Professor Draper's Sister Sat Thirty Minutes For Her Portrait.

Elizabeth Flint Wade has an illustrated paper on "Photography-Its Marvels" in St. Nicholas. The author says:

The first accounts of this great discovery are very entertaining reading. Professor Morse, the inventor of the telegraph, was in Paris when the news was published, and at once went to see Daguerre's wonderful pictures. In describing them afterward he said that moving objects made no impression on the plate, for a picture taken of a crowded boulevard showed it as if entirely deserted, with the exception of a man having his shoes polished. The man's feet, he said, were well defined, because they were kept stationary, but he was without head or body, for these were in motion.

To America belongs the honor of making the first photographic portrait, the artist being Professor John Draper, a professor and afterward the president of the University of New York. His victim was his sister, Miss Catherine Draper. He powdered ber face, that the likeness might be more quickly impressed on the sensitive plate, and for 30 minutes Miss Draper sat—or, at least, tried to sit—as immovable as a

The first class in photography was formed in Boston in the spring of 1840 by Daguerre's agent, Gourad of Paris. The Rev. Edward Everett Hale, then a student in Harvard, became an enthusi astic member of the class. In his diary. under date of April 1, 1840, is this entry: "On my way home I stopped at the shop and got my daguerreotype thermometer. There seems to be a great demand; there were three or four others

THE RICH RUSSIAN.

He Has a Weakness For an Army of Pamily Servants.

We were a family of 8, occasionally of 10 or 12 says Prince Kropotkin in The Atlantic, but 50 servants at Moscow, and half as many more in the country, were considered not one too many. Four coachmen to attend a dozen horses, three cooks for the masters and two more for the servants, a dozen men to wait upon us at dinner time—one man, plate in hand, standing behind each person seated at the table—and girls innumerable in the maidservants' room, but how could any one do with

Besides, the ambition of every landed proprietor was that everything required for his household should be made at bome by his "own" men.

"How nicely your piano is always tuned. I suppose Herr Schimmel must be your tuner?" one of the visitors would remark.

To be able to answer, "I have my own plano tuner," was in those times the correct thing.

"What beautiful pastry!" the guests would exclaim when a work of art, composed of ices and pastry, appeared toward the end of the dinner. "Confess, prince, that it comes from Tremble" (the fashionable pastry cook).

"It is my own confectioner, a papil of Tremble, whom I have allowed to show what he can do," was the reply which elicited general admiration.

To have embroideries, harnesses, furniture-in fact everything-made by one's "own" men was the ideal of the rich and respected landed proprietor.

Bismarck as Dr. Jekvil.

No greater contrast could possibly be imagined than that which existed between the Bismarck of private life and the Bismarck of politics. "In the home circle," writes a correspondent who knew him well, "he was perfectly charming, easy going and good natured. He was passionately fond of children, and I have seen him over and over again have a game with the little ones of his gardener, who were very familiar with him and would not hesitate to climb upon his knee.

'Once when his gardener's little girl died the great statesman went to con-dole with him. He was dreadfully up-set and while holding the poor father's hand burst into tears, for he was very fond of the child. He kissed the tittle corpse and himself placed a bunch of roses in its hand. He was always eager to assist his poorer neighbors and en-joyed chatting with them on all sub-jects but politics. These he never men-tioned."—London Chronicle.

Chinese Taxes Very Light.

The Chinese are perhaps the most lightly taxed people in the world. In China all the land belongs to the state, and a trifling sum per acre-never altered through long centuries—is paid as rent. This is the only tax in the country, and it amounts to about half a crown per head yearly. - London News.

A Mean Trick.

Smith—You say you write dunning letters to yourself and sign them with fictitious names. What do you do that Jones—You see, my wife is always after me for money, and when she reads those letters she becomes discouraged. London Fun.

Miss Wellwood—Do you believe there is anything in love at first sight? Mr. Hardacre—Oh, yes. About nine times out of ten there's a divorce in it.

The Antiquity of Class.

Glass has been employed, we know, both for decorative and domestic purposes since the dawn of civilization. The earliest remains date from Egypt 3064 B. C. and are preserved in the British museum. It is an amulet, in the form of a lion's head, of opaque blue color, with hieroglyphics that determine its date. On the rock cut tombs of the necropolis of Memphis glass blowers were depicted as early as 3900 B. C. Stories are told by Pliny, Josephus and other writers to account for its discovery, but these are very doubtful, so that we have only to rely upon facts attested by actual remains.

