Wit. Humor and Pathos

Probably no more eloquent and masterly an estimate of the life and character of Abraham Lincoln than that given last night by Bishop Fowler has ever been addressed to any audience even by the master of English rhetoric, Robert Ingersoll. His picture of the great president was a drawing from memory. He spoke as one who had known the netors and watching the shifting scenes of the great drama of the early sixties, had followed the lead- Eastern Standard Time ing figure through all the complications of the plot to the fatal ending. Throughout the discourse there were passages replete with wit and humor, which moved the audience to laughter. Before it had been given time to subside, some touch of pathos would come, and a silence almost oppressive would follow. In parts the adfiress was homely, in others eloquent, and in its close a tribute paid to the great Lincoln was matchless in beauty.-Chicago Tribune. At Assembly hall Tuesday evening, April 22. CALLED "THE BIG FOUR" BECAUSE IT CONNECTS FOUR LARGE CITIES.

There is a series of departments in this store which we call "The Big Four" because they connect us with the larger part of the Dry Goods buying population in this comunity. They are Dress Goods, Silks, Ladies' Garments and House keeping Goods.

DRESS GOODS.

The recent and unprecedented growth of our Dress Goods business is one of the significant signs of the times. We can account for it in no other way than that our line contains better values, our stock has the best assortment, and our price is much lower than these goods can be bought for elsewhere. We can readily believe this, for since the addition of the Reynoldsville Woolen Mills Popular Meltons, Venetians, Thibets and Flannnels, there has been a constant increase in the demand for these goods. There isn't a single thing in Dress Goods that we haven't got and at prices that we believe can't be met elsewhere. In the finer weaves, you know what our Grenadines are this year, our Etamines, Mohair and Camel's hair, Worsteds and Silk combined. Novelties and Plain Fabrics, all new, choice and attractive.

SILKS.

Exquisite materials for waists, Dresses, Skirts and Trimmings. We want to include in this our high grade Silk Batistes in Linen and Embroidered effects. Embroidered Swisses and the largest and most popular assortment of Waist Goods ever brought to your HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS.

This includes a matchless collection of Table Damasks, white, cream and colored, Towels, Crashes, Sheets, Pillow Cases and Lace Curtains.
