Agnes Stone Memorial.

At the alumni re-union Thursday evening of last week, Miss Dorothy Sutter read the following memorial in honor of Miss Agnes Stone, a member of the Alumni Association, who died in June of last year:

"Life is a checkered scene. It is well represented by transitions in nature. The bright sunshine is emblematic of days of prosperity, when gladness fills the soul and the spirit is buoyant and tuneful as the birds singing their morning song.

"The dark clouds and heavy laden skies are emblems of physical pain, of mental depression, of days when friends die and prosperity flies, when hope droops and our faith is stretched to its utmost. But the storm will not last forever; neither will our affliction. The shadows will pass away and the clear sunshine will brighten and bless the landscape. Afflictions are more common than we think; and 'each heart knoweth its own bitterness,' but behind the agency, whatever it may be, there is a heart that throbs with tenderness, and a directing mind infinite in wisdom. How beautiful and tender were his words of inspiration, 'Lo I am with you always.'

"But during our most prosperous periods of life there sometimes come clouds of adversity which, for the time being, hides from our sight the bright orb of day.

"Such an occasion has arisen, and plunged us into sorrow and grief, for from our midst has been removed one who was just standing on the verge of a happy life, one who was just emerging from the joyous spring into the tranquil summer of life, one whose life was given for the happiness and welfare of others, but 'To live in hearts we leave behind is not to die.' Our sister, friend and classmate, Agnes Annie Stone, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Stone, was born in London, November 25, 1877, and peacefully departed this life June 25, 1900, after a year's illness from consumption. Having lived in Reynoldsville a number of years she attended the public schools and graduated from the High School in the class of '98. She was a bright and diligent student, exceedingly fond of literature, music and painting, and when her health permitted she devoted much of her time to the latter art, a true lover of nature. Agnes had a sweet disposition and as a consequence her friends were numerous, as she was always ready to make excesses for the short coming of any of her friends and acquaintances. She was a devout christian, a member of the Baptist church, B. Y. P. U. and Sunday school. Truly the world has lost a noble character.

"Death seems cruel and relentless as he touches here and there the rarest flowers with his seemingly cold and icy fingers, but judge him not harshly dear friends.

"Weep not for death, 'tis but a fever stifled, A pain suppressed, a fear at rest, A solemn hope fulfilled, The moon beams on the stammering deep Is scarcely calmer, whyfore weep?"

"For as nature prescribes a boundary to all other things, so does she also to life."

Rathmel.
