Loud Talking Machine. Joseph T. Guthrie, Esq., gave a gramophone entertainment in the Presbyterian church last evening. The program consisted of selections from the most famous bands, orchestras and other musical organizations, instrumental solos, songs by well-known artists, dramatic and humorous recitations. This is one of the best gramophones now in use, it is not to be compared to some of the little talking machines that are in use in various sections. This machine talks loud and distinctly. A small admission fee of 15 and 5 cents was charged to hear this talking machine. The proceeds of last night go to the repair fund of the Presbyterian church.

Rev. Dean's Last Service. It was stated in THE STAR a few weeks ago that Rev. John M. Dean had resigned as pastor of the Baptist church at this place to again engage in the evangelistic work, the resignation to take effect August 1st, consequently his last services as pastor will be held in the Baptist church next Sunday evening. Rev. Dean, who is an excellent evangelist, has been wonderfully successful as pastor of the Baptist church. The church has never experienced a more prosperous and enjoyable year than that under Mr. Dean's pastorate. It is not known yet who will succeed Mr. Dean as pastor of this church. Whomever it may be, he will have to be a live man, for a church always expects as much, at least, from a new pastor as they received from the one retiring.

'Jack' Alexander Dead. John F. Alexander, the only brother of W. B. Alexander of this place, died suddenly at his home at Heartville, Pa., Saturday night from heart disease. The deceased was born in Clearfield, October 15th, 1850, and would have been 48 years old next October. He was a harness maker by trade and was working at his trade at Greenville. 'Jack' was a member of a family of two sons and three daughters and his death leaves Dr. W. B. Alexander the only surviving member of the entire family. Dr. W. B. Alexander and son, Fred A., went to Greenville Monday morning and brought the body to this place last evening. Funeral services will be held at the residence of Dr. W. B. Alexander at 10:30 A. Fleeth Without a Pursuer. The truthfulness of the scriptural statement, 'the wicked flee when no man pursueth,' was verified at Davis, West Va., last week when Sheriff Burns was in that town on his chase after the horse thieves. Sheriff was sitting in front of a hotel when he saw a man from this section, whom he was acquainted with, walking up the other side of the street. Sheriff said, 'hello!' waved his hand and got up to cross the street to talk with him, but the man said, 'Oh no, you don't!' and ran down the street as fast as he could go. The sheriff don't even know what offense the fellow is guilty of.

HOW SHERIFF BURNS CAPTURED A PAIR OF HORSE THIEVES.

Pursued Them Day and Night for a Week—On Foot, by Buggy, by Train—Thrilling Leap From a Train.

Monday noon Sheriff Ed. C. Burns arrived in Brookville with the pair of horse thieves, John Henry Burgen and Joseph Brannis, whom he had chased a week before capturing them. The editor of THE STAR found Sheriff Burns in his office Monday afternoon and from him we got the following facts concerning the chase and capture of the thieves.

On Saturday, 16th inst., while all the citizens of Punxsutawney were interested in the departure of Co. L, Burgen and Brannis stole a horse and buggy out of a shed. The rig belonged to a farmer named Mellwaine, who had driven to town to see the soldier boys depart. The theft was reported to Sheriff Burns and that evening the sheriff started after the thieves, but it was not until Sunday afternoon that he got onto the right trail of the fugitives. They had driven to Adrian, then to Ellenora, then to Big Run and from there to Bell's Mills, thence to McGees, on the Susquehanna river. The thieves did not take a direct route at any time, but kept winding around for the purpose of throwing their pursuers off the trail. From McGees they fled to Colport, Hastings, Carltown, Indiana county. Then they crossed the main line of the Pennsylvania railroad, near Pleasantville tunnel, to Elliott and to Scalp Level. At this point Sheriff Burns lost the trail and before he regained it the fugitives had two days' start of him. From Scalp Level the parties took to the mountains, bringing up at Bedford, Pa. From Bedford they drove into Maryland and took down the Cumberland Valley. At Frostburg, Md., they traded the stolen horse and buggy for another horse and road wagon, and the wagon they traded later for a cart. Then they made a dikeer with a band of gypsies by which they secured a pony.

Sheriff chased the fugitives through Piedmont, Keyser, Lemon, German and other West Va. towns, and during that chase they traded the cart for a watch, sold the harness for $2.00 and also sold the pony, but the sheriff did not learn what they got for the pony. Sheriff chased them from Piedmont to Davis and back to Piedmont on freight trains and about daylight Saturday morning, after one week's chase, he captured Burgen in the mountains in Maryland, across the river from Piedmont, after a thrilling experience.

Sheriff Burns got on an early passenger train at Piedmont Saturday morning and stood on the steps to look for Burgen along the railroad. At the lower end of the yard, when the train was running almost at full speed, Sheriff saw Burgen sitting near some freight cars and he leaped off the train. Burgen saw the sheriff jump and he ran under the cars and took across the river for the mountains on the Maryland side, with the sheriff in pursuit. Burgen had the lead and was a better runner than the lusty sheriff, but when they began to ascend the mountains the officer made good use of his revolver, and after one ball had torn a hole in Burgen's coat and fanned his backbone and another one grazed his stomach, as the fugitive turned to see if the sheriff was gaining on him, then Burgen knew that Sheriff Burns was in earnest, and he surrendered.

Sheriff returned to Piedmont with Burgen and as he came to a short turn in the street he found Brannis sitting there and he grabbed him before the fellow even could think of running. Sheriff Burns arrived in Pittsburg Saturday night with his prisoners and had to remain there over Sunday. When the men were captured Burgen had 25 cents and Brannis had 10 cents. They had sold everything saleable and spent the money for whisky. Burgen said he had sold his revolver a couple of days before Sheriff Burns captured him or he would have shot at the sheriff on the mountain. During the chase these two men stole all they had to eat and stole oats for the horse. They caught and killed a pig on the mountains. At one place they awakened a man at five o'clock in the morning and asked him for a chew of tobacco.

Sheriff Burns was not in bed from Wednesday until Saturday night, and the morning he captured the thieves he had not had anything to eat for almost twenty-four hours. He destroyed a suit of clothes in the chase up the mountain after Burgen and skinned his shins badly. Sheriff had to buy new clothing to wear home. He spent over $100.00 in telegraphing and telephoning, hiring rigs and men to assist in the chase after the fugitives. Sheriff Burns certainly deserves great credit for persevering in the chase until he captured this pair of horse thieves. They are both bad men and have been in the clutches of the law before.

Fell Against Stove. On last Saturday evening John, young son of Martin McCarty, who is just old enough to run around through the house, fell against a stove and received a cut above his eye which bled so profusely that the child's clothing and the carpet where he fell were saturated with blood. A physician was hurriedly sent for, but before he arrived the flow of blood had stopped and it was found that the injury was not as serious as was at first believed.
