We have been frequently solicited by members of the school to encourage tree planting on the school grounds. This may seem rather late, since the term is rapidly approaching its close, to comply with their wanted request; and it will doubtless cause an equal surprise to the public who may think that it was a willful neglect on our part in order to save labor, which the attention to the subject naturally involves. We know how extremely difficult it is to arouse a whole community to concerted action and continuous effort, in so impatient an age as this, in a matter where cause and effect seem to be so remotely connected and so many years must elapse before the desired result can be realized, and their permanent blessings secured and enjoyed. But though late, it is evident that if a beginning is not made the desired ends can never be realized.

Trees are among the most beautiful gifts of nature, and this feeling is aroused not only by an occasional drive or stroll through the sylvan haunts of our native woods, but also by the charms of neatly arranged private lawns, whose delicate beauty seems dependent upon the trees which shadow them; and more particularly by school lawns adorned with maples, whose neatly ripen trunks and densely spreading foliage make better monuments (though they bear no inscriptions) than many an unmeaning obelisk of marble or granite.

We implore the assistance of our patrons as well as the pupils in embellishing our school grounds with trees which shall be memorials of the great and good men of our nation, and in whose honor they are planted. Trees which pupils plant will become dearer to them with the lapse of time. As the trees grow and their branches expand in beauty, so will the love for them increase in the hearts of those who planted them and we venture to say that long before these pupils reach old age they will venerate these green and living memorials of youthful and happy days. And we would encourage not only the planting of maple trees but, since "variety is the very spice of life," would suggest that a variety of trees, which may be found in the nearby wooded districts, be given a place on the lawn to display their beauty. We know how little common minds appreciate these natural treasures, and much less because they are found in the woods about them, such trees also should be planted.

The grounds of many schools where culture and refinement reign, are beautiful and attractive to both pupil and visitor; then there are others bleak and bare and produce the opposite effect on those who are wont to view them.

Waving boughs whispering in the wind, tremulous leaves, dancing shadows and flickering sunlight, all have a language of their own, impressive but inarticulate, that reach the inner senses of the soul, kindling the imagination, touching the heart of man, awakening thought and leaving an impression upon the memory which, enduring with the progress of the years lightens by its subduing influence burdens of life and sweetens its more bitter aspects. All knowledge is by no means bound up in text books. Nature is the source of true knowledge, and just as our apprehension of her increases so are we better educated; and the more we come in touch with her, so is the labor which is essential to a greater breadth of mind facilitated. Thus we are given better opportunities for widening our range of knowledge than if compelled to rely on text books alone—which may be somewhat likened to one who studies nature in a dungeon.

"Who planted this old apple tree?"
The children of that distant day
Thus to some aged man shall say;
And gazing on its mossy stem,
The gray-haired man shall answer them:
"A part of the land was his,
Born in the rude but good old times,
Thus said he made some quaint old rhymes
On planting the apple tree."
—BRYANT.

Lost or Stolen—A small silver pin. A liberal reward will be given to the one who returns it to Junior No. 2.

The Seniors were given their final examination in Caesar Monday.

Miss Bertha Marshall, who has been on the sick list, returned to school Monday.

Raymond Brown, Paul Riston and Charles King visited the High School Monday morning. We are glad to see the boys have not forgotten the "seat of their ancient abode."

Commencement is near at hand with its joys and fears, smiles and tears. The Seniors and Juniors look forward to it with some degree of anxiety and nervousness, due to their effort to appear at their best. But then there is a pleasure in the preparation. They are doing their best to make this commencement very entertaining and profitable. The Sub-Juniors feel somewhat elated because they have nothing to do but look and listen. But never mind; their day will come, thanks to that stern and equitable fate which visits upon each his just deserts.

A Narrow Escape.

Thankful words written by Mrs. Ada E. Hart, of Groton, S. D. "Was taken with a bad cold which settled on my lungs; cough set in and finally terminated in Consumption. Four doctors had given me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Savior, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. I gave it a trial, took in all eight bottles. It has cured me, and thank God, I am now a well and healthy woman." Trial bottles free at H. A. Stoke's Drug Store. Regular size 50c. and $1.00. Guaranteed or price refunded.
