Rathmel will celebrate the Fourth of July this year in proper style. Full details in a few days.

J. F. Anderson, who has lived here for the past three years, started for New York Monday, and will set sail for Sweden to-day, (Wednesday). Mr. Anderson and family had many friends here who wish them a safe journey.

Decoration day being wet and muddy was not enjoyed as well as was expected. Nevertheless the speeches in the P. O. S. of A. hall in the afternoon by Rev. Meek and Rev. J. C. McEntire, of Reynoldsville, and Rev. Armstrong, of Emmerickville, were good and to the point for the occasion. The Reynoldsville Sons of Veterans went to Prospect cemetery and fired the salute over the old soldier graves and scattered flowers. The evening entertainment was good. The girls in the drill did their part well. W. C. No. 602, P. O. S. of A. extends thanks to all who took part or aided in any way during the day and evening.

Hornstown.

Irvin Burkett was in Brookville last Monday.

O. G. Schugars was in Emmerickville last Monday.

Low Mottarr, of Emmerickville, was in this place last week.

Charles Calhoun, of Sugar Hill, was visiting in Hornstown last week.

W. W. Fales, the Emmerickville butcher, was in this vicinity last week.

Jonathan and Harry Snyder, of Deemers Cross Roads, had business in Hornstown Wednesday.

Scott Harriger, of Emmerickville, passed through here on his way to Beechwoods last Wednesday.

There was a fine social at M. L. Hetrick's Saturday night. Sort of a damp evening, but everybody reported a good time.

Sandy Valley.

The hail storm Sunday made sad havoc with the onion tops and cabbage plants.

W. W. Cable left home Monday to assist James McFadden in erecting Jack Crawford's new barn.

Mrs. H. A. Sherwood and daughters, Edith and Netta, also Carrie Beebe, spent Decoration day with Henry Snyder and family at Emmerickville. They report a good time.

W. W. Cox, of Omaha, Neb., and sister, Mrs. Kellar, did not forget the playmates of their childhood days during their short sojourn here. They called on several, among them being Levi and Bradford Beebe.

James Burkett passed through here Monday on his way to Portland Mills.

Saves Two From Death.

"Our little daughter had an almost fatal attack of whooping cough and bronchitis," writes Mrs. W. K. Haviland, of Armonk, N. Y., "but when all other remedies failed, we saved her life with Dr. King's New Discovery. Our niece, who had Consumption in an advanced stage, also used this wonderful medicine and to-day she is perfectly well." Desperate throat and lung diseases yield to Dr. King's New Discovery as to no other medicine on earth. Infallible for Coughs and Colds. 50c and $1.00 bottles guaranteed by H. Alex. Stoke, druggist. Trial bottles free.

Praise From a Scotchman.

"Clydesdale! ye sturdy son of nature. Ye could not go wrong on the herbs ye grow up with." Clydesdale Ointment is a great and a grand cure for lacerated flesh or a burn. Druggists, 25c.

For best values in lace curtains, portieres, couch covers, curtain poles and window shades go to Shick & Wagner.

Wishaw.

Phillip Randolph and wife visited in town one day last week.

John Dickey is wearing a very pleasant smile the last few days—it is a girl.

Jas. Ewing, who has been on the sick list for some time, is able to work again.

Ira Dickey, who has been on the sick list for some time is able to be around again.

Wm. Sprinkle, who has been working in the bark woods near Cortez, came home Saturday.

Mrs. Samuel Secrist visited her daughter, Mrs. Wm. Veit, of this place, a few days last week.

Samuel Shankle, who carries mail from Panic to Reynoldsville, moved to our town a few days ago.

A new "pop man" came to our town a few days ago and left us some pop. We think it eclipses anything we ever drank.

Messrs. Bonville and King, who have been in the mercantile business in this place for the past six months, have dissolved partnership.

David Ewing is very busy studying these nice (?) days. He is taking a mining course in the International Correspondence Schools of Scranton.

The new store of Dougherty & Foltz, which opened in this place a short time ago, is doing a good business, because that is the place where the most and best goods can be bought for the least money.

