Mrs. L. F. Baum stepped on a nail while walking up Main street several days ago and she now has a very sore foot. Some person had opened a box and carelessly left the lid on the sidewalk with the nails in it and Mrs. Baum accidentally stepped on one of the nails. Great care should be taken by merchants who open goods on the sidewalks in front of their stores not to leave lids lying around with nails in them.

Some one started the report in Reynoldsville yesterday that a family was moving from the small-pox district of Clearfield town to this place. One night last week a young man was driving down street with his "Sunday girl" in a buggy and in attempting to pass another rig his horse became contrary and would not turn out quick enough and the buggies collided, but the collision was not sufficient to stop the horse and it continued on until the buggy was upset in Tapper's livery stable. When the buggy upset the young lady fell into the young man's arms and was thus saved from serious injury. It was almost a miracle that the young people were not badly injured. The buggies needed repairing.

Experience of Six Young Men. Six young men, togged out in their best Sunday clothes, their faces beaming with happiness and their souls filled with pleasant expectancy of a day's outing, left this place Sunday morning with a nice turnout for a drive to Brookwayville, but when they returned home at 4:00 A. M. Monday they were not so jovial as when they sallied forth on the previous morning, and they were not so particular about the proper adjustment of their wearing apparel. On the return trip the young men drove via DuBois and stopped in that hamlet a few hours to hear the frogs croak in the surrounding swamps. Growing weary of that town they started for home, but were only two miles out of DuBois when the horses, in their over-anxiety to get home, broke the double-tree of the hack. This left the party in a predicament. Finally it was decided that two of the party should mount the horses and ride back to DuBois and get a new double-tree. The other four tried to get comfortable positions in the hack and sleep until the relief came with the new double-tree, but their slumbers were more or less disturbed for various reasons. The relief committee returned without the double-tree hoped for and another council was held. After searching through several barnyards, the young men found wire used for baling hay and with that they managed to patch up the old double-tree so that they were able to get home without walking. Don't mention it to any person and we will tell you who the young men were that had the mishap: Will Herpel, Henry Priestor, Harry McEntire, Arthur Black, and Harry Herpel.
