America's Greatest Medicine

GREATEST, Because it does what all other medicines fail to do. As an instance of its peculiar and unusual curative power, consider the most insidious disease, and the disease which taints the blood of most people, producing incalculable suffering to many, while in others it is a latent fire liable to burst into activity and produce un-old misery on the least provocation.

Scrofula is the only ailment to which the human family is subject, of which the above sweeping statement can honestly be made. Now, a medicine that can meet this common enemy of mankind and repeatedly effect the wonderful cures Hood's Sarsaparilla has,-clearly has the right to the title of America's Greatest Medicine. Dog with a History

A dog with an interesting history has just died in France. He was a New foundland named Sultan, and he count ed among his exploits the arrest of s thief, the capture of an assassin, the rescue of a child from drowning in the Marne, and of a man who attempted to commit suicide by jumping from the post-Neuf into the Seine. For this gallantry the Society for the Protection of Animals presented him with a collar of honor three years ago. Latterly Sultan was owned by the Comtessa Foucher de Careil, who relied on him to protect her castle at Perdy, near Corbell. Quite recently he prevented the castle from being robbed. The noble dog has paid his devotion to duty with his life, for he was found dead in the park, poisoned by his enemies .-Lloyd's London Weekly.

Please Mention This Paper,

The lungs are bost strengthened by exercise and fresh air. Get a pair of dumb-bells, not over one pound each in weight, and take with these exercises of the kind that may be found outlined in the small books issued by the sporting-goods houses. When using the dumb-bells have the windows open so as to get plenty of fresh air. When walking on the street practice taking long, deep breaths and hold them for ten seconds or so. Do this several times daily.

An eminent foreign authority expresses the opinion that a very large proportion of cases of appendicitis are directly and almost immediately curable by the use of an injection, either of olive oil or of water, as warm as cat be comfortably borne. He says that in almost every instance the operation has disclosed the fact that there was an accumulation of refuse matter in the intestines. This, if cleared out, gives immediate relief, and in many instances a permanent cure.

A boil commonly produces pus and requires opening for prompt relief. When the sufferer is unwilling to have the speedy relief afforded by a knife, poulticing with hot poultices of any kind will tend to make the pus form more quickly and get an exit. Internally take a quarter grain pill or tablet of sulphide of calcium after meals for several days until you find a sulphurous taste in the mouth repeatedly Avoid intoxicants, fatty foods and fried stuffs until the formation of boils has ceased. Take, every morning, before breakfast, a teaspoonful of Ro chelle salts in a glass of water.

What a Man Can't Do.

A man cannot do two things at 1 time. A woman will broil a steak and see that the coffee does not boll over, and watch that the cat does not steal the remnant of the meat on the kitchen table, and dress the youngest boy, and set the table, and see to the toast, and stir the oatmeal, and give the orders to the butcher, and she can do it all at once, and not half try. Man has done wonders since he came before the public. He has navigated the ocean, he has penetrated the mysteries of the starry heavens, he has harnessed the lightning, and made it light the great cities of the world. But he can't find reel of thread in his wife's workbasket; he can't discover her pocket in a dress hanging in the closet; he cannot hang out clothes and get them on the line the right end up. He cannot hold clothes' pins in his mouth while he is doing it either. He cannot be polite to somebody he hates. He cannot sew on a button. In short, he cannot do a hundred things that women do almost instinctively.

Smart Advertising.

The proprietor of Beecham's pills, or his agent, did a smart thing at Liver pool. Nelson's old flagship, the Foudroyant, broke loose, it will be remembered, from its bearing in a storm, and drifted on to the shore. The Blackpool agent for Beecham's pills saw a splen did chance, and proceeded to paint or the side of the stranded vessel the inscription, "England expects every man to do his duty and take Beecham's pills." Mr. Cobb, the owner of the Foudroyant, has sued the proprietor of the pills for a trespass and dam ages, with the result that he has been awarded by a jury 40s against the agent, and £50 against the principal The advertisement will probably not be regarded as very dear .- Lloyd's London Weekly.

Desfaces Cannot be Cured

Desfness Cannot be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portions of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitu-tional remedies. Deafness is caused by an in-amed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachtan Tube. When this tube gets in-famed you have a rumbling sound or imper-fect heuring, and when it is entirely closed Deafnoss is the result, and unless the infam-mation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be de-stroyed for ever. Mine cases out of ten are saused by catarth, which is nothing but an in-amed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dellars for any not be cured by Hail's Catarth Cure. GARRETS AND BOOKS.

