THE USEFUL CAMEL.

Something About the Abstinent of This Remarkable Animal.

There are many fables told about the camel; riding him is supposed to make people seasick; he has the reputation of being very vicious; he is supposed to have several stomachs and to go for weeks without water as a matter of choice. I can only say that in nearly four years of experience I have never met with a case of seasickness or heard of it; neither have I known a really vicious camel, except when they are in a state called by the Arabs "saim," which means "fasting," and corresponds to the "rutting" period in stags. As regards the camel's stomach, I believe it is identical the same as that of any other ruminant, or that, at any rate, there is no formation of stomachs which would enable him to do without water. His abstinent is merely the result of training, and it is a fallacy to suppose that he is better without water or can work as well. In the camel corps we watered our camels every second day in the summer, every third day in the winter, giving them their fill of water morning and evening on those days; but if in the summer we expected a long desert march without water, we trained them beforehand by only watering every third day, but I never found that this improved their condition. The Arabs keep their camels longer without water, it is true, but then they travel slower and their animals are grazed on soft food, containing a certain amount of moisture; this lowers their condition and makes them inferior to a corn-fed camel when hard work and long fast journeys have to be done. We always found that if we put a grass-fed camel alongside of ours it failed in work and endurance; if corn-fed it cried out for water as soon and sooner than ours did. I say "cried out" because a camel when it wants water moans continually, and there is no more painful sound at night in the desert than the ceaseless moaning of thirsty camels.—Corahill Magazine.

From Mrs. Sunter to Mrs. Pinkham.

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 76,244]
"One year ago last June three doctors gave me up to die, and as I had at different times used your Vegetable Compound with good results, I had too much faith in it to die until I had tried it again. I was apparently an invalid, was confined to my bed for ten weeks. (I believe my trouble was ulceration of womb)."

"After taking four bottles of the Compound and using some of the Liver Pills and Sanative Wash, at the end of two months I had greatly improved and weighed 155 pounds, when I never before weighed over 135. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the best medicine I ever used, and I recommend it to all my friends."—Mrs. ANNA EVA GUNTER, HIGGINSVILLE, MO.

Mrs. Barnhart Enjoys Life Once More.
"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I had been sick ever since my marriage, seven years ago; have given birth to four children, and had two miscarriages. I had falling of womb, leucorrhoea, pains in back and legs; dyspepsia and a nervous trembling of the stomach. Now I have none of these troubles and can enjoy my life. Your medicine has worked wonders for me."—Mrs. S. BARNHART, NEW CASTLE, PA.

A FRENCH SAILOR YARN.

The Most Remarkable Experience of a Sea Captain.
Mr. Clark Russell of England is the best-known teller of sea-tales at the present day, and he certainly relates some marvellous adventures. But he will have to look to his laurels. Alphonse Allais of Paris, in a recent issue of Le Journal, gives the remarkable experience of a French sea captain, whom he allows to relate his own story. Since he set forth on his voyage from our own New England capital, which incontestably exists, and can be proved to be still in its place, perhaps we may accept his words as truth.

"Captain of the three-master Lucien Guity," he begins, "I set sail from Boston, January 28, with an exclusive cargo of varnish. What use people could possibly find for six thousand barrels of varnish I do not know—and besides, that has nothing to do with this story."

"The second of February, in the early morning, we were assailed by a frightful tempest. Waves as high as houses beat against my poor vessel, which strained and groaned threateningly. We could not endure much more, yet the sky showed no promise of change. We were in imminent danger; every shock increased our peril; it was impossible to survive such violence if it continued. What should we do?"

"Pour oil upon the sea! Certainly, we thought of it; but, unfortunately, we had aboard only a litre of olive oil, destined for the mayonnaise dressing of an occasional salad."

"Suddenly my second officer was struck with an inspiration of genius. 'Suppose,' cried he, 'we should pour our varnish! Varnish is much like oil.'"

"At that moment the hurricane redoubled its fury; truly we appeared to be lost. 'Pour on the varnish!' I commanded."

"The result was stupefying. At the first barrel emptied over to starboard the waves were visibly calmed upon that side; the second, poured to larboard, achieved a like success."

"Whereupon a sort of frenzy took possession of the entire crew, myself the foremost. Every one has heard of such a thing as a collective hallucination; this was collective frenzy, a delirium of wild exertion! We poured; we continued to pour. When evening fell, we had poured overboard all our cargo of varnish—all! And the effect! Around us, at a distance, the storm raged more and more madly; but about the ship, in a circumference of at least a quarter of a mile, reigned the most tranquil of calms. That, however, was nothing."

"The morning of the next day I leave you to guess our stupefaction when we saw—what? The varnish, having hardened during the night, covered the sea with a thickish crust that glistened with an irrefragable polish! The French three-master Lucien Guity seemed the centre of an immense mirror of amber, upon which, with fairy-like effect, sparkled the beams of the rising sun!"