Wet Weather Talk.

It ain't no use to grumble and complain! It's just as cheap and easy to rejoice. When God sorts out the weather and sends rain,

Why rain's my choice.

Men cheerily, to all intents—Although they are apt to grumble some, Puta most they re trust in Providence, And takes things as they come—

That is the commonality Of men that's lived as long as me. Has watched the world enough to learn They're not the boss of this concern.

With some, of course, it's different— I've saw young men that knowed it all, And didn't like the way things went On this terrestrial ball.

But all the same, the rain some way Halted just as hard on plenty days; Es when they rally wanted it, It maybe wouldn't rain a bit!

In this existence dry and wet Will overtake the best of men— Some have said or clouds'll shed The sun off now and then.

And maybe, what your wuders who You've feebly lent your umbrella to! And want it—out'll pop the sun, And you'll be glad you hadn't got none!

It ain't no use to grumble and complain! It's just as cheap and easy to rejoice. When God sorts out the weather and sends rain,

Why, rain's my choice.

—James Whitcomb Riley.

The Apple Tree Tent Caterpillar.

Persons owning orchards, or those who have walked through any of the wooded sections near town, may have observed an unusually large number of trees bearing "white silken tents formed in the smaller crotches of the trees," which when torn open reveal to the eye hundreds of caterpillars. At present many of our trees have been divested of every leaf by the voracious appetite of these insects commonly known as the apple tree tent caterpillar. From a recent agricultural report we clip the following concerning it:

This insect, though familiar everywhere in Pennsylvania, is not usually so abundant as to cause serious loss, although in adjoining states it is a great nuisance. It not only feeds on the apple, but also on the peach, cherry, plum, wild cherry and other trees, and is easily recognized by the white silken tents formed in the smaller crotches of the trees, by the caterpillars. These are formed in the spring, however, and can therefore be easily distinguished from those formed by the web-worms, which appear in July and August, at a time when the tents of the tent caterpillars have entirely disappeared.

The insect passes the winter in the egg. In the spring about the time the leaves appear, the eggs hatch, and the little caterpillars select some fork in which to begin their tents, and from which they spread in all directions to feed, returning to the tent at night, and often, also between morning and afternoon excursions for food.

As they become larger they enlarge the tent until it is a very noticeable object, and wherever they go they spin a thread, as though for the purpose of providing a guide for them to follow back to the tent by. In this way they feed and grow for five or six weeks, at the end of which time they are nearly two inches long.

About the middle of June, or perhaps a little earlier, the caterpillars cease feeding, leave the web, and seek for a place in which to spin their cocoons. Within the cocoon the caterpillar transforms into the adult moth, a process which takes from two to three weeks, after which the moth appears.

The eggs are now laid on a twig of a tree in a broad band entirely around the twig, each band containing two or three hundred eggs. At the edges of the band, it tapers down close to the twig, by which the egg mass may be distinguished from similar egg masses laid by certain other insects. The eggs remain in this condition during the remainder of the year and hatch the following spring.

The injury caused by this insect is to the leaves, and as a full grown caterpillar will consume two leaves a day, a nest of them will destroy five hundred, or over, each day. The effect of this upon the tree, when the tents are abundant, is quite serious, the energies of the tree, instead of being directed towards maturing the fruit, being devoted to the production of new leaves to replace those it has lost.

The apple tree tent caterpillar is fortunately not a difficult insect to deal with. Its tents are easily seen, and the habit the caterpillars have of returning to them at night renders it a simple matter to destroy them all while gathered together, by the use of a torch at night, or before eight o'clock in the morning. The method mentioned above of gathering and destroying the egg masses is also an excellent one, and should be made use of during the winter months, when the trees are bare, and the egg masses may be more easily seen. Spraying the tree, particularly in the neighborhood of the nests, with Paris green, is also effective. Several parasites prey upon this insect and aid in keeping it in check, and if it appears in injurious numbers at any time, it may be considered solely as the result of neglect.
