White Man Turned Yellow.

Great consternation was felt by the friends of M. A. Hogarty, of Lexington, Ky., when they saw he was turning yellow. His skin slowly changed color, also his eyes, and he suffered terribly. His malady was yellow jaundice. He was treated by the best doctors, but without benefit. Then he was advised to try Electric Bitters, the wonderful stomach and liver remedy, and he writes: "After taking two bottles I was wholly cured." A trial proves its matchless merit for all stomach, liver and kidney troubles. Only 50c. Sold by H. Alex. Stoke, druggist.

J. J. SUTTER.

A LUNATIC'S IMITATION.

It Lacked Pinish and Got Himself

Paris correspondent tells an inter esting story of how a shop thief was captured recently at the Bon Marche in circumstances that in all probability are unique. One of the private detect ives in the pay of the establishment noticed a man who, with the most barefaced effrontery, was appropriat-ing articles of every description. The individual indeed seemed to make little or no attempt to keep his operations secret. He simply walked from counter to counter and filled his pockets with whatever attracted his fancy.

In spite of the strangeness of the man's proceedings there was nothing to be done but to have him arrested, and he was given into custody. His indignation was extreme. He protested that it was most unjust that he should be interfered with in this way when other people who were behaving in exthe same manner were left unmolested, and he pointed to a stout gentleman of most respectable appearance who he asserted had been laying his hands on all sorts of goods without resorting to the formality of paying for them.

The policeman to whom he had been given in charge had been accustomed to listening to unconvincing explanations and took his prisoner to the station. A few minutes later the stout gentleman, also in the care of a police man, arrived at the same destination. The detective, whose curiosity had been aroused, had watched the personage and had found it to be true that he was perpetrating theft after theft with the utmost dexterity.

After a short investigation he was recognized to be an expert and notorious shoplifter, whereas the prisoner first arrested proved to be a lunation but recently discharged from an asylum, whose mania took the form of imitating any person who might happen to strike him. The professional thief was beside himself with rage at what he described as the bad luck of getting into trouble through the vagaries of a madman.

GLASS BULB BOMBS.

Scared the Man Who Used Them, but

"Of all the outlandish weapons ever employed in a fight," said a business man of the south side, "I think I brought the most fantastic on record into play one night last week. My family is away on a visit at present, and I am keeping bachelor hall out at the house. On the night to which I refer I was aroused at about 5 a. m. by a noise somewhere in the region of the dining room, and, thinking I had shut up the dog there, I jumped up very foolishly and came down stairs in my nightelothes without so much as a pocketknife. "When I opened the dining room door, I was startled to see a big, rough looking man bending over the side board at the far end of the room, and after we had stood there en tableau for a moment the fellow made a rush at ne. I leaned back into the hall an glared around for a weapon. On a table near by were a dozen incandescent light bulbs, which I had brought home to replace some that had burned out. and purely by instinct I grabbed one of them and threw it at the burglar. It hit the door casing close to his head and, to my amazement, exploded with a noise like a young lyddite shell.

"I suppose it was a still greater surprise to the other fellow, for he let out a yell and broke for the rear, followed by a rapid fire bombardment of 16 candle power incandescents, which I continued to chuck at him as long as he remained in range. They smashed against the furniture with a series of crashes that alarmed the whole neighborhood, and I have been gathering up fragments of broken glass ever since.

"The burglar must have thought I was chasing him with hand grenades. It was the first time I ever knew incandescents made such a row when they broke. An electrician tells me it is caused by the air rushing into the vacuum."-New Orleans Times-Demo-

His Useless Half Dime.

"It isn't safe to start out without a pocketful of pennies any more," re-marked a member of the house the other day. "Yet I can remember that when I came down into this section of the country in army blue in 1863 a 5 cent piece was very small potatoes. We were camped awhile out there in Virginia, and my headquarters were in the big plantation home. A son of the house and myself became good friends, although he was 5 and I nearly 35. One day in lieu of the candy which I had forgotten to bring him from the nearby town I gave him a silver half dime. I had forgotten all about the incident, when some two weeks later he came into my room and, opening his hand, held out to me on his little pink palm the silver piece I had given him. 'Heah, Mr. Captain, you can have it back,' he said plaintively. 'It won't buy nuffin.'"—Washington Star.

"Where is my folding pipe?"
"I don't know, James, but the folding matches are on the folding mantele."-Chicago Record.

After a Battle,

In the first aid that is rendered on the field after a battle nothing is attempted beyond the arrest of hemorrhage, the application of temporary splints for fractures and antiseptic dressing. There is no washing or exploration of wounds. The clothes are merely slit up with scissors, not removed, thus insuring protection to the patient's body and saving unnecessary The sergeant in charge disturbances. of the collection station has a field companion, a water bottle and a small reserve of bandages and first dressings in his care to replenish the sur gical haversacks with which the bear ers are supplied.

