are both likely to increase rather than diminish both complaints. For this reason it is wisest to be well prepared for sudden attacks, and to have ready what is known as the best remedy for all visitations of aches or pains. All well regulated households ought to have a box of Cornell's Compound at hand. It is the best for treatment and the surest to give permanent relief.

Just try a 10c. box of Cascares, the laxative and bowel regulator ever made.

BOLD THIEVES.

Advent of a Circus Followed by Numerous Robberies.

Numerous robberies were committed at Greenville by thieves who came to town with a circus. From the residence of John Eberman a gold watch and diamond ring were stolen. Mrs. William Brown was held up by two men who were frightened away by her cries for help before they secured her money. A. R. Pender, of Meadville, was held up near the Erie depot by three men and beaten into insensibility before the thieves secured his watch and money.

The 74th annual session of the grand lodge of Pennsylvania, I. O. O. F., opened at Williamsport with 1,000 delegates present. Grand Master Amos H. Hill, of Philadelphia, presiding. Mayor Mansell made an address of welcome, responded to by Grand Master Hill. Reports made show that the present membership of the order in Pennsylvania is 107,875. The total amount disbursed for relief was $385,327.50, an increase of $22,273.98. The State assembly, Daughters of Rebekah, also opened its eighth annual session. The reports show a present membership of 12,536, an increase of 1,532. Eighteen new lodges were instituted during the year, and four have surrendered their charters. The total of $5,044.06 was paid out for relief. Amendments to the constitution were adopted, to make that instrument conform to the charter granted to the State assembly last year.

A deal is on between the new owners of the Wopsonnook road and the Beech Creek, which will result ultimately in the latter road getting into Altoona by way of the Altoona and Philadelphia connecting line and the "Wopsey" road. The present narrow gauge road to Wopsonnook will be made broad gauge, and a spur will be built through Homers Gap, shortening the distance to Wopsonnook by several miles. The Beech Creek is to buy "Wopsey" entire, and make of it a first-class summer resort. The passenger depot will be on Eleventh street and Fifteenth avenue.

PENNSYLVANIA LEGISLATURE.

May 17.—A bill appropriating $1,000,000 to rebuild and improve the public roads of the state under the superintending system proposed by the Hamilton road bill, was introduced in the House this evening by Chairman Martin of the committee on agriculture. No township shall receive a greater sum than it raises by local taxation for road purposes. The bill is about appropriate $1,500 for the employment of a clerk to keep the books and accounts and $2,000 for postage and contingent expenses.

The state is asked to pay $65,909.36 for the expenses of the Penrose committee in investigating the alleged abuses in the municipal government of Philadelphia. The bill was presented in the senate to-night by Senator Grady, of Philadelphia.

May 19.—The House killed the Connell bill providing for indemnity bonds to sheriffs. A similar fate was suffered by the Gould poor bill, which was called up by the author and amended to apply to the entire state. The objection to this bill comes from the smaller localities, where the system of farming out the inmates of asylums is in vogue.

There was some debate over the Weller labor bill, which came over from the senate to the House for concurrence in amendments. Blaise, of Delaware, wanted the act amended, saying it was unconstitutional, but the house voted down his proposition to send the bill to committee and concurred in the senate amendments, thus sending the bill to the governor.

After a two hours' session this morning the senate adjourned till Monday night next week. Only routine matters were attended to during the morning session, and no important bills were on the calendar.

May 20.—The early portion of the House session to-day was very dull. A special calendar of special and local bills was in order, and the House disposed of these at a railroad rate, then took up the revenue bill. All the revenue bills, including the beer tax and Phillipsburg connecting line and the building and loan associations passed the second reading stage. Then the House went at the regular business. During the morning it killed the bill creating the office of receiver of taxes in cities of the third class, the measure being vigorously attacked from many quarters.

May 21.—Three Quay reform bills passed first reading to-day in the House. They are the non-assessment, non-political interference and the poll-tax measures. They were brought out of committee and a special order was secured for them from Mr. McGowan of Venango. They will be considered next Tuesday on second reading and Wednesday on third reading and final passage.

A concurrent resolution authorizing the secretary of the House to purchase 7,000 additional copies of the volume "Pennsylvania at Gettysburg" was defeated. After being in session an hour the House adjourned until next Monday night.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Abstract of the Important Measures in Both Houses.

May 17.—In the House Mr. Holt, of Illinois asked for the immediate consideration of a bill to amend the act of March 3, 1875, relative to the rights of Cuban and other destitute Americans in Cuba, but Mr. Bailey, of Texas, said that he must object unless an amendment embodying Senator Morgan's resolution for recognition of the insurgents be added. Mr. Holt objected to the amendment, whereupon Mr. Bailey objected to the bill and the Cuban question was side-tracked.

An undertone of Cuban comment pervaded the senate when the session opened to-day. The anti-imperialist and Cuban message and Cuban debate drew large crowds to the galleries.

Following the reading of the message, Mr. Davis, of Minnesota, chairman of the committee on foreign relations, favorably reported with amendments the resolution introduced by Mr. Gallinger, last Thursday appropriating $50,000 for the relief of destitute citizens of the United States in Cuba. The resolution was then put on its passage and without dissent it passed. There were, therefore, no responses to the calls for aye. It had taken exactly 15 minutes for the reading of the message, the presentation of the committee report and the brief speech and the final passage of the resolution.

May 18.—There was no abatement of interest in the Cuban question in the senate to-day, and the galleries were well-filled when the session opened at noon, although the Morgan resolution was not in order until 2 o'clock.

When the business of the morning hour was disposed of the calendar was taken up, and many of the bills upon it were passed, including several bridge bills.