Too Spanish for Her.
An army nurse but lately returned from Cuba to Washington declares that never again will she go to a country whose language she cannot understand. It was before hostilities had come to a definite end that she was startled one day by the unexpected visit of her Cuban laundress. The woman was intensely excited. Anxiously sat on her brow and sorrow dwelt in her eyes. She gesticulated and talked. The nurse knew not a word of what she said, but the pantomime filled her with terror. The Cuban's hands seemed to speak of an attack on the hospital, of wounded men butchered and nurses cut to ribbons. The nurse was frantic. She must know the worst. In the hospital was an officer very ill with typhoid fever. She knew he understood Spanish. Only in a matter of life and death would she disturb him, but this was obviously a matter of life or death. She led the Cuban woman to the bedside and there the story was repeated. The officer listened intently. The nurse held her breath. The Cuban ceased. The sick man turned his head on the pillows.

"She says," he whispered feebly, "she says the stripes in your pink shirt waist have run and she does not know what to do with it."

That same nurse confesses to having been desperately homesick down in Cuba.

"It gave me the blues," she said, "not to make even the children understand me, and one day, one indigo day, a great black sleek cat walked into my room. I was so glad to find something that could understand me. 'Kitty, kitty, kitty!' I said. The cat didn't turn its head."

"Pussy, pussy!" I said. The cat took no notice. The cat, the very cat, spoke Spanish. It was more than I could bear. I couldn't even call a cat."—Washington Post.

Queer Insurance Cases.
There is one sadly dramatic history associated with an insurance ticket. A gentleman purchased one prior to starting on a journey, and, as is frequently done, posted it home to his wife from the departure station. The ticket was delivered simultaneously with an intimation from the railway company announcing that he had lost his life in a railway accident.

In the case of the Tay Bridge disaster, an insurance ticket was discovered upon the body of one of the victims. The ticket had been reduced to absolute pulp by the action of the sea water, but under a microscope the printing could still be traced. The company thereupon admitted the claim and duly paid over the amount of the insurance money.—Railway Magazine.

Tame Butterfly for Pets.

Women have had all kinds of pets from time immemorial, but perhaps the strangest of all fancies in this direction is the latest news which comes to us from Paris that two ladies have succeeded in taming dozens of butterflies. These little insects eat from their mistress's hands, alight on them and show no fear of any kind. They are certainly pretty pets, and well become the airy, fluttering sweetness of the typical woman's nature. The summer girl during the dull days of the week, from Monday morning until Saturday noon, may in this new fad find a means of diversion, taming her butterflies in preparation to a series of fetching poses with which to captivate susceptible man upon his arrival at the summer hotel for Sunday.

An Indian Gift.

Queen Victoria was recently presented with $100 by an Indian chief, named Shakes, of British Columbia. Chief Shakes belongs to the Kittimat tribe, and owns a fishing privilege below the falls of a stream near Lowe Inlet. Lately he sold 60,000 fish, for which he received $5,000, and conceived the idea of sending a gift to his queen. The money was forwarded through the Indian agent, who in return received from Queen Victoria a letter for the chief, thanking him and asking him to accept a steel engraving of herself, handsomely framed, and two plaits of sheep's wool.—Keystone.

How Old She Looks

Poor clothes cannot make you look old. Even pale cheeks won't do it. Your household cares may be heavy and disappointments may be deep, but they cannot make you look old. One thing does it and never fails. It is impossible to look young with the color of seventy years in your hair.

Ager's Hair Vigor

permanently postpones the tell-tale signs of age. Used according to directions it gradually brings back the color of youth. At fifty your hair may look as it did at fifteen. It thickens the hair also; stops it from falling out; and cleanses the scalp from dandruff. Shall we send you our book on the Hair and its Diseases?

The Best Advice Free. If you do not obtain all the benefits you expect from Ager's Hair Vigor, write the doctor about it. Probably there is some difficulty with your case, which may be easily removed. Address: L.S. J. C. AGER, Lowell, Mass.

REVIEW OF TRADE.

Increase in the Price of Finished Iron Products. Decrease in Wheat Yield.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade reports as follows for last week: It is one of the frequent paradoxes of business that the one thing which now makes prices rise is the only thing that clouds the future. The rise in iron and wheat is because scarcity is feared, but the scarcity, if prolonged and real, would much impair prosperity. In wheat it does not seem to be real, nor in iron lasting, and meanwhile other elements of prosperity continue potent. It is a thing in money markets that exports of gold have caused no apprehension because recognized as mere borrowing by foreign bankers, the May return of foreign commerce showing exports $23,000,000 larger than imports, in spite of a decrease of 50 cents in the export price of wheat, and a large increase in imports. In eleven months the excess of merchandise exports has been $455,000,000, and the bankers estimate that $260,000,000 worth of securities have been returned from Europe, with so few in recent months that the amount remaining to be disclosed is probably small.

