Sir C. Warren's Bath.

There is something extremely English in the story of Sir Charles Warren "doing trimbics," as Bouncer expressed it, in the open air on the bat-tlefield of Vaal Kranz. Sir Charles, under no circumstances, intermits his morning bath. On the occasion of Buller's last effort to relieve Ladysmith Bir Charles found it impossible to leave his post, so when day broke on the battlefield he ordered his servant to bring his bath with sponge and towel, and then and there, in the open sir, Sir Charles Warren, commanding the Fifth division, proceeded to take bath, sublimely indifferent to the fire of the enemy. The enemy were, perhaps, too much astonished at the British eccentricity of bathing at all. ly public fashion, to attempt any viointerruption.— London Daily tion to the summer wardrobe, giving an up-to-date and picturesque touch to any number of gowns with which it may be worn. This one, called the Trianon, from Harper's Bazar, is one of the newest models. Its folds are especially designed to give a perfect shape, and it is cut with narrow stole ends in front, as a foundation for the ruffles that ornament the front. Mousseline de soie, chiffon, mull or point d'esprit are suitable materials

New York City (Special).—Now that the fichu effects on gowns have become so fashionable, a separate one will be found a most useful addition with sating to match. The hat is in pale violet gauze, so the only other trimming beyond the little flounces is a spray of flowers and foliage executed in black satin, and showing here and there a dewdrop of Rhine crystal, very small, trembling on petal and leaf.

Tailor-Made Taffetas.

The tailor-made taffeta is as much of a success for a summer gown as the same cloth frock which the tailors out for winter wear. Tailor stitching is conspicuous here, and the whole garment shows the military cut and finish which delights us in our heavy "tailor-mades." Other silks, foulards, Indias, Louisine, surah, etcetera, are not used for the purpose, but the "failor-made" taffeta has unmistakable chic and style stamped upon the garment.

Gossamer Tea Gowns Silk muslin with brocaded boleros is employed for tea gowns made up with bands of fur, and a great many of them are made as princess dresses, with the fashionable cluny or maltese insertions let in from the neck to the feet. Coats of silver and jet paillettes are supplemented for tea gowns by gossamer underdresses and have lightcolored sashes round the waist. More blue is employed for these dresses than any other color.

Low Lying Hats For Summer Wear. The chic summer hats lie broad and low over the brow of the pretty young girl. They are not what you would call broad-brimmed affairs, but the crown opening is so wide and low that it accommodates the entire head and almost rests upon the top of the ears. The boat-shape and endless modifica-tion of low toques are the choice shapes, and they are smartly trimmed with flowers and foliage.

for its development, with self material a trimming for silk waists, sewed on top and bottom, and by the lower edge design. being cut in scallops. This fichu can be worn just simply pinned at the bust as here shown, or it can be knotted at the bust and allowed to hang loose. It can also be crossed and fastened with a bow each side at the waist line; or, it can be crossed on the bust, with the ends taken around and fastened at the waist in the back. Infinite variety may be obtained by a little tasteful variation in its arrangement and the judicious use of a few ribbon bows or rosettes.

Two Ways of Using Lace.

This is another season of lace, and one of the prattiest methods of emthin waists.

The charming bolero shown in the large engraving is of heavy white lace done in a bow knot design and scolloped around the edge. Worn over a French organdie of pink and white this little bolero has a very dainty effect. Through the edges of the lace are run two rows of narrow black velvet ribbon, making a big bow where the two sides meet.

The other illustration shows the popular lace revere which extends to a square collar at the back. This is, of course, Russian lace, and is worn with a dress of mauve crepe de chine or softcashmere. A tucked front and collar of white chiffon lends a dainty touch to this toilette.

Five Tucks 'Round the Hem. Young girls wear foulards with skirts made comparatively plain com-pared with the elaborate models worn by older women. Straight skirts cut quite full, especially in the back breadths, clothe the slender, girlish figure. The hem of the skirt is covered with five tacks in a group, each measuring either an inch in width, or half an inch, as preferred. Five is the canonical number for "hem tucks," as an uneven number presents a neater finish than the even

Now that milady's early summer gown is un fait accompli she devotes her time and thought to the midsummer ones, so as to be prepared for much warmer weather. A more charming model for a wash gown could hardly be found than this pretty sketch from Har-per's Bazar. It combines both originality and unusualness of design with extreme smartness of mode.