May 19.—Mr. Morgan's resolution, declaring that a state of war exists in Cuba, and that the United States will preserve a strict neutrality, was the subject of a notable debate in the Senate to-day. Mr. Mason, Republican, Illinois, started the discussion with a speech in favor of the resolution.

Senator Hoar criticized Mr. Mason's speech, and opposed the Morgan resolution. He declared that the talk of neutrality in Cuba was "brass band talk." Senators Gallinger, Hale and Hawley also aided in the discussion, after which the Senate adjourned with the resolution still pending.

May 20.—The long and exciting debate on the joint resolution recognizing the existence of a state of war in Cuba and declaring that strict neutrality shall be maintained by the United States passed the Senate by the decisive vote of 41 to 14 at a late hour this afternoon. The subject of the notable debate in the Senate to-day, the talk of neutrality was received with tumultuous applause, which drew from Senator Hawley an emphatic protest against "mob demonstration." The resolution as passed is as follows:

"Resolved, etc., That a condition of public war exists between the government of Spain and the government proclaimed and for some time maintained by force of arms by the people of Cuba, and that the United States of America shall maintain a strict neutrality between the contending parties according to each all the rights of belligerents in the ports and territory of the United States."

AN AMERICAN FACTORY IN CHINA.

A Cotton Mill Dedicated Amid Bunting and Patriotic Airs.

The first American manufactory in China is the International Cotton Mill, recently established at Pootung, a small town near Shanghai, under the auspices of the American Trading Company of New York. It is the third cotton mill erected in China. It has 40,000 spindles and two engines of 1600 horse-power now in motion, and a number of looms will be added soon. The machinery was started early in April with considerable ceremony. The building was handsomely decorated with American and Chinese flags, the band played "Hail Columbia," "Yankee Doodle" and other patriotic airs, and Mrs. James Jones and Mrs. Seaman, the wives of the managers, pulled the lever that started the machinery for the first time. It is an interesting fact that all the women operatives of this mill are Roman Catholics from the Pootung villages, where there are about 40,000 native adherents of that church. Many of their ancestors were converted to Christianity several centuries ago.

While a marriage ceremony was being performed near Danville, Va., a fireworks lamp flamed up and was about to explode when the bride seized it and buried it through a window. The groom then came out from under the table, and hid behind a door, and the ceremony proceeded.

THE LARGEST THE BEST.

An Inexpensive Hive—Winter Protection for Bees—Fruit of Experiments—Cellar Should Be Dark.

Most beekeepers prefer to have their bees remain on their summer stands throughout the winter; and to accommodate them in this position, the chaff hive has been invented. This invention has proved a boon to beekeepers, and has been adopted by the greatest number of beekeepers as the best method of wintering bees. It serves well not only as a winter repository but gives equally good results in spring and summer. During early spring, when the bees are breeding rapidly, and the changes of weather are frequent, the chaff hive gives valuable aid. Cellar wintering does very nicely until the approach of warm weather in the spring, when the bees must be brought out, to endure the changes of temperature without any protection; and if any bees really need the protection of chaff hives, it is those that have been wintered in the cellar, after being thus set out. The chaff hive is also a good summer hive; it is a protection against the heat of summer, and prevents the melting down of combs in excessive hot weather, which very frequently occurs in thin hives.

I have experimented with different forms and sizes of chaff hives, and found that the largest are the best. Hives wintered in them come out in better condition, and are seldom if ever affected with dysentery. I much prefer a chaff hive, without any inside furniture, as it is called, but a mere shell, so that the ordinary hive of bees can be set in, or taken out at pleasure; or but one or two stories can be used, as the apiarist sees proper. The upper story or surplus department, may be used during the summer season. In autumn it can be removed, and the entire story of the chaff hive filled with chaff preparatory to wintering. In this manner the chaff surrounds the entire hive of bees, perfectly. A first class chaff can be made from a good dry goods box of about the required size. It should be six or eight inches larger each way than the hive the bees are in, and about a foot higher, have an entrance cut in it to correspond with the entrance in the bee hive, and a good cover completes it.

Cellar wintering requires considerable experience and a thorough knowledge of the business, and new features are still coming up in this mode of wintering. A cellar for wintering bees should be used for that purpose only and no other. It requires perfect darkness at all times; and should be remote from any disturbance whatever. If bees become thoroughly aroused in the cellar, there is little if any remedy other than setting them out; and this can only be done in safety at a time when the weather is warm enough for them to fly. It is probably the most difficult part to keep them in perfect condition when spring is approaching, so they can be retained in the cellar late enough to escape all cold weather.—New England Homestead.

Tells Her Experience With Ovaritis.

A dull, throbbing pain, accompanied by a sense of tenderness and heat low down in the side, with an occasional shooting pain, indicates inflammation. If the roof of your ovary leaks, my sister, you have it fixed at once; why not pay the same respect to your own body?

Do you live miles away from a doctor? Then that is all the more reason why you should attend to yourself at once, or you will soon be on the flat of your back.

You need not, you ought not to let yourself go, when one of your own sex holds out the helping hand to you, and will advise you without money and without price. Write to Mrs. Pinckham, Lynn, Mass., and tell her all your symptoms. Her experience in treating female ills is greater than any other living person. Following is proof of what we say:

"For nine years I suffered with female weakness in its worst form. I was in bed nearly a year with congestion of the ovaries. I also suffered with falling of the womb, was very weak, tired all the time, had such headaches as to make me almost wild. Was also troubled with leucorrhoea, and was blotted so badly that some thought I had dropsy. I have taken several bottles of Lydia E. Pinckham's Vegetable Compound, and several of her Blood Purifier, and am completely cured. It is a wonder to all that I got well. I shall always owe Mrs. Pinckham a debt of gratitude for her kindness. I would advise all who suffer to take her medicine."—Mrs. ANNIE CURTIS, Ticonderoga, N. Y.
