Dr. J. Milton Greene, formerly in charge of Presbyterian missions in Porto Rico, says twenty drunken U. S. soldiers could be seen on the streets in San Juan to one drunken native, which is a very serious charge.

It is estimated that as soon as Cuba becomes an independent government it will have to collect revenue amounting to at least $20,000,000 a year to pay its current expenses and the interest on its bonded debt.

The Washington Post threw an unanswerable question at the Boston Herald when it asked the name of the place in which the doors to society do not swing on financial hinges.

Because one bears the most about the sensational, notoriety-seeking preachers, it must not be inferred that they are in a majority. For every one of that kind there are five hundred preachers who quietly try to follow the Master they serve and to save men's souls, not to tickle their fancy and get quoted in the newspapers.—Ex.

Daniel Sharp was a trapper, but he was not as mentally sagacious as his name nor as snappy as his traps. He had caught a panther, and so told the village way. "May it not have been a hallucination, Dan?" Sharp had never before seen a "panther," and was therefore open to conviction, for the creature "hallucination" was also a stranger to him.—Field and Stream, a sporting magazine published in New York and edited by Will S. Reynolds.

There are men in every town who accumulate property by shirking the burdens that other men carry. They never consider the general good, but always their own selfish good. Such men do not get time to read the newspapers unless they can pick one up that some one else has paid for. They are fully aware that newspapers, like churches, are essential to good society, but they feel no obligation to assist in any manner the cause of the local paper. They are willing to profit by every movement that is pro bono publico, but are always willing that others should foot the bills.—Coudersport Journal.

Everything has its uses. Some people regard snoring as useless and even objectionable. Snoring, however, has been vindicated; and its enemies will have to attack it from new positions, or it is likely to establish itself as a beneficent practice. Only last Friday night a policeman on his rounds heard a peculiar noise. It sounded like the noise made by a hippopotamus when it is sweating blood. He was curious. He approached the spot from whence the sound protruded cautiously. It led him to the railroad track. Lying there with his head on the rail, was a robust colored man, sleeping off a tremendous jag. He pulled him off the track just as the Lightning Express thundered by. If that man had not been an accomplished snorer he would have been a corpse.—Punkstutawney Spirit.

Close observations of the smaller things in the walks of life have been the means of imbuing upon the world some of its greatest lessons. The man who walks past the rose to admire the sunflower, is not showing good taste. The lives of the greatest men and the closest observers—men who profit most by what they observe—are filled with examples. The life of King Bruce of Scotland was once saved by a spider having swung its web across the mouth of a cave in which he had entered. Robert Burns observed a louse crawling on the clothes of a rich woman at church and one of his greatest morals was given to the world. A boy noticed that steam was strong enough to lift the lid from his mother's coffee pot, and the steam engine and different ways of utilizing steam have become known. A close observer makes a deep thinker.—Falls Creek Herald.

Watch for the new Walk-Over shoes as will arrive at Robinson's soon.

Letter to C. Mitchell.
 Reynoldsville, Pa.

Dear Sir: A banker's business is to know pretty much everything. Here's a part of it, well worth anyone's knowing.

Devoe lead and zinc is the paint that lasts twice as long as lead and oil. Our agent sells it under this guarantee: "If you have any fault to find with this paint, either now in putting it on, or hereafter in the wear, tell your dealer about it."

"We authorize him to do what is right at our expense."

If you get your house painted with it, and it wears no better than most lead and oil, you will have good cause of complaint; and we must pay damages.

This is the paint that looks as good, and wears twice as long, as lead and oil.

Yours truly,
 F. W. DEVOE & CO.
 P. S.—H. Alex Stoke sells our paint in your section.

Concerning the Scholarship Contest.
 During the past week three more persons entered THE STAR'S scholarship contest, making five in all. Almost ten weeks yet remain in which to work for the prizes, and the contest remains open to all wishing to enter. It is seldom that a chance to attend school free of all cost is offered, and we urge upon all in a position to spend a little time this summer canvassing to enter the contest at once. Do not put off entering from day to day. Time is valuable. Come to the office, register, and we will aid you in every way possible. Though THE STAR is well represented in this section, yet there are many people in the nearby villages who are not yet subscribers, the towns, in fact, having never been canvassed. Here then is a field white for harvest: Rathmel, Big Soldier, Paradise, Sykesville, Elenora, Wishaw, Hopkins, Emmerickville, Beechwoods and the surrounding country. We urge contestants to enter these places and canvass for new subscribers. Thirty-six votes on each dollar of back subscription collected is good; but sixty votes for each new subscriber will count up much faster, and the work is no harder.

Seven Years in Bed.
 "Will wonders ever cease?" inquire the friends of Mrs. L. Pease, of Lawrence, Kan. They know she had been unable to leave her bed in seven years on account of kidney and liver trouble, nervous prostration and general debility but, "Three bottles of Electric Bitters enabled me to walk," she writes, "and in three months I felt like a new person." Women suffering from Headache, Backache, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Melancholy, Fainting and Dizzy Spells will find it a priceless blessing. Try it. Satisfaction is guaranteed. Only 50c, at H. Alex Stoke's drug store.

"It was a childish ignorance, but now 'tis little joy To know I'm farther off from heaven Than when I was a little boy."

Many a man has thought the same when confronted with the fact that he has grown in sin as he grew in wisdom and in flesh. And how many old men, wise with the bitter experience of years and the coldness of the world, have felt the force of those other lines of Hood:

When he is forsaken,
 Withered and shaken,
 What can an old man do but die?"

Failure.

Childhood—When life is gay, and days are bright and there is no care for the morrow. He is happy for he knows not how to borrow trouble. Happy for him if he never learned.

Youth—School days come and the days of dreams, airy dreams of the glorious future. Of the palace they will build, of the glory they will win. They will not try yet however—not till to-morrow.

Manhood—Serious thoughts and blasted dreams. Life was not such an easy road to fame after all. He was going to do such brilliant things; he could think such witty things—but somehow he could never do those actions and when he went to speak, his wit had suddenly flown. Is it not odd how fine our thoughts are and how poor and plain our written or spoken words. On the morrow he will do something great; on the morrow which never comes.

Old Age—Gone now the days of dreams. Gone all the visions of fame. He had planned a golden palace; he had built a mud hut. But there was always some work to do. And he would do it on the morrow. So is done the life of dreams. Death comes and the church bell tolls the last oration over him—Fool . . . fool . . . fool.