White-ground percale with dark blue polks dots is the material em-ployed here, and the effective manner of using the embroidery inserting, as ploying this ever-favorite material is well as its decorative points, make it in lace revers, collars and boleros on attractive in the extreme. TRADE REVIEW.

Business Waits for the Settlement of the Presidential Election-Iron Prices Falling.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s "Weekly Review of Trade" says: The adjournment of Congress, the progress toward peace in South Africa, and the rapid adjustment of prices to a more natural level, all tend to bring nearer the day of greater activity. But that progress has not been rapid and the yielding of prices affects many only as a reaction, cutting off part of the profits supposed to have been secured. The impression grows that no extensive changes in business are probable until after the presidential election, and the possibility of trouble in China has as definite an influence on American affairs as any change in South Africa. The unsettled labor controversies operate strongly to limit expansion of domestic business. Yet the volume of business is so large that a few months of waiting could not excite any appre-hension. It is but a few days since an hension. It is but a few days since an eminent iron master overwhelmed doubts by the positive declaration that any decline in the price of iron this year was impossible. Yet anthracite No. 1 has declined $4.25 per ton, and this week the Bessemer association has reduced its price at Pittsburg $4.90 per ton, and the Southern makers $2 per ton. The decline in ratio of prices of pig iron from 112.7 in January to 93.6 this week, and in the finished products from 98.05 to 80.01 does not show the entire to 80.01 does not show the entire change, as the Steel and Wire Company's guarantee of prices in case of not then shipped is in effect a concession. A few large contracts are reported, but the new business is so small that many works are stopping or reducing force. The rise of 21/2c in wheat, attribforce. The rise of 2½c in wheat, attributed to injuries threatening a short movement next fall, affected stocks also somewhat. Exports do not materially change, having been for the first week of June from Atlantic ports, including flour 2.855,251 bushels, against 1.849.373 last year from Pacific ports, 591,015 bushels, against 623,400 last year, and of corn 2, 793.869 bushels, against 2,804,009 last year. Receipts of both grains have fallen considerably below those of last year, though not as yet enough to indicate a sense of scarcity in interior supplies. Failures for the week have been 200 in the United States against 159 last year and 19 in Canada against 10 last year.

known through the work of his pen in the field of letters, he is not without peculiar gifts which specially qualify him for participation in public affairs. He began his career as political editor and leader man on a Nottingham paper. Then he became a London journalist, and was a keen student of politics and parliamentary activity for some years, trumpeting his views on political economy and legislation through the columns of St. James Gazette, the National Observer, the British Weekly and the Speaker. He wrote his first book in 1887, and that was not a novel, but a satire on Lon-don life, entitled "Better Dead." The creator of "The Little Minister" is not a tyro in politics. Besides, he is said to be very popular with the university commons. Of late Mr. Barrie's reputation has been considerably enhanced by his two recent creations, "Sentimental Tommy" and "Tommy and Grizzell."

From "Robinson Crusoe:" "My beard I had once suffered to grow until it was about a quarter of a yard long, but as I had both seissors and razors sufficient, I had cut it pretty short, except what grew on my upper lip, which I had trimmed into a large pair of Mohammedan whiskers, such as I had seen worn by some Turks at Sallee, for the Moors did not wear such, though the Turks did; of the mustachios, or whiskers, I will not say they were long enough to hang my hat upon them, but they were of a length and shape monstrous enough, and such as in England would have passed for frightful." From Wilson's "History and Antiquities of the Dissenting Churches:" "Joseph Jacob, an inde-pendent preacher at Turner's hall, Philpot Lane (in) the beginning of the last century, made a church of his own. He passed an order obliging the whole of the congregation to stand during the time of singing. This, though by no means an uncommon thing in the present day, was then looked upon as a great novelty. In this reformed church all periwigs were discarded, the men members wore whiskers upon their upper lips, in which Mr. Jacob set them an example." From "Hunt-er's Travels in 1792:" "They (the Hungarians) shave their beards, except the upper lip, which is generally adorned
