House Was Set in Order.

Rev. W. F. Reber, pastor of the Pres byterian church, and wife arrived in this place Thursday evening and were given a reception at the parsonage by members and friends of the Presbyterian church. Notwithstanding the extremely disagreeable weather there were quite a number present during the evening and the pastor and wife were given a warm welcome. Rev. and Mrs. Reber had their household goods shipped to Reynoldsville ahead of them and Mr. and Mrs. Hockensmith, uncle and aunt of Rev. Reber, and members of the church unpacked the goods, put down carpets and set the house in order so that when Rev. Reber arrived with his bride their home was all ready for Another Mother Gone.

Mrs. Hannah Coyle, a highly respected old lady of this place, departed this life at 3.30 A. M., Thursday, November 10th, at the home of her daughter. Mrs Dennis M. Bolger, on Fourth street. The deceased was born in Ireland 68 years ago. She came to America with her husband, Cornelius Coyle, in 1848. Fourteen years ago she was left a widow, her husband dying in Butler county. After her husband's death Mrs. Coyle came to Reynoldsville and has made her home with Mrs. D. M. Bolger for nine years. Mrs. Coyle was ill five weeks. Funeral services were held in the Catholic church Saturday forenoon, Father Lynch, of DuBols, conducted High Mass. The mortal remains of a loving mother and a kind neighbor were buried in the Catholic cemetery. The deceased is survived by two daughters and three sons, as follows: Mrs. P. F. Bolger, Mrs. D. M. Bolger and M. J. Coyle, of Reynoldsville, Steven Coyle, of South Fork, West Va., and Daniel Coyle, of Washington, Pa. First Time on Witness Stand.

Sometime before the war with Spain a young man of this section of the globe had his heart punctured with Copid dart and the only balm for the wou was found at hymen's altar. In a fe short weeks after the nuptial knot h been tied the connubial tenderness w driven from the new home with broomstick manipulated by the fer inine whom the aforesaid young mi had selected for a partner in life's tria and the felicitousness of the domici was therefore disturbed. After the "clouds had rolled by" and the broo was replaced in a corner of the kitche the benedict, with one of his optical trimmed in black, by coming in conta with the broomstick, meandered to magistrate's office and secured t proper persuasiveness to induce his wi to appear before his honor at a state time to show cause why she should n be punished for so maliciously misusi her husband. The gallant youth (?) he never been on the witness stand, a didn't know what it was to be swor When the day and hour of trial arrive the husband was the first witness a when the magistrate asked if he w ready to swear, he said "yes," and the astonishment of the magistrate a all present, he began to "swear like blue streak" about his wife and how s had abused him. Finally the eruptic of profanity was checked and the your man was given to understand the mer ing of an oath and his testimony w received.

Died Suddenly.

George W. Bussard, the butcher, di suddenly from heart trouble Mond night. Mr. Bussard had not been slee ing well and he got some medici Monday evening to make him sleep a his wife thinks he took too much of the medicine and it affected his head. About eleven o'clock he got of bed and awakened his brother-in-law, Manas Reitz, and asked him to go along to buy cattle, and then went to the barn to get the team ready. When Mr. Reitz got to the barn Mr. Bussard was harnessing s horse and stooped down to buckle the belly-band and dropped over dead.

George Bussard was born in Ringgold township February 17th, 1861, making him over 37 years old. His parents are both dead. July 3rd, 1882, he was married to Mary Ellen Reitz, of Beaver township. He moved to Reynoldsville five years ago last April and opened a meat market. He is survived by his

Postoffice rules have been hoisted in a neighboring town that might be good here: "No letters will be delivered until they have been received. If you don't get a letter or a paper on the day you expect, have the postmaster look through all the boxes and down cellar also. It ought to be there somewhere and he likes to bunt for it just to please you. If your friend don't write, cuss the postmaster. He is to blame. If he tells you there is no mail for you put on a grieved expression and say, 'There ought to be some.' He is probably hiding your mail for the pleasure of having you call for it two or three times a day. Ask him to look again."

Crowded House.

When every seat and spot for camp chairs had been packed, the crowd filled the aisles, altar place, stand, and even sat on the reporters' tables. The hymns were sung and in due time Mr. Bain modestly entered upon an address which for logical power, imagery and absorbing interest has never been surpassed at Ocean Grove. Like wave on wave there were ripples of merriment succeeded by emotion and tears, until the grand climax which brought that mass of humanity to their feet to wave the orator their hearty good wishes .-Ocean Grove (N.
