PRAIRIE DOGS DOOMED.

Inability to Find Suitable Poison Has Deferred the Fate.

Prairie dogs are becoming an unmitigated pest in the West, and their exermination is ardently desired but difficult of accomplishment. Professor Lantz of the Kansas State Agricultural College, in a communication to Gov-ernor Stanley, says that the prairie dogs are destroying the ranges in Western Kansas and Nebraska and Eastern Colorado, cattle preferring to go without grass to eating that which has been run over by the dogs. In Kansas alone the prairie dogs occupy a million and a quarter acres. Pro-fessor Lantz, who had charge of the expenditure of $5,000 appropriated by last Kansas Legislature to be used in finding some means of killing off the pests, has experimented with pol-sons for six months, but as yet has failed to find any that is successful.

A Turk holds that the day begins exactly at sunset. At that time he sets his clocks and watches at the hour of 12. A watch which could run for weeks without gaining or losing a minute would be of no special value to the Turk.

the reason for the trouble. A "clean" range is a necessity for satisfactory cooking. Lift off the covers and see if there is not a layer of fine ash on top of the oven so thick that it lessens the draught and prevents the heat from penetrating to the oven. This should be lifted out and not swept into the fire or down be side the oven.

Brush the side of the oven clean, then get at the most important part, the Some ovens have a plate on the inside that lifts out, some a plate on the outside; some are made have a stove man once to clean for you and see how he does it you will not need him again. Notice how he gets at the bottom, and above all, see that he leaves things so that you can take out the cover or oven yourself when you wish to. You can get the ordinary scraper at any department store, and also a long-handled dust brush or whisk broom. These will answer in nearly every case. This is a dirty job. but should be attended to once a month.

Much often depends upon how the fire box is kept. Masses of clinkers are allowed to gather on the bricks. These should be removed by common salt placed on them while the fire is hot. If they do not come off the first day they will the second or third by using more sait and tapping them with the poker. Do not let ashes or cinders gather about the top of the fire box.

In starting a fire dump everything out. Do not try to start a fire on top of ashes or cinders, as it will often sulk for a whole day. The ciuders can be burned to good advantage on top of the fire afterward. Use as little paper as possible in starting, and do not pack the coal in. Fill the box to the top of the bricks and no further. Poking the fire spoils it, shaking never was the one which the builders of the Central Pacific gave to Johnson Sides, chief of the Piute Indians of Nevada, for himself and people for life, to ride back and forth on all except passen-ger cars as much as they pleased. It has been a source of delight to the Indians to think that in one case, at least, their palerace friends showed the gratitude which is so seldom ex-pressed. Those were politic as well as wise men who daringly started that early road, even before New York and Chicago were connected by rail. They knew that without the friendship of the Indians the task would be almost impossible, and they began by treat-ing the Indians well and keeping their word with them-the only "Indian policy" necessary and the only one which has ever succeeded. If you have ever happened to ride through Nevada Forceps of some kind, however, will on the railroad you must have been prove more effective. Loud Telephones for Ships.

One of the most important instruments on modern vessels is the socalled loud talking telephone. periments have recently been made with it in the German navy, and have proved so satisfactory that instruents are now being placed on most of the large sea-going ships. The spe-cial value of this telephone lies in the fact that a captain standing on the bridge can easily hear any words that may be spoken to him from the interior of the vessel, even though a violent storm may be raging at the ime, and can in turn transmit without straining his voice his own orders to officers or men in any part of the ves-Bad accidents have occurred through a misunderstanding of orders given at a critical moment, due to the fact that the words were not distinctly heard, and it is only reasonable to assume that casualties of this kind to be drawn out altogether. Unable to Stand For Months Because of Sprained Ankles.

CURED BY ST. JACOBS OIL. (From the Cardiff Times.)

Among the thousands of voluntary endorsements of the great value of St. Jacobs Oil for sprains, stiffness, and soreness, is that of Mrs G. Thomas, 4 Alexandra Road, Gelli, Ysbrod, near Pontypridd, South Wales, who says:-

"It is with great pleasure that I add my willing testimony to the invaluable excellence of your celebrated St. Jacobs Oil, as experience in my own case. I sprained both my ankles in walking down some steps so severely that I was unable to stand for several months. The pain I suffered was most severe, and nothing that I used helped me until I applied St. Jacobs Oil, when they immediately became better daily, and in a short time I was able to en about, and soon after I was quite cured. I am now determined to advise all persons suffering from pains to use this wonderful remedy, which did so much for me.'

