The Reply to the President Accepts the Peace Conditions Impeced by the United States Peace Commission Will be Named This Week

Spain has submitted to America's terms regarding peace. The cabinet council at Madrid terminated last Saturday, after having completely approved the reply to the United States, which accept the American conditions. Immediately after the formal acceptance of his terms by Spain, the President will probably arrange for an armistice pending negotiations.

In its final form, as carefully revised by the Foreign Minister and reapproved by Queen and Cabinet, it accepts without discussion the four preliminary conditions of peace imposed by the United States. But care is taken to explain that Spain gives way to the force of events, again asserting that she had neither sought nor done anything to provoke the war, into which she was driven by the conduct of America.

The President and his Cabinet have decided that the United States shall not assume any part of the Cuban debt, and will not permit the Republic of Cuba to assume any of it. Spain can, of course, bring the matter before the Peace Commission, but the representatives of the United States will be instructed to oppose any plan to saddle the debt upon this country or be instructed to oppose any plan to saddle the debt upon this country or the new Republic.

Of the $550,000,000 indebtedness for which Cuba is given as security, all is held in Spain but $20,000,000, in the hands of French syndicates.

The President has acted on the assumption that the money was contracted for by Spain to carry on the war in Cuba and against the United States, and that, in consequence, this Government should not be expected to pay any part of it. The portion of it expended in improving Cuba, the President believes, has been repaid by the oppressive taxation which Spain has levied on the residents of Cuba.

Major Morrison, judge advocate general of the army, summarizes as follows, the steps likely to be taken in peace negotiations between the United States and Spain:

First—The President and the government at Madrid will agree upon an armistice for the cessation of hostilities.

Second—This agreement to suspend war pending the drafting of the treaty will be communicated by both governments to their armies in the field as speedily as possible.

speedily as possible.

Third—Until commanding generals are officially notified they will proceed according to their orders.

Fourth—The United States can continue to send troops to Porto Rico or Santiago. An armistice terminates aggressive warfareft but it does not prevent either party sending troops to the territory already occupied by its armics.

Fifth-The blockade at Havana need not necessarily be raised.

Sixth—As to Manila, the terms prepedent require that the United States occupy the city and bay and the armistice will be followed at once by an order from Madrid to allow General

Merritt's troops to occupy the city. ROUGH RIDERS RETURN

The Fourth Ohio Beldiers Capture Guayame After Sharp Skirmish Fate of the Enemy Settled by Dynamite Guns.

The movement of the United States forces against San Juan, the capital of Porto Rico, began Sunday morning. Great and careful preparations have been made for this attack as considerable resistance is expected. The men are under command of Gen. Miles. Sunday a news dispatch came to the war department from Gen. Miles. It was as follows:

"Ponce, Aug. 6, 1898,
"Gen. Brooke reports Haines' brigade, Fourth Ohio and Third Illinois, captured Guayamo yesterday. Slight skirmish with enemy in and about town. Enemy's strength estimated at about 500; not ascertained if any of them are regulars; resistance not strong. Private John O. A cable from Ponce, dated Saturday, says: Gen. Brooke's advance guard entered Guayamo affer a sharp skirmish, in which several on both sides were wounded. The general advance was delayed by the groundings of the transport Massachusetts, with Gen. Brooke's headquarters aboard. The capture of Guayamo was accomplished only after a lively skirmish outside the city with 400 Spaniards, and after the loss of three Americans. After their loss of three Americans. After their entrance into the town Gen. Miles' men were forced to repel an attack which they did with honor to them-

Thursday's ceremony at Berlin was brilliant and impressive as regards court display, but quite disappointing in other respects. The church was inadequately decorated and the public displayed no enthusiasm in the ceremonial, which, so far from having the exceptional character of great national mourning for a nation's greatest statesman, differed hardly any from hundreds of similar functions that may be witnessed here at any time.

Perhaps the most disappointing feature, though it was known beforehand, was the fact that not a single member of the Bismarck family attended. The royal pew set apart for their accommodation remained conspicuously and significantly empty. It must be admitted that the deceased statesman was not altogether popular with the masses in Berlin, but on such an occasion this alone could hardly account for the sparseness and nondescript character of the public attracted to the scene.

