A Reynoldsville Economist.

Reynoldsville, Pa., has a village improvement society; also an economist. They clashed recently. The economist came out ahead. The women of the improvement society in looking about to see how their town could be improved saw Main street, the leading thoroughfare of the place. It is paved with planks and was very dirty. They requested the householders of the street to sweep the dirt away from in front of their doors twice a week. The request was cheerfully complied with. Then the economist appeared. He declared that the sweeping would have to be stopped in the interest of economy. A covering of dirt, he said, was a protection to the pavement. Since the dirt was removed the wear and tear of traffic had been on the planks, whereas before the sweeping it had been on the dirt. He sustained his contention so well that the women of the improvement society were moved to modify their request, and now the householders sweep the street only twice a month instead of twice a week. Whether this modification will be satisfactory to the economist is not known, for the reason that he is silent on it. He may be hunting other facts and figures to hurl at the improvement society.

It is hardly likely that he will stop now when their is such an opportunity for him to go deeper into this street pavement economic question. He might, for instance, have the planks removed entirely and stored away. If they were put in a dry place and proper care taken of them they would last for years. Or if he preferred to have them where they are he might get a few more and fence in Main street. That would divert the traffic to another street and would materially lessen the wear and tear on the pavement. Or he could fence in the town and save all of the streets.

Some persons are willing to put up with a great deal in the interest of economy. Reynoldsville folks seem to be of them. The village improvement society has a large field to work in there. But the women of it are neglecting their most important task. They ought to squelch that economist.—Pittsburg Daily News.

Odd Fellow Celebration.

On Wednesday of last week the Northwestern Pennsylvania Anniversary Association, L. O. O. F., met at Warren to celebrate the 80th anniversary of Odd Fellowship in America. Special excursion trains were run from various sections of the district and the weather being fine for such a meeting the attendance was unusually large. A street parade immediately after dinner opened the exercises of the day and was participated in by subordinate lodge members, encampments, cantons, patriarchs militant, Rebekah ladies in carriages, and a number of bands. A business session of the officers and delegates and a public meeting were held in the afternoon, and in the evening the subordinate lodge degree work was exemplified by the degree staff of Tuna Lodge, of Bradford, and the Rebekah degree by Sheffield Rebekah lodge. The next meeting will be held at Brookville April 26th, 1900.

A trade paper says: Advertisers are prone to fall into the error of considering one newspaper's rates high because an inch costs a dollar, and another's low for the reason that an inch can be bought for 25 cents. As a matter of fact, the former may be the low rate and the latter the high one. A cheap pair of shoes very frequently proves to be dear at the price, and a newspaper that puts a low value on its space is quite certain to get every cent it is worth—and more.

The town council of Greensburg, Pa., adopted an ordinance last week providing that every tramp, suspicious character, or person who has no known or visible means of support shall be arrested on sight and put to work on the streets for a period of not less than thirty days nor more than six months. A ball and chain will be attached whenever "Weary Waggles" gets obstreperous. After ten days the sentence can be shortened on account of good behavior.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cts., guaranteed, at H. A. Stoke's Drug Store.

Scientific Adjustment of Glasses.

Fitting glasses is a science. The common belief that everybody can fit glasses has been the cause of irreparable damage to all those whose eye troubles were out of the ordinary line, thus requiring a skillful and scientific examination, which can be had only at the hands of a specialist who has made the diseases of eyes a life study.

Dr. Sadler, of Pittsburg, the most eminent specialist for diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat will be at Bolnap Hotel, Reynoldsville, Friday and Saturday, May 5th and 6th. The reputation he enjoys guarantees to all those afflicted with diseases of the above mentioned organs, the most thorough scientific treatment possible.

Dr. Sadler will visit Brookville Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, May 8, 9 and 10; Punxsutawney Thursday, Friday and Saturday, May 11, 12 and 13.

Caution Notice.

The United States Court of Appeals decided on April 4th, 1899, that every manufacturer, seller or user of incandescent gas lights other than the Welsbach, in view of the decision, is an infringer. All infringers will be proceeded against at once. We caution the public against the purchase of any incandescent mantle other than that made and sold by
