A TALE OF A HORSE THAT REMEMBERED THE TRAITS OF HIS EARLIER DAYS.

THE TRAITS OF HIS EARLIER DAYS.

How a Stolen Horse, Happening to Pass his Old Home, Proved his Identity by a Little Trick.

John A. Welsh said to a representative of THE STAR several days ago that the stealing of August Herold's horse reminded him of his father having a horse stolen a number of years ago and the peculiar manner in which the horse was recovered again. Twelve years after the horse had been stolen a man drove up to Mr. Welsh's farm and stopped. Mr. Welsh recognized his horse and said to the man, "that is my horse you are driving." To prove his claim to horse Mr. Welsh proposed that the horse be unbitted, turned in at the gate and if it did not go to the barn, pull out a wooden pin with its teeth, which was used to fasten door, and go into a certain stall, it was not his horse. The man agreed and the horse did just as Mr. Welsh had said it would do and he got his horse again. The other man had bought the horse six years before that from an agent.

THE RECORD OF A YEAR IN WHICH WINTER REIGNED THROUGHOUT THE USUAL SUMMER MONTHS

In the Year 1816 January and February were Warm while During May, June, July and August Frost and Snow were Frequent Occurrences and When Famine Threatened.

The year 1816 was known throughout the United States and Europe as the coldest ever experienced by any persons then living. The following is a brief summary of the weather during each month of that year: January was mild, so as to render fires almost useless in parlors. February was not cold; with the exception of a few days, it was like its predecessor. March was cold and boisterous during the early part of the month; the remainder was mild. A great freshet occurred on the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers, which caused much loss of property. April began warm, but grew colder as the month advanced, and ended with snow and ice, and a temperature more like Winter than Spring. May was more remarkable for frowns than smiles. Buds and fruits were frozen; ice formed an inch thick; corn was killed, corn fields were again and again replanted until deemed too late.

June was the coldest ever known in this latitude; frost and ice were common. Almost every green thing was killed; fruit was nearly all destroyed. Snow fell to the depth of 10 inches in Vermont, seven in Maine, three in the interior of New York and also in Massachusetts. There were a few warm days. It was called a dry season. But little rain fell. The wind blew steadily from the north, cold and fierce. Planting and shivering were done together, and the farmers who worked out their taxes on the country roads wore overcoats and mittens. In a town in Vermont a flock of sheep belonging to a farmer had been sent, as usual to their pasture. On the 17th of June a heavy snow fell; the cold was intense, and the owner started away at noon to look for his sheep. "Better start the neighbors soon, wife," he said in jest before leaving; "Being in the middle of June I may get lost in the snow." Night came, the storm increased and he did not return. The next morning the family sent out for help and started in search. One after another of the neighbors turned out to look for the missing man. The snow had covered up all tracks, and not until the end of the third day did they find him on the side of a hill, with both feet frozen, unable to move.

July was accompanied with frost and ice. On the 5th ice was formed of the thickness of common window glass throughout New England, New York and some parts of Pennsylvania. August was more cheerless, if possible, than the Summer months which preceded it. Ice was formed half an inch in thickness. Indian corn was so frozen that the greater part was cut down and dried for fodder. Papers received from England stated "that it would be remembered by the present generation that the year 1816 was a year in which there was no Summer."

September furnished about two weeks of the mildest weather of the season. Soon after the middle, it became cold and frosty; ice formed a quarter of an inch in thickness. October produced more than its share of cold weather; frost and ice were common.

The above is a brief summary of the cold Summer of 1816, as it was called, in order to distinguish it from the Winter. The winter was mild. Frost and ice were common in every month of the year. Very little vegetation was matured in the Eastern and Middle States. The sun's rays seemed to be destitute of heat during the Summer; all nature was clad in a sable hue, and men exhibited no little anxiety concerning the future of this life. The average price of flour during the year in the New York market was $13 per barrel. The average price of wheat in England was 97 shillings per quarter. Bread riots occurred throughout Great Britain in 1817, in consequence of the high price of the staff of life.

A PONY CART OUTFIT FREE.

The Pittsburg Sunday Dispatch Offers a Handsome Prize to Children for the Solution of Four Puzzles.

With its usual progressiveness The Pittsburg Sunday Dispatch will start the most novel feature for children that has ever been offered by any newspaper. It will give free to every reader a scientifically devised drawing and painting book which is intended to develop the artistic tendencies of children, and at the same time afford no end of amusement. It will contain outline drawings by famous artists to be colored, and a complete set of paints by which to color them, instructions for drawing, copying and enlarging—nature studies, cut-out dolls with dresses for coloring, etc. On the back of each book a puzzle in colors will be printed each week. For the correct solution of four puzzles, which will be published each successive week, beginning August 10, The Dispatch will give a pony cart and harness complete, as stylish an outfit as could be procured. In order to participate in this contest it will be necessary to get the first puzzle, published August 10, as the prize is given for the correct solution of four puzzles.

So you should have the Dispatch left at your residence August 10 without fail to allow your children to enter the contest, and at the same time get the drawing and painting book. Full instructions will appear in The Dispatch.
