Anti-Rheumatic Potatoes. Corporal Tanner, of the Algiers pre einct, sat out in front of the station the other night in his shirt sleeves and took in the glorious breeze that came down Morgan street in all its glory. It has been a rare occurrence to see the Corporal in negligee attire. He has been suffering terribly from rheumatism, and throughout the summer has worp his heavy woolen coat, even when the humidity would woo it from him. When fate had him transferred to Algiers an Irish lady living over there told him of the virtues of the potato. She gave 1.9m two small "prathles" to carry in his trousers pockets, and he swears that he at once felt the rheumatism sneaking from his bones. In a few nights it was all gone. The potatoes have begun to get as hard as a rock, and Corporal "Bill" swears he will carry them through life,-Chicago News,

Origin of "Blue Blood."

The origin of the term "blue blood" is most suggestive. After the black Moors were driven out of Spain the aristocracy of Spain was held to consist of those who traced their lineage back to the time before the Moorish conquest. These people were whiter than those who had been mixed with Moorish blood. The veins upon their white hands were blue, while the blood of the masses, contaminated by the Moorish infusion, showed black upon their hands and faces. So the white Spaniards of the old race came to declare that their blood was "blue," while that of the common people was black. The phrase passed to France. where it had no such significance, and was, in fact, quite arbitrary, and thence it came to England and America.

A new idea in road maps for cyclers and drivers consists in printing the outline of a road on a long strip of paper, which is wound on two drums in front of the rider and may be operated by a thumb wheel on one of the drums to show the route as the driver passes.

At Chicago, A. J. Thibodeau broke all ama-teur unpaced bicycle track records from twenty to fifty miles. The balf century figure was reduced by more than two minutes. Odd Pretexts for Duels.

It's easy to find an excuse for a duel if one is looking for trouble. One hundred and twenty years ago, says . writer in the Pittsburg Dispatch, two British officers serving in the army in America found cause for a fight in a discussion as to the proper method of eating corn. One contended that is should be eaten from the cob; the other that it should be cut off onto the plate. One of the contestants lost his right arm as the result, and it is probable that the manner of eating corn did not concern him much thereafter. There have been many other duels, founded on equally foolish pretexts. One man lost his life in a dispute as to what was trumps in a card game; another because he was refused admis-sion to a club of pigeon shooters. General Barry was challenged because he declined some wine on account of IIIness, and another British officer was called out because he asked his opponent to pass him a goblet at the dining table.