The scarcity of iron is real, in spite of the greatest production ever known in this or any other country, 238,062 tons weekly June 1, against 250,000 tons May 1. For stocks were reduced 70,902 tons in May, indicating a consumption of 1,190,866 tons, against 1,000,000 tons per month last year, the greatest ever known. Consuming demand does not seem to diminish, and appears greater because it falls upon works crowded for months ahead with contracts at lower prices, but some of it is speculative and would cease with prospects of lower prices.

With more furnaces going into blast, ten last month, production will overtake the demand after a time, and the largest buyers of finished products for implements and car works and railroads are taking nothing to cover next year's needs. Pig has been irregularly strong at the East and at Chicago, and unchanged at Pittsburgh, while finished products average 2 1/2 per cent higher, plates, bars, pipe and rails sharing the advance, with demand for structural forms and sheets beyond the capacity of works. Even in rails a 2 per cent discount on quick payments is stopped.

Woolens gained a little further advance in clay worsted and indigo blues, with generally strong demand and works well engaged ahead. But dealers face the stubborn fact that consumers accustomed to cheap goods make every advance difficult and mills appear to be buying very little in markets which are counting largely on a rise in wool. Sales, mostly between traders, have been in two weeks 15,347,700 pounds, including 13,587,300 pounds domestic, but until speculation halts will indicate nothing as to consumption, for is anything known of the stocks actually held by mills.

When reports by government seem to mean just what anybody wants them to mean, but the produce exchange interpretation of the June report, 568,000,000 bushels, means no great decrease in yield than may be beneficial, both to growers and consumers. With probable additions to stock from the last crop it would provide for exports of nearly 200,000,000 bushels, and foreign prospects, though by no means wholly cheering, scarcely warrant expectation of a demand as large. The price has risen 3c, but much prudence is shown, for western receipts of 10,202,809 bushels in two weeks, against 2,684,521 bushels last year, discredit recent crop reports, and foreign exports, 4,582,315 bushels last year, do not indicate great needs abroad. Corn exports are better sustained than wheat, 5,812,959 bushels in two weeks, against 7,797,241 bushels last year, and the price has been steady.

TO CLEAN MATTING.

To make soiled matting look fresh and bright prepare a pailful of warm water with a handful of salt and four tablespoonfuls of Ivory Soap shavings dissolved in it. With a clean cloth squeezed out of the mixture, wipe every breadth of the matting, rubbing soiled spots until they disappear.

A WORD OF WARNING.—There are many w44e soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the Ivory," they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeiters, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

WHERE KIPLING GETS HINTS.

Through Way in Which He Explored a Locomotive Shop.

"Kipling's methods of absorbing detail are very curious and interesting," said Mr. Lyman D. Bentley to a New Orleans Times-Democrat man. "Some years ago, while he was visiting the locomotive shops at New Haven, he met a skilled workman named Cressy and immediately proceeded to pump him about engine building. Cressy did not fully appreciate the honor that was paid him, but he was flattered by the novelist's interest, and the two went all over a big eight-wheel express flier that was standing in the yard. Kipling said he had lots of books on the subject, but they didn't tell him the things he wished to know. What he wanted was a real engineer or builder's idea of the machine, and he was particularly eager to learn the colloquial names of the parts. He took no notes, but about a month later he was in New Haven again and hunted up the mechanic. 'Look here, Cressy,' he said, producing a rough sketch on a card of one of the valves of the brake gear, 'I wish you'd tell me again just how this thing works.' Cressy explained, and Kipling laughed delightedly. 'I've got it now!' he exclaimed. 'I mention the incident because it seems to throw some light on his astonishing command of technicalities.'"

Use for Volcano Dust.

Volcano dust carried by the wind from the Puy mountains in Auvergne enriches the soil of Limagne with phosphoric acid and potash. According to Mr. Nicols, inspector general of mines in France, it is owing to this natural fertilizer that the soil is so rich. A field at Gerzat, Clarmont-Ferrand, has yielded a fine crop of hemp eighteen years running without any other manure.

An Excellent Combination.

The pleasant method and beneficial effects of the well known remedy, SYRUP OF FIGS, manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO., illustrate the value of obtaining the liquid laxative principles of plants known to be medicinal, laxative and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative, cleansing the system effectually, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers gently yet promptly and enabling one to overcome habitual constipation permanently. Its perfect freedom from every objectionable quality and substance, and its acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels, without weakening or irritating them, make it the ideal laxative.

In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal qualities of the remedy are obtained from senna and other aromatic plants, by a method known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only. In order to get its beneficial effects and to avoid imitations, please remember the full name of the Company printed on the front of every package. CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. LOUISVILLE, KY.