The discovery was doubtless fortui-Such lucky finds are often the work of chance. When it occurred, we cannot determine; but, so far as we know, Egypt, as she was the germ of all civilization, was also the mother of this art, which she applied to a multi tude of purposes, strangely excepting that which we deem most necessary namely, to admit light into buildings.

The dwellers by the Nile handed down the art to the Phœnicians, who in like manner bequeathed it to the Assyrians. Then it was passed along to the Persians and the Greeks, then to the Romans and the Byzantines, who in turn communicated it to the Vene tians. The monks of the middle ages appropriated it to beautify their Gothic temples, and so it came down the centuries to modern times.-Frank H. Vize telly in Woman's Home Companion.

A Hopeless Case.

A Scottish paper tells a story of an old Scottish woman who was "unco" drouthie," without the money to buy
"a drappie." "Lassie," she said to her little grauddaughter, "gang round to
Donald McCallum and bring me a gill.
Tell him I'll pay him i' the morning."

Back came the child with a refusal. Donald declined to part with his whisky without the cash. Eager and irritated the old woman cast about for some means of "raising the wind," and her eye fell upon the family Bible. "Here, lassie," she said, "gie him this and tell him to keep it until I bring him the siller." Off went the little girl, but she soon returned, still carrying the Bible Donald was obdurate.

"He says he man bae the baubees first, granny."

In anger the disappointed grandmother threw up her hands and exclaimed: "Losh, did onybody ever hear the like o' that! The man will neither tak my word nor the word o' God for a gill o' whusky !'

How Soake Poison Kills.

The action of poisons upon the system is and always has been one of the most interesting of subjects. Just how and why it kills has been determined through a series of experiments made by scien-tists. The following description is unquestionably the best and most lucid of any that has been given to the public: "The venom may be roughly separated into two parts—one acting upon the blood, and the other upon the nerves. When injected, it immediately begins to create terrible destruction in the blood vessels, the walls of the veins are eaten away and an internal hemorrhage takes place. While this is going on a portion of the venom is attacking the nerves. Particularly susceptible to its ravages is the 'vasomotor system, a nerve center which controls the muscles of respiration. Paralysis takes place in these organs, and the victim generally dies from an inability to breathe." New York Ledger.

It is stated that the Bismarcks first made their appearance in Brandenburg as cloth merchants. In 1430 or there about it is believed that one Claus Bismarck advanced a sum of money to the Margrave Ludwig, which was secured upon the customs of his native town. The citizens, however, rebelling against this arrangement, the margrave assigned to Class Bismarck the fief of Burgstall, and it was in this manner that the nobility of the family began. In the middle of the sixteenth century the Bismarcks came under the sway of the Hohenzollerns, to whom they have ever remained faithful vassais -London

A Fancy For Old Hate.

The inhabitants of the Nicobar islands, a group in the Indian ocean, have an extraordinary fancy for old hats, and a regular trade in such cast off headgear is carried on between Calcutta and Nicobar, the much desired headpieces being paid for in cocoanuts. A tall chimney pot is the favorite among the Nicobarians, and the acme of fashion is considrians, and the home of fashion is considered to be a high white hat with a black hatband. This is worth from 50 to 60 coccanuts, and is worn by the Nicobarian dandy when he goes out fishing, the rest of his attire consisting solely of a waisteent.

Thought He Was Smart. Mr. Peck-What is that book you are

Mrs. Peck—It's a novel, entitled "A

THE SENIORS' PLAY.

Eight lonely Seniors
Sitting in a row.
Studying very studiously.
Faces all arlow.
Sudenly the bell rings.
Each one takes his stand.
Marching to the class room.
All so great and grand.
First they learn how Venus
Travels in her course
And then about that property
Which did, so much for Morse.
Isotherms and parallels.
And atmosphere, and dew.
And hall, and rain, and eyelones.
All so strange and new.
And then they learn in Caesar
About those maghty Gauls.
Add how old Caesar's soldiers
Scaled those monstrous walls.
And to arrange constructions.
And place the yerb just so.
Declining, conjugating.
No casy row to hose.
Physics then comes next in line,
Always in such perfect time.
With molecules and atoms
A following long behind.
And then they read how Shakespeare.
Bacon and Cariyle
Could bring the teyle
Could bring the type
Could bring the lead of the senior.
And then they read how Shakespeare.
Bacon and Cariyle
Could bring the leaf yellow of the could bring the leaf yellow.
And in that told Geometry
You should see how things go.
And then they learn how king and queens
Ruled in the olden times—
And here they stop, with a whir, whir,
And a jumble in their minds.
—"Mademoiselle."

