The Democrat State Convention is being held at Reading this week.

A gentleman from Huntingdon county, Pa., was in Reynoldsville last woek who said that the wheat crop was never as large in that county as it is this year.

At the Republican State convention held in Harrisburg Thursday James S. Beacom, of Greensburg, was nominated for State Treasurer, and Levi G. Me-Cauley, of West Chester, was nominated for Auditor General.

Oh, be humble, my brother, in your prosperity! Be gentle with those who are less lucky if not more deserving. Think, what right have you to be scornful, whose virtue is a deficiency of temptation, whose success may be an ancestor's accident, whose prosperity is very likely a satire!-Thackeray.

D. B. Heiner has not yet been appointed United States District Attorney for Western Pennsylvania, but Harry Alvan Hall has been re-appointed to continue in that office during the interval that may elapse until such time as President McKinley may decide to fill the office otherwise. Ed. A. Carmalt, of Brookville, is the man who should be appointed to fill that office.

A man over in Potter county who, no doubt, has read in some paper that there were a number of new houses being built at Big Soldier, jumped at the conclusion that it is quite a large town, and wrote to a party in Reynoldsville last week inquiring how many stores, industries, doctors, &c., were located at Big Soldier, and what population the town has. At present Big Soldier is a small mining town and the wants of the citizens are supplied almost entirely from the Jefferson Supply Co. store of this place and the sick are looked after by Reynoldsville, Rathmel and Sykesville doctors.

Are you doing anything to build up Reynoldsville, or are you sitting with folded hands croaking that there is no business, no prospects for business and that the town is dead? Wherever there is life there is hope. The town has various advantages, but they must be helped along. There should be a meeting of all the people interested in the future welfare of this town to talk Public School Laws.

The following laws relating to the public school laws of the state were among those passed by the late legislature, according to the Harrisburg School Gazette:

That school boards may purchase flags and shall display them whenever they deem proper.

That school children have the use of the books of the board during vacation for a pay or select school, provided the teacher has a valid certificate.

That school directors shall be authorized to provide transportation for school children, at the expense of the district, to the public schools of the district in which they reside or to the schools of neighboring districts.

That a copy of Smull's Legislative Handbook shall now and hereafter following each decennial consus, be placed in each public school of the Commonwealth, and biennially a copy of the school laws and decisions, by the State Superintendent.

That independent school districts now existing may be abolished by the courts whenever a majority of the taxable citizens of any school district, out of which any independent district may be created, petition for such action.

That school directors may establish and maintain, out of the public school treasury, free kindergartens for children between the ages of three and six years, residing in the district. That it shall be unlawful for any industrial establishment to employ any minor who can not read and write in the English language, unless he has attended in the preceding year, an evening or day school for a period of sixteen weeks. That school boards shall have power to levy a per capita tax of one dollar annually on every male inhabitant who is of age. That the compulsory school law be so amended as to increase the compulsory age to 16 years, to require attendance continuously during at least 70 per cent. of the term, which period shall begin at the beginning of the school term, or at a time to be fixed by the school board at their organization: that between the ages of 13 and 16 a child shall be excused if he has regular employment.

Only the few, in comparison, are rich and the masses are poor. We who have little ought not to complain. Doubtless Providence is doing for us the very best possible. No doubt we are given all we are competent to manage properly, and all that we could make good use of. Let us learn to be content with what we have, and if we prove worthy of more it will doubtless be given us.-Brookville Democrat. There are few, if they are competent to manage properly. It is not human nature to think that way. It is true that we should learn to be content with what we have, but at the same time we should not sit down and fold our hands, but should strive by all honorable means to get more of this world's goods.

There are many varieties of frauds and shams wherewith mankind are deceived, and the meanest of all frauds is the sanctimonious fraud. This type of fraud is that which was known of old time as the Pharasee, who stood forth in the market place, smote his breast, and thanked God he was not as wicked as other men. The modern Pharasee, of which we have recently had numerous conspicuous examples, would make himself appear large by knocking everybody else prostrate. He would make himself appear clean by besmirching others. That is not manly. A true man only rises to his full height when he stoops to lift the fallen. The man who de-nounces another as a thief is probably only envious of the other fellow's opportunities to steal. There is no more conthe to stoal. There is no more con-ptible human creature than the al-dman who is willing to gain noto-y by becoming a scavenger bird, nos-around after foulness and smelling ar off. It is better to assume the acter of a defender than a traducer. former is invariably an honest man,

The Grandest Remedy.

Mr. R. B. Greeve, merchant, of Chilhowie, Va., certifies that he had consumption, was given up to die, sought all medical treatment that money could procure, tried all cough remedies he could hear of, but got no relief; spent many nights sitting up in a chair; was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery, and was cured by use of two bottles. For past three years has been attending to business, and says Dr. King's New Discovery is the grandest remedy ever made, as it has done so much for him and also for others in his community. Dr. King's New Discovery is guaranteed for coughs, colds, and consumption. It don't fail. Trial bottles free at H. Alex. Stoke's drug store.