The bitterness of the old chancellor toward the young kaiser seems to reach beyond death.

at Norfolk. It is expected that the battle-scarred Spanish ship will attract thousands of curious visitors when she reaches Hampton Road. It is fully expected at the navy department that the Maria Teresa will require very extensive repairs, having suffered not only from shot, shell and fire, but also from a manth's submersion in the quickly fouling water of South Cuba, However, the repairs will certainly be made for the sentimental reason alone is strong enough to warrant the expenditure of money enough to put the ship into serviceable condition.

Porte Rice Humiliates Spain.

Indeed, this behavior tends to diminish the regret felt here at losing the island. Busessful Campaign of Gen. Miles.

Up to this point not the slightest complaint has reached the department respecting the management of the Porto Rican campaign, a tribute to Gen. Miles' ability. No word has come of soldiers without food or ammunition or of sick men without doctors of medicine nor is the onward movement of the American army delayed for lack of artillery, owing to General Miles' insistence upon keeping his artillery in the very vanguard and giving personal attention to the commissary and quartermaster departments.

The war department points out that Shafter's army as a whole cannot be withdrawn from Santiago until the Spanish prisoners are disposed of. Otherwise, there is no certainty that, finding themselves able to do so, the Spaniards would not overpower their Theodore Roosevelt of the Rough Riders has addressed a communication to Gen. Shafter urging the removal of the troops there, he argues, would involve the destruction of thousands of soldiers. He declares that in his division the men are so weakened by malarial fevers, that they are all ripe for dying like rotten sheep when a real yellow fever epidemic sets in.

After Col. Roosevelt had taken the initiative, all the American general officers united in a round-robin addressed to Gen. Shafter. It reads: "We, the undersigned officers commanding the various brigades, divisions, etc., of the army of the occupation in Cuba, are of the unanimous opinion that this army should be at once taken out of the Island of Cuba and sent to some point on the northern sea coast of the United States; that it and sent to some point on the northern sea coast of the United States; that it sea coast of the United States; that it can be done without danger to the people of the United States; that yellow fever in the army at present is not epidemic; that there are only a few sporadic cases; but that the army is disabled by malarial fever to the extent that its efficiency is destroyed and that it is in a condition to be practically destroyed by an epidemic of yellow fever which is sure to come in the near future.

"We know from the reports of competent officers and from personal observations that the army is unable to move into the interior and that there are no facilities for such a move if attempted, and that it could not be attempted until too late. Moreover, the best medical authorities of the island say that with our present equipment we could not live in the interior during the rainy season without losses from malarial fever, which is almost as deadly as yellow fever.

The announcement that the United States government will assume liability for the claims of the insurgents against the Spanish government on account of injuries and damages sustained in the Cuban insurrection has caused the filing of a large number of claims with the state department. Very many of these are not based upon events occurring during the last rebellion, but date back for very many years, and relate to excess customs collections, damages sustained through municipal maladministration, alleged lilegal confinement and such things.

On the other hand there are now Spanish claims to the amount of $$,000,000 against the United States that in the event of a joint claims commission being authorized would be proper offsets to many Americans here. A large number of these claims are made by Spanish subjects on account of property destroyed or appropriated by the Confederate troops during the Civil war, thus having exactly the same basis as a number of claims filed by American citizens against the Spanish government for property selzed or destroyed by the insurgents in Cuba. Another class of these claims are of ancient date, flowing from the abortive efforts of the commissioners and special courts created by congress to settle the "Florida claims."

It is believed to be probable, however, that in the adjustment of peace terms, our government will ignore all claims save those preferred by American citizens for losses sustained in Cuba, allowing the others to be arranged for later on by a joint commission.

Communications from Gen. The garrison is enfeebled by daily losses, and it is only by valor and endurance of their sufferings that the troops are of their sufferings that the troops are able to repulse the enemy. They decline terms to surrender, and are determined to fight to the last for their flags and honor. Nevertheless, Gen. Augusti declares, the government must understand that valor will not alone suffice to hold the city. There are limits to physical endurance. The troops have no rest and no relief and consequently under such circumstances it will be impossible to continue the resistance unless support is received.