Triangular bandages are chiefly used on the battlefield, made from a 38 inch square of linen or calico, cut diagonally into halves. Almost anything that comes to hand may be used as improvised splints-sticks, telegraph wire bark of trees, straw, rifles, bayonets, lances and so on. The splint, if necessary, is padded with straw or leaves or grass and is fastened with straps torn from the soldier's equipment or with strips of a shirt, securely bound with the triangular bandage. Bound up with the ride splint, a wounded man is made so secure that he can hardly move a muscle. One leg is firmly bound to the rifle, and the ankles are tied together, so that the injured limb is almost as rigid as the rifle at its side.—London Standard.

A Cheerful Liar.

"I have followed trout streams ever since I was a boy," said a Providence erank, "and have tried to solve for many years the cause of the apparent decrease in brook trout. Recently I think I discovered the cause of the extermination. I was fishing along a brook near Oakland Beach, R. I., when I saw a large snake with a half masticated trout in its mouth. The action of the snake interested me, and, standing quiet. I studied the snake closely. "On the end of the snake's tail was a sharp bony growth shaped like a book. After a few moments my watching was rewarded by seeing the snake glide over to some bushes growing along the bank and catch a grasshopper in its mouth. The snake then placed the grasshopper carefully on the hooklike thing on the end of its

"By this time my curiosity was thor-oughly aroused." continued the fisher-"The snake crawled up on a log that extended from the bank into the brook and let its tall hang into the water. In a moment up came a trout and snapped at the grasshopper. It was short work for the snake to trans fer the lish from its tail to its mouth. and I had solved the problem of the extermination of brook trout."-Cleve-Plain Dealer.

Tempering Copper Not a Lost Art. The allegation that ancient Egyptians tempered copper and bronze to carry a razor edge is not borne out by investi-gation. Thomas Harper of Bellevue. Pa., challenges any one to produce a piece of metal tempered by the an-cients that cannot be more than duplicated by any metal worker today. He says that in examining hundreds of ed to the degree that steel is tempered he failed to find any, nor had be discovered any one who had seen such work, and the fable which has been implicitly believed for centuries is being shattered in the light of modern research.

This is not the only story believed for centuries tending to belittle the man of today, to make him the inferior of his forefathers, which failed under the searchlight of inquiry and science. The ancients were children in mechanical knowledge as compared to the people of today, and if there was a demand for any particular building or piece of work such as was produced by the ancients it could be duplicated and improved on by the skilled artisans of the nineteenth century.-American Manu-

"I am sorry to disappoint you, young man," said the great railway magnate to the reporter who had called in for the purpose of writing him up, "but I did not begin at the bottom and work my way up. I never blacked the boots of the engine wipers and never carried beer for the janitor of the roundhouse. I was kicked through college by my father, inherited a fortune, which I invested in railroad shares, and I hold this job because I have votes enough to control it. It is too bad, my young friend, but we can't all be self made men. We would become thresome." And he bowed the caller out.—Chicago Tribune.

Ruskin's Generosity.

The late John Ruskin gave away a great deal of money during his life. Many years his annual income from his pen alone was $30,000, but he lived on less than a tenth of that amount. Indeed, he used to say that a gentleman ought to be able to live on $5 a If he could not, he deserved speedily to die.

A Way Out of It.

"A pretty lot of children you are for a minister to have!" exclaimed a West Side pastor whose children were misbehaving at the dinner table. "Then why don't you change your business, papa?" asked 4-year-old Nel-lie.—Chicago News.

"The marvelous cure of Mrs. Rena J. Stout of consumption has created intense excitement in Cammack, Ind.," writes Marion Stuart, a leading druggist of Muncle, Ind. Makeshift Wedding Rings. Curious instances have been cited where makeshift substitutes for the conventional wedding ring have been utilized during the marriage ceremony. One such instance occurred some time ago in a nearby town, where the ring was missing. Nothing better being available as a substitute, a curtain ring was used, and on still another occasion the ring handle of the church key was utilized. A couple in this state in such an emergency a ring formed from the outer edge of a coin and which had been carried by some one present as a curiosity. A gallant best man came to the rescue at a recent wedding, when the ring was not forthcoming at the right time. He drew from his tie the slender stickpin that had been adorning it, and, bending the wire into ring shape, handed the improvised wedding ring to the distracted groom. A horseshoe nail bent to the shape of a ring is said to bring a great deal of luck to the owner, and the lead cramp ring worn six centuries ago has given place to various rings now worn to prevent and cure rheumatism.-Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

The Polite Lie in Embryo.

A little child has given us a peep into the process by which the polite lie is developed. Mamma was talking to Effic about the absence of Edith from the children's party.
"You are sorry," said mamma, "that

Edith could not come?" Effic replied, having enjoyed herself, Oh, I don't mind much."

which mamma rejoined: "But Edith is ill. That is why she couldn't come. You must be sorry." Effle con-sidered. "Yes; of course I'm sorry," she said, "but it doesn't hurt me-inside."-London Chronicle.
