Presidents and Cabinels.

In the early days of the government changes among cabinet officers during the service of the President who appointed them were rarer than they have been since. Washington made no alteration in his council at the beginning of his second term, but there were some retirements in it before that term ended. retirements in it before that term ended. All the members who were in Washington's cabinet at its close were retained by Adams at his accession to power, Adams belonging to the same party as Washington, Jefferson and Madison each only made one change in their cabinets at the beginning of their second terms, and Monroe made none. Jackson, the next President who was reelected, made many changes at the beginning of his second term, and at other times in his service. All the men who were in Lincoln's cabinet at the close of his first term were continued in his second. Boutwell's resignation as secretary of the treasury was the ued in his second. Boutwell's resigna-tion as secretary of the treasury was the only change made in Grant's cubinet at the beginning of his second term, al-though many many changes occurred before and after. Cleveland, the only other President except McKinley who was elected twice, had an interval of re-tirement between his first and his second term, and constructed an entirely new cabinet when he entered office the cond time second time.

Tyler and Johnson, two of the vice presidents who became President by the deathof the President, retained their predecessors' cabinets, but trouble began soon after their service began, and most of the cabinets stepped down. In the case of Fillimore and Arthur, the other two vice presidents whom death sent to the White House, there was a sweeping change in the cabinet when they entered power, except that Robert they entered power, except that Robert T. Lincoln, one of his predecessor's appointees, remained in the post of secretary of war through Arthur's term.

The tenure of office of members of cabinets has been very insecure in the past half or two-thirds of a century. Only one President ever retained his official family unbroken during his entire service. This was Franklin Pierce, who was in office but one term.—Leslie's

Fortunes in Gold Nuggets.

The great gold fields of the world have all produced romances of nuggets of enormous value often stumbled across by prospectors in the last stage of poverty. This nugget-finding is told in an interesting fashion by Mr. Jeffer-son Hurley, a member of the Institute of Mining Engineers, says a London newspaper. "The largest nugget of which the world has any knowledge," he says, "was found at Hill End, New South Wales, by Messrs, Byer and Haltman, was unit for work of business for a long period.

"A great nugget found in Victoria was the 'Welcome Stranger,' discovered by two puddlers. It rested on stiff red clay and was barely covered with earth; in fact, the treasure lay unnoticed in the rut by the puddlers' cart. Its weight was 2,268 ounces and in value it was worth £9,600. Soon after the find of was 2,300 onnees and in value it was worth £9,600. Soon after the find of the Welcome Stranger two other nug-gets of 14 ounces and 36 ounces respecgets of 14 offices and 30 offices respectively were unearthed.

"Another lucky find was that of a nugget at Ballarat weighing 2,159 offices and sold for £10,500. The Blanche Barkley nugget, 1,743 offices, value £7,000, was unearthed by a party of four at Kingower at a depth of 13 feet and within five feet of holes that had been dug three years before."

Types of Our New Navy.

In the five battleships we have two types—the three sheathed and coppered ones being the Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Georgia, while the unsheathed ships are to be the Rhode Island and Virginia. The first three ships are further peculiar because they carry the much discussed superposed turrets in much-discussed superposed turrets in the main battery—the relative merits of which will never be settled short of the day of actual conflict; but the antifoul-ing advantages of their coppered bot-toms are too well established to do more than to make us wonder why all are than to make us wonder why all are not so protected.

These ships are the peers of anything now building abroad. The armored cruisers, of which there are to be six, are half of them to be coppered like the three battleships. Those so sheathed and coated are to be named California, West Virginia and Nebraska, while the others are to be known as the Colorado, Maryland and South Dakota. These ships are a long way ahead of our two earlier armored cruisers, the New York and Brooklyn, but merely typical of the and Brooklyn, but merely typical of the developments made abroad since these other classmates were designed. They may be properly called the heavy cavalry of the sea, and their mission in conflict will be to keep in touch with the enemy and to give him some pretty hard raps before calling up the support of the heavier, slower and more powerful battleships.

The protected cruisers, to bear the names of Charleston, Milwaukee and S. Louis, are really decidedly akin to second-class armored cruisers, and are a very decided advance upon the Olympia —an improved form of which they were designed to be.—Harper's Weekly.
