AFTERNOON. tatives of Dean, Big Soldier, Sandy Val-

wonderful and interesting display of moving pictures at the Lyric Theatre last evening that has ever been seen in this city. The display was arranged in four groups interspersed with overtures by the orchestra and by a clever and interesting act of clay moulding by Jay Paige. The selections of each group were calculated to please the most fastidious. There were some admirable marine pictures, military scenes and funny displays. The Pan-American views and the sad scenes surrounding the late President McKinley's fatal trip to Buffalo were exceptionally interesting and natural pictures. Much amusement was created by a number of magical and trick views, as well as some funny situations such as "Some Disadvantages of Living in a Flat," "The Burlesque Tumblers" and "Phenomenal Wrestling." There was a clever arrangement of the pictures to relieve the monotony and the audience apparently appreciated the exhibition, judging by the liberal applause. A return data with an entirely new set of pictures was announced for a later date in the season .- Daily City Item, Allentown, Pa., Dec. 1901, 17. At Ascembly hall, Reynoldsville, Jan. 16, 1902.

Irving and the Imprecation.

Irving was always severely accurate. Shortly before he put on the "Merchant of Venice" he inquired of a brother actor if he could supply some stags "business" for the part of Shylock. The actor being, like Shylock, a Jew, thought he might, and asked Irving how he meant to do the "Imprecation scene," which occurs upon Shylock dis-covering that Jessica has fled with Lorenzo and the jewelry of her late mother, Mrs. Shylock. Irving knelt, held his hands prayer like and rehearsed the terrible imprecation, "I would my daughter were dead at my feet and the jewels in her ears. Upon the actor's saying he was wrong, Irving rejoined that he had followed the stage direction in the book, and that all the best Shylocks so did it, as the Keans, Brooke, Fechter and Phelps. "Yes," said the actor, "but they were all Christians. A Jew in imprecating never kneels, but stands upright, pass ing his open hand over his face.'

Irving adopted the hint. Soon afterward a well known London solicitor, also a Jew, who had seen the new version, told the actor in question that he had not before been aware that Irving was "one of us," and he refused to believe the contrary.—Ledger Month-

Family Prayers at the Jenkinses'. A Harlem woman recently decided that family prayers were really neces sary to the proper bringing up of her young son Johnnie. Mr. Jenkins, nominal head of the family, didn't exactly see the necessity, but, of course, yielded to his wife. The next morning after breakfast the Jenkinses assembled in the sitting room with a feeling of suppressed excitement at the novel proceedings. After the Scriptural reading they knelt beside a long sofa, Mr. Jenkins at one end, Mrs. Jenkins at the other and Johnnie in the middle. Ther Mr. Jenkins offered up a prayer invoking the divine presence. Jenkins' prayer was long and fervent After it had continued for five minutes Johnnie got restless, decided it was too monotonous and interrupted in his thin,

"Yes, Dod; come and stay to dinner!" Mr. Jenkins concluded his invocation with an abrupt "Amen!" Johnnie safely out of the way, he strangely remarked to his wife, "That's the limit!" Family prayers have been abandone at the Jenkinses'.—New York Times.

Fishing Hooks. Fishing hooks are as old as Adam. made of stone, bone, thorns and any old thing, not to mention deer horn and boars' tusks. The bronze hook of the bronze age was succeeded by the book of iron. The aborigines of Colombia used gold books, while the ancient people of Peru made theirs of copper. The bronze book of today is considered an expensive luxury. For years the most important seat of fishhook manufac-ture was Limerick, Ireland, but the once popular Limerick has been superseded by several styles of American make that are not only much cheaper, but are not inferior. As for our fine rods-well, we have them from two and one-half ounces up to ten pounds, knots. Of course our lines are unequaled.-New York Press.

The zebra when wild is a feroclous animal, and an unwary bunter is likely to suffer from its teeth and hoofs. While the man lay half stunned upon the ground the zebra quietly walked up to him and bit off one of his ears.

The Penalty of Seing Idie.
Idleness is at the bottom of the drunkenness, gluttony and sensuality which compass the destruction of one section of the community at the present time. It is at the bottom of that particular form of heartache which is the plague of women—the heartache of a purposeless, miserable existence. Such women often look forward to marriage to cure them, but when they are married and settled the old malady recurs, and in our own day we see them run-ning hither and thither after that elusive something. Others try to find a cure in the suffrage and others again in cigarettes.-Sarah Grand.

Unknown to the Lawyers.

Judge -, one of the great lawyers of the last generation, charged a client a retainer of $1,000 in an importan case, but the parties got together next morning and settled the suit before the judge had opened a book or written a judge had opened a book or written a line concerning it. His client called to see if he would not refund part of the money. The lawyer seemed surprised at the suggestion. "Refund!" he exclaimed. "Refund, did you say? My friend, that is a kind of fund unknown, to the legal profession!"—New York

A Shock to Richard.

Mabel had been waiting for her lover's return for what seemed to her an age. Her heart turned to stone as she thought of him, young, slender, but brave to rashness and recklessness, closeted alone with her stern father in the grim old library. The door opened at last, and he stood before her, a flush on his cheeks and an expression in his

"Did you see papa, Richard?" she asked with trembling eagerness. He held her in his arms for a moment without speaking.

"Yes, dearest," he said at length.

"And what did he say, Richard? Tell me what he said! He refused you?
Oh, your eyes tell me! He refused; he will not give me to you? But I will be -I am yours! I do not fear his harsh-

But Richard looked down into her plending face and shook his head slowly, like a man in a dream.

"Tell me, then, for I cannot wait! Was he brutal and cruel to you? What did he do? What did he say?"

Richard drew a long, deep breath and again looked down at the face turned up to meet his troubled glance. He sighed and whispered slowly: "He only said, 'Thank heaven!' and went on reading."-Exchange. Massage For Dyspepsis.

A French medical journal cites a number of cases where great and last ng benefits were derived by people suf-fering from dyspepsia and abdominal diseases from a gentle massage treatment of the abdomen. One case mentioned is that of a young man aged 20 years who for six months had been suffering with his stomach. In spite of varied treatment he was gradually growing worse and looked like one in the last stages of phthisis. He suffered from constipation and insomnia. He was very nervous and was convinced that he was about to die. After instituting the abdominal massage his condition rapidly improved. His ab-domen, which had resembled that of a child with meningitis, became supple and daily enlarged. The treatment was not severe nor very special. His pain disappeared, and he was able to digest all that was given to him. The patient gained in six months about 65 pounds, which he has not lost since that time, now five years ago .- Leslie's Weekly.

Both Prayers Answered. The last time I interviewed General O. O. Howard it was on the subject of answers to prayer, and I thought I had him. In his famous fight with Stonewall Jackson the Union forces were defeated, so I inquired of General How; ard: "You prayed before that battle?" "Yes," he answered.

"And Jackson was a praying man He prayed also."
"Yes," he assented. "Then how was it be gained the victory? Did that mean that the Union cause was wrong?" Very gently the good old general replied: "Both our prayers were answered. Jackson prayed for immediate victory and I for the ultimate triumph of our cause. We both got what we prayed for."-Independent. Penetration of Light. seen through a clean cut opening of not more than one forty-thousandth of an inch.
