Notwithstanding the fact that THE STAR and other papers have warned people time and again of the danger of using rubber hose connections for stoves, yet people continue to use the rubber hose. Just a few nights ago a family of five, husband, wife and three children, came very near losing their lives by a rubber hose bursting in the night while they were all sleeping. The woman awoke before any of the family had inhaled enough of the escaping gas to overcome them. Had she slept a few minutes longer the result would have been terrible. Birthday Party.

Ground to Pieces Under a Train

The body of Clyde C. Covert, of Content, a hamlet near Brookville, was found scattered along the track in the P. R. R. tunnel at Brookville about midnight Thursday night by a section hand. The body was ground to pleces and had it not been for a letter found in one of the pockets the body could not have been identified. The letter was from a girl in Summerville, with whom Covert had an engagmen for Thursday evening. It is not known what train killed Covert. A westbound freight train passed through Brookville about 8.00 p. m. and the supposition is that he attempted to jump on the freight train to go to Summerville and was dragged to tunnel and was there ground to pieces. The night shifting rew of this place, C. O. Anderson, conductor, gathered up the pieces of the body and put it in a box.

Howe's High Grade Moving Pictures,

The only first class moving picture exhibition in America to-day is that of Lyman H. Howe, who is the pioneer of that particular entertaining and unique class of exhibitions. Beyond the least doubt his show for the season of 1900 and 1901 is the finest, best and most elaborate that time and money can produce. He leads and others make weak attempts to follow. He has many imitators, but no equals. This season's exhibition is as far ahead of all others as day is of night. This statement will be verified by his exhibition, which will appear here at Assembly hall on Thursday, January 16.

Giving Christmas Presents.

"When thou makest gifts," remarks an old English writer, "let them be of such things as will last long; to the end that they may be in some sort immortal, and may frequently refresh the memory of the receiver." But immortailty is not necessarily a blessing, as theology teaches us, and frequently it occurs that the Christmas gifts we have received recall not pleasant memories. The matter of giving state on Christmas, however, is one of the most perplexing things imaginable. "If the man at the door have no shoes you have not to consider whether you you have not to consider whether you good procure him a paint-box," writes Emerson. Unfortunately the knowledge of the proper thing is not always so plain and the same writer continues: "If at any time it comes into my head that a present is due from me to some body, I am puzzled what to give until the opportunity be gone." This feeling the opportunity be gone." This feeling of duty, however, destroys all the beauty of the gift, for though "it is always pleasant to be generous, it is very vexatious to pay debts." The principle of duty, to, reminds one of the old Itof duty, to, reminds one of the old It-alian proverb, "a purchase is cheaper than a gift." Let your giving be free and generous, or give not at all, even in duty. And if some one lacking inspiration what to give you, presents an entirely useless gift, remember that it is a good man who can receive a gift well; make it, therefore, a point of honor to be oblighed to those who can nonor to be obliged to those who enleavor to oblige you. Santa Claus.
