"Kicker's Column."

It was announced last week that a "kicker's column" would be opened in THE STAR to give the people an opportunity of making complaint of anything they may feel should be brought to the notice of the public. This week there seemed to be nothing to kick about and no one handed in an item for the "kickers column," but we understand that there will be several "kicks" for next issue. This column will be open for any person who wants to send in a "klek." No personal matter will be allowed in this column, however. All communications must be signed by writer, not for publication, as we will not divolge the names of those who write for this column, but we must know the author of each "kick" or the communication will be consigned to the waste basket.

The Falls Creek Herald says: "The Reynoldsville STAR has started a "Kicker's Column." This is the first time the thought ever entered the Herald's head that there were any kickers at Reynoldsville. The Herald will watch to see if the column is patronized."

Look for the "kickers columns" next week. Charles. There are two or three things, at least, in Reynoldsville that people could register a kick against.

> Letter to John Hillis, Reynoldsville, Pa.

Dear Sir: James Ackley's house in Cairo (Catskill Mountains), N. Y., a conspicuous one in the midst of the village, was painted 14 years ago with DeVoe; has not been painted since: and the paint is in good condition to-day. He is going to paint; but there's really no necessity of it.

Devce has been sold in Cairo 18 years. Our agent is Gaston Wynkoop. Houseowners there want DeVoe, and painters there paint Devoe. It would be a hard job to persuade a Cairo man to paint lead and oil-of course a painter painte whatever a customer wants, even if it's buttermilk.

Marian VanHoesen, a Cairo painter, as painted DeVoe for 15 years. There are two or three others: all for Devoe we are told-don't know their names It's the same wherever Devoe gets into a town: it stays there and owns the whole business. Yours truly. 18 F. W. DEVOE & CO.

One of the many good points impressed upon the large and appreciative audience that greeted Dr. Waters Tuesday evening, and one that may be advantageously utilized by us, is that in regard to the acquiring of views which shall direct our course in life. We should recognize the fact that soon we will be taking our place in the great body politic, and that we shall be factors in the solving of those great questions which a future certainly holds in store for the generation in which our lot is cast. For no matter to what profession in life we may aspire, there will be duties resting upon us which we must meet and discharge.

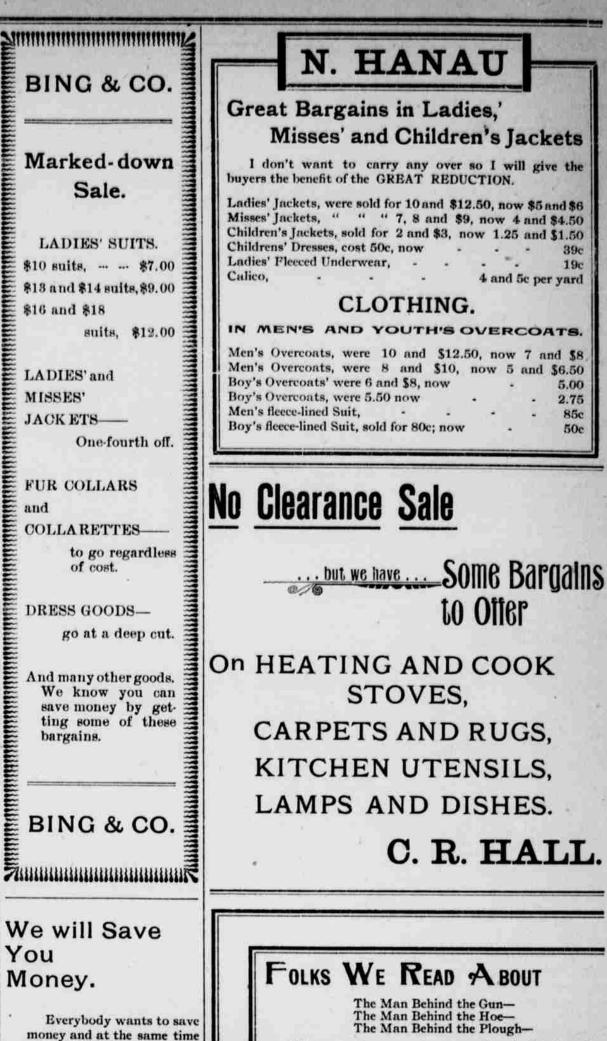

Principally, among these, are the duties of citizenship-duties we owe not only to ourselves or to those who have preceded us into the mansions of rest, but more especially to those who will come after us.

We have here a government founded upon righteousness, and whose cornerstone was laid by our Revolutionary forefathers, who offered their lives upon the altar of their country's devotion. We have here a government guaranteeing equal rights to all and whose principles have been defended by our manhood for over a century. But there have now arisen questions of such paramount importance, as to threaten the future destiny of that government -questions which must be met and settled in the near future. Hence, we should take the time to make ourselves acquainted with these problems, and when the time comes at which we shall be called upon to exercise our citizenship, we shall be able to do so with that wisdom and foresight which characterized our forefathers.

One of the most interesting programs rendered this year was the mock session of the Pennsylvania Legislature Friday afternoon. The main action of the session was the election of a U.S. Senaator, and it was only after four ballots were taken that the event was accomplished. The leaders of the opposing forces had their stalwarts well marshalled, and they stood firm for the principles of their respective parties. The names of M. S. Quay and Geo. A. Jenks were presented in a flow of eloquence, and the ballotting commenced. On the first three ballots the votes were scattered, but on the fourth the apostles of Bryan succeeded in getting the upper hand and Mr. Jonks was elected by a vote of 140 to 80 for Quay.

The Senior class perfected an organization Friday afternoon by electing the following officers: President, Clement Flynn; Vice Pres., Frances King; Sec., Effie Milliren; Treas., Maud Hoon. A feeling of gloom was cast over the High School Monday morning by the appouncement that our old friend and elocutionary instructor, Prof. Alton C. Lindsey, is seriously ill. It is our fervent hope that Mr. Lindsey will speedily recover and that it will be our privilege to have him with us again this spring. The family farce, "The Cow that Kicked Chicago," a comedy abounding in pure and edifying sentiment, enlivened by unadulterated wit, and guaranteed to please even the aesthetic, will be rendered by "The High School Stock Co." Feb. 1st.

The Man Behind the Times

All have trying moments at some time in their lives, but some better the last few weeks. She has been sick for the past two years and was seldom out of bed during that time.

Hyram VanHyning died of heart disease on the 13th inst. He was buried in the Church of God cemetery. He was a soldier of the civil war, being in Company M, 5th Regiment of Michigan cavalry.

Do not look around for evils, for you will find them. When you talk about your neighbors they will measure back to you. Turn thy eyes back upon thyself, and see thou judge not the doings of others. The glory of a good man or woman is the testimony of a good conscience.

The teachers' institute held at the Grange hall Saturday was a success. Although the weather was cold and stormy, yet the people began flocking in from far and near, and by noon the hall was almost filled. A sumptuous dinner was served, after which the institute was called to order by Wayde Breakey. The topics for the afternora were well ed by Messrs. W. A. London, W. M. Miller and others.