Delights of Which the Modern Child Knows Nothing.

I do not believe that the modern child knows anything about an attle. The fin-de-slecle attle is a respectable place. where boxes are selemnly piled and where moth camphor sheds its fragrance abroad, says a writer in Lippin cott's. There are hardly any old books to be found, for most people send them to the Hebrew merchants on the side streets. Our attle was a long, low room, with mysterious dark corners into whose depths we did not pene trate. There was an old hair trunk in one corner that held some of grand mother's muslin dresses. It was open ed only on rare occasions and I was al lowed but a glimpse of the faded beau ty within. There was an old spinning wheel where spiders hung fantastic wreaths and there was a guitar with broken, moldered strings.

But the corner where the books were piled was the spot I liked the best. An old-fashioned, tiny-paned window let an occasional sunbeam stray across the 'Ladies' Repositories" and "Saints' Rest." There was a fine old elm tree that tapped against the window and cometimes a robin sent a thrill of song into the dusty corners. Just beneath the window sent I used to sit, a small crouched form, bending over a musty volume. But when I wished to read under the most blissful conditions I fortified myself with half a dozen russet apples whose juice would have given flavor to a treatise on Hebrew grammar. Now, I never see a russet apple without seeing also the dim old attic and an utterly contented child, and I am sure the market women misunderstand my wistful glance, for they draw closer to their baskets and look at me in suspicious fashion. An apple, so some tell us, deprived us of our Eden; but apples were an important feature of my childish paradise. So let us leave them in Pomona's care and look at the intellectual part of the feast.

A Curlous Request,

The conditions attached to bequeste of money are often curious. An inter-esting illustration of this is afforded by an annual custom which takes place in one of the cometeries of Newcastle-on-Tyne. Some years ago a gentleman left a sum of money for the ro lief of the rates on condition that certain members of the corporation should every year place a wreath of flowers on his tomb. So, annually, as the an niversary of his death comes round, the mayor and other members of the corporation attend and hang a wreath on the granite obelisk which marks his resting pince. Thus his memory is kept green among his fellow-citizens. -Golden Penny.

Unique Celebration.

A highly-esteemed midwife at Stolfe, in Germany, celebrated lately a singular fenst. She had just assisted at the birth of her 6,000th child to whom she had given services, and, in honor of that event, she invited all the children whom she had helped to come into the world to her country house to partake of a banquet. Very many big and little children accepted the invitation, passing a pleasant afternoon. When they left in the evening they made a torchlight procession past their benefactor's house, and then took the train to Berlin.-Lloyd's London Weekly.

A Total Disability Claim of $1,650 Paid to Man who was Afterward Cured, heart and character it must be remembered that gambling as a pastime for women, however, is not regarded in the same light as it is in America. Nearly every woman of leisure in England or European society indulges in a quiet little game whenever an opportunity presents itself, and no one dreams of thinking her the worse for it. To the intimate friends of the Prince and Princess of Wales it is well known that at both Marlborough house, the prince's town residence, and at Sandringham, their country place, there is a reproduction on a miniature scale of the gaming outfit such as one sees at the Casino at Monte Carlo and at the popular resort at Ostend. The Princess is partial to the fascinating game of roulette and is very fortunate in playing the red. More than $2,500 has been added to the Princess' exchequer in an evening through the strange caprice of the "wheel of fortune." The money won in this way goes into the Princess' private charity fund, upon which the demands are innumerable.

The Monitor, a newspaper published at Meaford, Ont. Canada, first discovered this case two years ago, and published it at length, which now seems, owing to the cure of it, to be a miracle. The facts were so in the bis one re-tion, the Monitor determined to find out definitely whether the facts were as stated and whether the man would really stay on the case for two years after the first ar-ticle appeared, and have just now published another article about it in which the original reports are completely perified, the cure is per-manent, and they publish a fac simile of the sociation for $1650.00 amount of total disa-bility claim paid by them to Mr. Petch. The first account stated that the patient (see address below) had been a parity for five years, that there was such a total inct of feeling in his limbs and body, that a pla run full length could not be foll; that be could not walk or help himself at all; for that he was bloated, was for that reason plete as to affect the face and prevented him from opening his meuth aufficiantly
