SLIDING DOWN THE HILL.

Sliding down the hillside,
Over the frothy snow,
Sliding 'round the corners,
Talking as we go—
Happy voices joining
In a noisy thrill;
Bless me, how glad some
Sliding down the hill.
Girl whom you walk with
Is certain she shall fall;
Nestles close behind you
To avoid the coming squall;
Hints at old school happenings,
As any maiden will—
Says it's very dangerous
Sliding down the hill.
Lady now gets excited
By only a little stumble—
Quickly grasps your arm,
Causing both to tumble.
A dozen students then pile up,
Of course, against their will;
Now all commence to grumble,
While sliding down the hill.
The boys now reach the corner,
At a speed too rash;
Suddenly slipping—
Into the ditch with a crash;
In a bed of snow and mud,
We behold the awful "spill."
O' how ridiculous some look,
Aftersliding down the hill.
Most safely reach the church
With hats and bonnets all awry—
Some now take the liberty
To hurl snowballs on the sly.
And now we reach the fountain,
Whose icy waters make us thrill;
We then say good-by to those
Who slid with us down the hill.

It is said that Ella Lenkerd prefers Brown to purple and white.

A lunch counter was established in seat No. 8 in the Junior class last Friday, but it acid out to Junior No. 4 on Monday.

Private apple eating contests are held every Friday in Literary society. The apples are of the best grade direct from Mitchell's farm.

Don't forget the lecture Friday evening by William Hawley Smith, subject, "We, the People."

The Sub-Juniors were few on Monday.

If you members of the High School don't write something for the BULLETIN, who's going to write for it? Think over it and if you will you can write something.

A large crowd, as usual, was in waiting yesterday at Stoke's for the sale of reserved seat tickets.

The average attendance of room No. 7 is 90 instead of 90, as reported last week.

All you students of the High School like to read the BULLETIN, but there are few who like to write something for it. We cannot put out the BULLETIN unless you co-operate with us. You were all in favor of having the BULLETIN and it is your place to keep it up. Some think that the editors should write everything for the paper. Not so; their part of the work is to look after the business part of the paper. We hope that we will not have to be asking all the time for some of you to write something, but that you will do it without being asked. We hope the next time to have more news for you, if you will do your duty.

An exchange says it takes a rich man to draw a check, a pretty girl to draw attention, a horse to draw a cart, a porous plaster to draw the skin, a toper to draw a cork, a free lunch to draw a crowd and an advertisement in your home paper to draw trade.

Silk Mill Notes.

One hundred and thirty looms are now running at our new silk mill. This sounds like nothing when read in cold figures, but you ought to see the animation when all this machinery is in motion, and above all you ought to bear the merry noise of the flying shuttle when chased to and fro by the automatic picking stick.

The fever of learning weaving has taken even to the boys. Little Tom McKee has given up floor sweeping to learn weaving.

The personnel of the silk mill has now reached the number of 100, or pretty near it.

Since I have been working in silk mills I never saw so much eagerness on the part of young girls to learn the complicated art of weaving. Over 75 per cent. are pretty keen and are now running two looms with the seriousness and gravity of old hands. True, a little practice is still needed, but it is only a question of a few weeks more for them to be accomplished weavers. As was expected, out of the large number of girls who presented themselves to be instructed and learn the trade, about 5 or perhaps 10 per cent. have given up, but losing those hands is not to be regretted. They were only the element which, out of curiosity, want to see what is new, without having the necessary strong will, which alone secures success in any undertaking. They were not the brightest of the lot and made a poor showing of their ability and of their aptitude to steady work, and every one who has left was immediately replaced by two, and sometimes four, more anxious to have a chance at the loom. Nowadays, in the time of hard competition and daily struggle for life, it is good that everybody, and especially girls, should have a trade to insure them a living in case of hard necessity. How many times have I seen young operatives, after a stay of four to five years in a mill, leaving same for some other calling, or better, to fill the position of a happy housewife, all at once meet with some unexpected and undeserved reverses or affliction and had to return to the mill in order to keep the wolf from the door. They were known as skillful operatives, as steady workers, and they easily secured their old jobs, and joy and security came again to the poor afflicted who sometimes, in a moment of hard luck, had despaired of the future.

Work at the mills affords the young operative more freedom and security than any other calling. It is, in fact, in the hands of a skillful girl a real capital that cannot be taken away from its owner. If, perchance, there happens to be no work in one particular mill, there is always some work to be had in some neighboring mills.

The learning of a trade for a young girl nowadays has become as imperative as a life insurance to the far-seeing, saving man, and it is when she is young that she should learn. Between the age of 15 and 20 it is practically easy to almost all. After 25 or 30 it is oftentimes too late; the learning faculties are dull and the fingers have become stiff. But as far as I can see, right here in Reynoldsville people seem to have understood this fact and the young girls are eagerly seeking to take advantage of the chances afforded them by the establishment of the attractive industry of silk weaving.

BLACK JOHN, Ex-Loom Fixer.

Parents' and Patrons' Day.

Thursday, December 15th, has been appointed by County Supt. R. B. Teltrick as parents' and patrons' day in the public schools. The regular work of the schools is to be carried on so that visitors may determine as nearly as possible the nature of the work performed every day. I take this means of extending to the parents and patrons of the Reynoldsville public schools an invitation to visit the schools on that day.