Mrs. Thomas does not enlighten us as to what treatment she pursued during the months she was unable to stand, and during which time she was suffering so much, but we venture to suggest that had she called in any well known medical man he would have at once have prescribed St. Jacobs Oil, for it has conquered pain upwards of fifty years, and doctors know there is nothing so good. The ed twelve gold medals by different international exhibitions as the premier pain-killing made the awards were in each instance composed largely of the most eminent medical not know the high opinion in which St. Jacobs

BAKED UNTIL CURED. The biggest free pass ever issued

> The Theory of the Dry-Hut-Air Process is to Intensify the Benefits of the Turkish and Similar Baths — Danger of Roasting the Patient.

> English publications are giving som space to what they call the "baking cure," by which a sick man is described as being "put into a stove and cooked until he is well." A hospital devoted to this treatment has just been established at London, and the idea seems to be wholly novel over there. In this city, on the other hand, where it is known as thermserotherapy-a word etymologically unimpeachable, but to be found only in the newest dictionaries-also called the treatment by superheated air, Bellevue has used the hospital on the west side of the city other such institution exists in Philadelphia, and still others in Cincinnati and Chicago.

The theory of the dry-hot-air cure is to intensify the benefits of Turkish body can stand much more beat than if the exposure thereto was complete. As the treatment is essentially local, from the funnels atop the machine. provided nothing is the matter with his breathe other air than he is used to.

There is nothing startling in the general conception of calcrific therapenies. The hot-water bag is one expression of the principle, and the homely mustard plaster another. The ruins Constantinople, Damascus, Herculaneum, Pompell, and Rome contain the remains of hot-air baths unequalled te-day. Among the famous baths of the Eternal City, those of Agrippa. Caracalla, Diocletian, and Titus, none was without its caldarium, or hot-air chamber. Hippocrates, Celsus and revival. Constantine introenced it into Byzantium after his con-GTHERT:

The introduction of the thermacrotherapic apparatus at once raised the temperature to which it is possible to subject the human body from 170 to 400 degrees. Of course, neither the whole body nor any vital organ can be put to any such heat. Between 275 and 280 degrees is the hottest that is safe for the trunk. To discriminate among beneficial temperatures, three machines are used-the body, the leg and arm and the local styles. The body and the leg and arm machines differ only in size, shape and a few minor details. The walls consist of three concentric cylinders, separated by spaces of an inch and a half. The outermost cylinder is of nickel-plated sheet copper, lined with asbestos to minimize the external radiation of heat; the middle cylinder, of sheet steel, also asbestos lined; and the third of brass. with cork ribs to protect the patient from burning.

Bunsen burners, as many as may be required, supply the heat to the space between the steel and copper cylinders and the products of combustion pass off through three flues. The steel cylinder radiates the heat through many perforations in the brass upon the body of the patient. Fresh air is constantly fed into the second space, or circulating Jacket, and escapes into the flues after it has been vitiated.

The patient lies upon a mat of fibrous magnesia, covering a layer of asbestos. The cylinders are mounted upon massive metal legs, and at either end of the body machine are wooden excessions for the head and lower limbs to rest upon. The apparatus looks like a combination of bed and stove, which indeed it is. It weighs about fifty pounds and the leg and arm machine 400. The latter has a glass door through which the attendant may watch the limb. The local device is a cork-rimmed instrument with various attachments for the application of a swift current of hot air to the ear, all sorts of common sores, and other painful spots. The attendant manipulates the contrivance and regulates the temperature. The air comes from a tank where it is stored under pressure, and is beated as released.

