

Lord Kelvin at the Lecture Table.

It is, perhaps, at the lecture table that Lord Kelvin displays most of his characteristics. In the two lectures per week which he delivers to the Junior class at Glasgow university he contrives to touch on most of the important points of his subject, passing from one to the other with a rapidity bewildering to the untrained student who prefers the beaten track.

Eggs, jellies, shoemaker's wax, treacle, all sorts of stuff, are used to illustrate the lectures, and homely experiments are recommended to the student, even the humble teaspoon, "so ill adapted to the purpose for which it is intended," being pressed into the service. In the famous egg experiment he shows how Columbus might have gained his object without breaking the egg. When boiled and set spinning on a table, the egg rises and spins on its end.

Unboiled eggs, owing to the fluidity of the interior, do not rise, but if set spinning and then suddenly stopped and immediately released, they continue their motion for a little time. Once, the result of a student's plot, raw eggs were substituted for the boiled ones, but science could discriminate and the verdict was unhesitatingly given, "None of them boiled."—Cassler's.

A Prophetic Dream.

The following prophetic dream is related by the president of a theological seminary. It had been the custom of one of the professors to invite all the students, with members of the faculty, to dinner at a hotel on the annual Thanksgiving day. On the morning of that day the wife of this professor suddenly fell dead in her dressing room at 8 o'clock.

That morning at 7 o'clock one of the students woke up from a bad dream. He had dreamed that he sat down with the usual company at the Thanksgiving dinner and that immediately one of his fellow students rose in his place, saying that it was his painful duty to announce to the company that the wife of their host had suddenly died at 8 o'clock that morning.

This dream, however, he had instantly banished from his mind as an uncanny probability, and had thought no more about it. But on going to the dinner and taking his seat with the company he was unspeakably amazed to see the student seen in the dream rise and to hear him make the announcement made in the dream.—Kansas City Times.

King of Ethiopia and the Toys.

Formerly very little sufficed to entertain Menelik, and it is even related that the first sugar loaf which was presented to him caused him ecstasies of pleasure and that he and his consort were discovered with that blessed product of civilization between them, licking it vigorously. But those good times are past. Europeans have brought him so many toys that he has become critical. When a new traveler is announced, he awaits with impatience the customary present, trying to find out beforehand whether it is something new, in which case the audience is speedily granted. He is much interested in all machinery, which, including watches, he invariably takes to pieces. Sometimes he deigns to be present at the unpacking of the traveler's boxes and to appropriate any little object that pleases him. Such informal examinations amuse him vastly. "If I had not been a king," he remarks at times, "I should like to have been a custom house officer."—Vicomte de Poncin in Nineteenth Century.

Just What Was Wanted.

It is related of a Hibernian parade in Chicopee that one of the officers of the day telephoned an order to a Holyoke stable for 15 white horses for the use of marshals, aids, etc. The livermen filled the order, but it somewhat taxed their resources to find so many white horses. Judge of their surprise a day before the parade to receive an order for five more white horses.

The livermen deal quite extensively in horses and had but that day received a consignment of young and untried animals. Consequently they were doubtful about sending any of them to take part in the parade. They sent word to Chicopee that it would be impossible to fill the second order, as they had "nothing but green horses on hand."

Instantly back came word, "We'll take the green horses—all you've got."—Springfield Homestead.

Every One's Pay Day in China.

The Chinese have only one holiday in the year, and that is at the new year, which date is movable, but generally falls some time in February. This is the time they square up everything and pay off all their debts. Any one not being able to pay all his accounts and to start the new year with a clean sheet is posted as a defaulter and is looked upon with suspicion by every one. It is considered a family disgrace not to pay one up at that time.—Key-stone.

His Luck of Teat.

"It's no use!" exclaimed Willie Washington. "I can never learn to say the right thing at the right time. I told Miss Silmins that her eyes shone on me like the stars above." "That's old, but pretty," answered Miss Cayenne. "Yes, but she is one of those remarkably tall girls who resent any reference to their height."—Washington Star.

Why Women Don't Stammer.

"Persons who stammer," said the pseudo scientific boarder, "do so because they think faster than they can talk." "Is that the reason," asked the savage bachelor, "that we so seldom meet a woman who stammers?"—Indianapolis Journal.
