GUTTA-PERCHA SCARCE.

Difficult to Get Enough for a Pacific Cable.

In connection with the Pacific cable a very interesting question arises, says the Engineering Magazine, From where is the gutta-percha for this gigantic cable to come? Every whisper of the construction of a transpacifie line sends the gutta-percha market | at Singapore up by leaps and bounds. The ruling price of the gum is the highest that has ever obtained. It is stated, on what authority it is hard to say, that the visible supply of gutta-percha is insufficient for the task, and that if this cable is laid it will be the last-the last with a gutta-percha insulation at least.

While this pessimism on the part of the gutta-percha producers savors somewhat of a desire to stiffen the market, there is yet a sufficiently reasonable foundation for it in the wanton destruction of the gutta-percha forests, it will be interesting to see the outcome of the situation. If the United States acquires an island in the Carolines the building of the cable line seems possible, though expensive. If they do not find a landing place the operation of the cable seems to require a prohibitively costly plant. And meanwhile there is the question of the disappearing gutta-percha tree.

Gen. A. S. Klimball, Depot Quarter Master of the U. S. Army in New York City, has sent to Lyman McCarty, As-sistant General Passenger Agent of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad in New York, a letter of thanks for the prompt movement of troops that were ticket-ed over the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad during the past year. He says that many of these movements were made on short notice and his department had too frequently to rely upon insufficient too frequently to rely upon insufficient and sometimes inaccurate data. He realized that under such circumstances the company was placed in an embarrassing position and the extraordinary efforts made by the line to give satis-faction in every respect merited and received his fuffest appreciation.

AMERICAN LOCOMOTIVES.

Erglish Workmen Have Many Objection to Their Introduction.

English workmen do not view with complacency the introduction of the American locomotives on the Midland railway. They are not only an affront to their national pride, but they see in them a positive menace to the engineers' trades union, which has been one of the most powerful in all Europe. The American locomotive is placed on the rails in Great Britain at a cost of from 20 to 30 per cent less than the British makers can produce the same sort of machine. So the working of the American locomotives is watched with much more than ordinary interest by men on both sides of the ocean. If the machines can be made thoroughly adapted to British requirements at such a saving of cost to the British railway companies, it means that the British maker must produce them at a like cost or else be thrown out of the market. That means lower wages to the British workman, and against that he will fight with all his characteristic obstinacy, as he has to the introduction of labor saving machinery. Even the long drawn out and disastrous strike which made possible the introduction of the American locomotive, has not taught them the whole of their lesson. There is even now a proposition on foot that the union of locomotive here you must tell them it will take at drivers shall adopt a rule prohibiting members from handling an American made locomotive, when the engineers' union shall reach the conclusion if it does, that the introduction of the

Imparting a Dressy Effect.

These fashionable accessories im-part a dressy effect to otherwise plain waists, and lend just that charm of variety that is essential to style and necessary where the wardrobe is lim-ited. No. 1 shows a plastron vest with pointed revers that reach to the waist line. The fancy stock collar is shaped in one piece and rises to points in the back, where the closing is made in centre. The plastron, yest and collar are made of white satin, over-laid with all-over cream point de Venise lace. The collar has a narrow edging of lace and is lined with satin. The revers are of finely tucked satin, the tucks be-ing made in the material before the pattern is laid on, and the edges are finished with insertion and lace edging used to interline each portion, the vest and revers having a lining of white

No. 2 shows a chemisette extending to the bust with short revers and pointed tie ends. White corded taffeta is the material chosen, lace and inser-