The treatment is employed to reduce obesity and relieve writer's cramp, for rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica and gout, pneumonia, asthma and pleurisy bolls and ulcers, but not tumors and

The great danger is of literally roast ing the patient to death, although no such fatality is on record. In addition to the protection afforded by the mag uesia mat and the cork ribs of the brass cylinder, each natient wears a bathrobe of outing flannel, and must satisfy his physician in a physical examination not only of the nature of his ailments, but of his ability to endure the process. His temperature, pulse and respiration are taken, and if his heart and lungs are not all right, the usual treatment is modified accordingly. If they are radically wrong, he will have to seek some other remedy. The average stay in the body-machine is from fofty-five minutes to an hour.

Nearly every organ is affected in some way. The skin becomes first flushed and then mottled, and prickly heat may appear. The secretions o the sweat, sebaceous and lymphatic glands are greatly stimulated. Epi thelial cells increase, especially in the neighborhood of former eruptions. Af ter a few treatments the entire epidermis becomes much softer and

The blood becomes more alkaline, and the number of red corpuscles temporarily multiplies, but onnemia may follow excessive exposure. The temperature of the body is likely to rise from two to five de grees above the regular ninety-eight and a half. The sensory nerves are soothed and the patient may fall asleep. Leave him too long in the oven, and you may expect muscular twitching and general irritability. Some patients say that after a limb has been heated awhile the release from pain causes a sensation of the loss of that member.

When the heat is first turned upon the man in the stove-bed be feels only a mild and genial warmth. Below 150 process several years, and a private degrees no inconvenience is experienced. Then be becomes thirsty, and practices it almost exclusively. And the nurse gives him a sip of water not too cold, which modest draught is repeated whenever he signifies his desire. At 180 degrees he becomes aware of many tiny streams of heat like so many sharp needles impluging upon and similar baths. The patient's head his body, but still he does not suffer being outside the machine, and in at- | He is drenched with perspiration, and mosphere of ordinary temperature, his his feet seem to have "gone to sleep." Some of the sweat is actually turned into steam, and may be seen issuing

At 200 degrees one becomes dreamy end, there is no need for a man to and for the remaining eighty degrees to which it is safe to subject a mar functionally sound, the experience is said to be not unlike some of those described by De Quincey. If the pa tient slumbers he is easily restored by the rubbing that closes each treat of Athens, Alexandria, Bagdad, Cairo, ment. Then he rests an hour or two and upon going abroad, should his complaint permit, feels an exhibaration. Suppose a man has a bad leg and takes, say, 350 degrees of heat. It is hard to convince him he is not being roasted alive. His heart thumps frantically, and his blood seems ready to Bags of ice are applied to his Calen extelled hot air as a therapeutic bend, one after another, until the oragent. The Turkish bath is really a deal is over. He does not get all the water he wants, but only a mouthful for the asking. Such heat would kill sooner or later were it not very dry. Its humidity is practically nothing. It was the humid heat that made this city so unpleasant this summer.

Massage and electricity are applied subsidiary to thermaerotherapy, if deemed expedient. An interesting adjunct to the hospital in this city is an adjustable staircase for the use of partial cripples, who constitute a majority of the patients, in determining their progress toward recovery. It is a wooden isosceles triangle, with sliding shelves along the equal sides, the third resting upon the floor, pulling out a shelf furnishes a step, and the steps may be as near together or as far apart as seems fit, or at irregular intervals, within certain limits. The patlent can thus discover exactly what he can do in the way of climbing and descending stairs, and when he has ascertained may utilize the framework for practice and exercise.

A woman who said she had not walked for thirty-two years learned over again, just as she had in the first place in childhood, and has experienced no subsequent difficulty, according to the head nurse. Another achievement claimed for the concern is the reduction of a well known public man in fifteen treatments from 218 to 180 pounds, which weight he has retained ever since.-E. B. B., in New York Evening Post.

A Cut Saves Seventeen Lives.

Seventeen persons owe their lives to the action of an old pet cat. At daylight Ruxton Terrace Hotel was destroyed by fire. The flames were discovered by Jerry, the hotel cat, which rushed in frantic haste to the bed of Mrs. Aunie Menninger, the landlady. Springing on her face the cat awoke her, and by frantically scratching away the covering aroused the woman to her danger. Then the cat rushed through the house, caterwauling and scratching at doors until the last guest was out. All had to dress running, wrapped in blankets. Two bables were in the house. Jerry will be re-membered with a medal.—Manitou (Col.) correspondence in the Chicago Record-Herald.