Saturday, Sont 15, 708 will be a day Saturday, Sept. 15, '98, will be a day long remembered by a number of the High School enthusiasts. It was a day on which a small party, consisting of the following: F. S. Breed, Pearl Barto, Jas. G. Pentz, Chas. Hammond and Will Smith, made an expedition to the cave several miles west of Reynoldsville.

All arrangements for the tour had been completed the week previous to departure, so when the day came all were ready, bright and early, to saunter into the field of adventure, and there accomplish something, as a result of which their names would find a conspicuous place in the journals of the day.

Prof. Lenkerd, who had registered as a member of the party, was very sorry that circumstances prevented his going, for he knew the tour would be one of benefit and of the greatest interest to those who spend the greater part of their time expounding their field of knowledge in the cirriculum of the High School. All being in the right mood for such a journey, the start was made with the eager expectation of reaching the cave, the interior of which had been depicted in the minds of the party-a picture that resembled in great part, the description of the famous Mammoth Cave, which is a greater distance from the town than the one seen, as far as is known, to be entered for the first time. As the town was slowly losing itself beyond the eastern horizon, the party began to wonder whether or not they were looking at it for the last time. They then began to imagine the exploration as completed, the homeward journey begun and the old town presenting itself to view-thus being reminded of sick with the fever. Shakepeare's words: "There's a divinity that shapes our ends."

As the tourists slowly wended their way toward the place of interest they profusely elaborated on the many things they would see and learn, among which was the cavern's formation, the structural interior, the kinds of rocks, etc., to learn whether the cave was made by the action of subterranean waters, or was merely the deceptive remains of an abandoned coal mine; to survey with rapture the roof, embellished by the drippings of many centuries; to see the fossiliferous remains of prehistoric animais; perchance to find a tomb of some ancient tribe of prehistoric men-all these enabling them to more or less accurately determine the time and perlod of the cave's existence.

No one had the least thought that the trip might prove a failure.

The mouth of the cavern had now been reached, and preparations made for entering. Smith, with a large torch, took the lead, immediately followed by Pentz. After wending their way through the small aperture for a short time they looked back-the remainder of the party was nowhere to be seen. This did not stop their eager ingress. On they went a few feet farther, then stopped to examine the situation. When the second advance was made, the vanguard of the expedition found itself at the cave's termination, fifteen feet from the place of entrance and nothing visible but the omnipresent end. A report of progress was soon received by those outside, and eastles builded out of air returned again to nothingness. The party then retraced its homeward path, feeling much refreshed after the day's outing.

LOCAL.

Harry Herpel, who has been in Pittsourg during the conclave of the Knights Templar, returned home Saturday.

The following members of the High School were in DuBois Friday with the Pirates football club: Gibson, '01; Ferris, '01; Mitchell, '00; Smith, '99.

It was remarked by a Junior that the mental arithmetic of some of the Subjuniors was in their pencils and fingers.

Query: If a penny is one sent, is a a messenger boy a penny? It said in the column last week that some of the Sub-Juniors were destined to be astronomers. The Subs. say they fail to see any bright stars when they gaze around the room. It is rumored that one of the Juniors has a large interest in the silk mill. We could not account for the activity of one of the Seniors until we heard that she lived in a bee hive.

Paradise.

The spelling at the McCreight school last Wednesday night was a success. Mrs. W. A. Sheesley and sons, Lee and Jim, visited relatives at New Washington last Saturday and Sunday. Miss Annie Lott, of Troutville, spent at this place. Miss Etta Sykes, teacher of the Phillippi school, and her pupils cleaned the Hon. James Dunn, of Pittsburg, lectured on Prohibition last Saturday and Sunday nights in the M. E. church. Jas. Sarah, who has lived here for ten years, moved near Big Soldier mine on a lot of ground he traded his property here for to M. M. Fisher, of Reynoldsville. Mrs. Kate Harris was called to Harrisburg last week on account of her daughter, Mrs. S. K. Furman, being Headache for Forty Years.

For forty years I suffered from sick beadache. About a year ago I began using Celery King. The result was gratifying and surprising, my headaches leaving at once. The headaches used to return every seventh day, but thanks to Celery King, I have had but one headache in the last eleven months. I know that what cured me will help others.-Mrs. John D. VanKeuren, Saugerties, N. Y. Celery King for the Nerves, Stomach, Liver and Kidneys is sold in 50c. and 25c. packages by H. Alex. Stoke.
