FIRST OF ALL EVICTIONS.

Magyar Version of the Expulsion

Among the folklore of the pensantry of Roumania and some of the adjoining Magyar states of eastern Europe Is found the story of the expulsion of our first parents from the garden of Eden. It runs thus:

When Adam and Eve fell, God sent Gabriel, the Magyar angel, to turn them out of Eden as a punishment for their sin. Gabriel was received most courteously, food and drink of the best being set before him. Now, Gabriel had a kind heart and took pity upon the poor folk and would not accept their hospitality, remembering his errand. So he returned and begged that some one else be sent to evict the sinners, as he really could not do it. The Raphael, the Roumanian angel, was sent and was received as Cabriel had been. He, however, was very fond of a good dinner, and so he sat down and thoroughly enjoyed himself. The feast over, he told the erring pair his ewand. They at once began to weep most piteously and beg for mercy. Their bitter sorrow so touched his after dinner heart that he, too, returned and asked that some one else be sent, as he could not possibly turn out the poor folk after accepting their hospitality. Then it was that Michael, the German angel, was sent. He was received as the others by the trembling pair and treated even more sumptuously. He sat down and enloyed himself till the last morsel of food had vanished and there wasn't a drop of liquor left. Then he arose, and, turning to his host and hostess, said, "Now, then, out you go, and be quick about Most pitcously did Adam and Eve beg at least for time, even reminding him that he had partaken of their bread. All in vain. Thus it was that our first parents were driven out of

BULLETS AS EVIDENCE.

Odd Facts Developed by Their Prom inence in Murder Trials.

The important part played in many murder trials by a flattened and misshapen bit of lead or steel, once in the form of a bullet, often leads to the development of some curious facts, says the Baltimore American. A leaden bullet will lose appreciably in weight by being fired, and the form of the barrel may tend to reduce its size. In a rifle some of the lead is taken off by the grooves. The friction also heats and tends to partially melt the outside of the ball, and because of this it changes its shape in the air.

One peculiar fact about a bullet is that it will very often make a wound of entry smaller than the projectile itself even in so brittle a substance as glass. Another strange fact about a bullet is that it will often pass through intervening clothing, making a bole that can hardly be noticed, and yet carry on its point a circular piece of cloth. The carrying of bits of clothing, hair or dirt into wounds in such a manner greatly enhances the dangers of peritonitis. Were it not for this latter contact the bullet would not be nearly so dangerous, as its rapid flight and heating make it practically sterile. Blackened edges of wounds are more likely to have been caused by a lead bullet although the ball with a lead tin could also produce this result. Regarding powder stains, smokeless or otherwise, nothing of great value is to be gained when the shooting occurs at a distance greater than twelve or fifteen feet. At a recent trial a doctor stated that from powder marks on the face he judged that the shot had been fired at a distance of not more than three feet, which conclusion was later backed up by the assertion made on the stand by the prisoner himself.

His Mother Took No Chances She was a portly dame, with florid complexion and voluminous skirts. She was walking majestically down Twenty-third street, looking the picture of content. In the hand that held up her skirt was clasped a thin chain, much like a dog chain, but instead of the regulation poodle, pug or St. Charles spaniel trotting along at the other end was a small boy of perhaps five years, and whenever fascinated by the alluring attractions along his route the maternal hand gave the chain a gentle tug, and the small boy obediently answered the mute injunction.—New York Times.

Moon Influences. Many superstitious beliefs as to the "influence" of the moon still remain. In some localities it is believed to be unlucky to be empty handed when one first beholds the new moon, and among the same people having silver in the hands or gold in the pockets is a "good sign." If one is about entering upon an important undertaking, he had best defer proceedings until the moon is "fulling"-that is, until some time between "new" and "full" moon.

FIRST VIEW OF WHITE MEN The Rifle and Burning Glass Fright-

It is small wonder that the first view of a white man created terror among the superstitious Indians. A striking instance of this occurred when the Wallawalla Indians first saw Captain Clark of the Lewis and Clark expedition. Thinking to propitiate the sayages and allay their fears of the white men, be planned to visit a village of the Wallawalias before the arrival of the rest of his party.

With this end in view, he set out to cross the Columbia river in a canoe, taking three men with him. On the way he shot a crane and a duck, both of which fell near him. He landed before five wigwams placed close to each other, but not a person was visible and the doors, which were of mat, were closed. Holding his pipe in hand, as an indication of good will, he pushed aside one of the doors and entered

Inside were thirty men, women and children buddled together in terror. He went to them, shook each by the hand and said some friendly words, expressing by word and manner his kindly feeling. Their apprehensions were allayed until he took out his burning glass and lighted his pipe by the rays of the sun. Consternation agilin prevailed, and what might have occurred but for the timely arrival of two chiefs who knew the white men cannot be told.

It seems that the Indians had not seen Captain Clark, but they had seen the white crane which he had shot just before his appearance. They had also seen the duck full at his shot. They connected the fall of the birds with his advent and thought he had fallen from the clouds.

The sound of the rifle, which they had never before heard, they believed was a signal to announce the white man's coming. Small wonder, then, that their hardly allayed fears were again aroused when he brought down fire from beaven by means of his burning glass.-Youth's Companion, Removing Tumors Early.

If it were generally known among intelligent people that great numbers of innocent tumors sooner or later be-come malignant and that malignant tumors often simulate benign tumors and remain quiescent for a great while, the sufferers would unhesitatingly consent to the removal of these morbid growths in their inception, long before the possible advent of serious mischief, or when the cure might be effected by mi nor operations which would leave the smallest scars, especially in such parts as the face, neck, arms or hands

When Turner exhibited his great plcture, "The Building of Carthage," disappointed because it had not been sold at once at the private view and angry with the press for criticising it severely. Sir Robert Peel called up-

After a few days Sir Robert called again upon the great painter. "Mr. Turner," he began, "although I thought It a very extraordinary thing for you to raise your price, I shall be proud to buy that picture, and I am prepared to give you the 600 guineas"

"Ah!" said Turner. "It was 000 guineas, but today it's 700." Sir Robert grew angry, and Turner laughed. "I was only in fun." he said.

"I don't intend to sell the picture at all.

It shall be my winding sheet." For years he kept it in his cellar. Then it was brought up and hung in his gallery, where it remained as long as he lived. When he died, he left it to the nation.-Youth's Companior

Foreing the Pace.

George Gordon, an old Scotchman of miserly habits, was dying. A neighbor who was on friendly terms with the old man's relatives agreed to call on the minister and beg him to try to induce the old fellow to make a will, The minister consented and at length persuaded the miser to allow a lawyer to be sent for.

By the time he arrived the old man was rapidly sinking, but the will was smartly drawn up and duly awaited his signature. He was propped up in bed and managed to write "George Gor --." Then he fell back exhausted.

An eager relative who stood by seized the pen and stuck it in the dying man's "'D,' Geordie, 'd,' " referring to the next letter of the signature. The old man glared up wrathfully. "Dee?" he snapped. "I'll dee when I'm ready, ye avaricious wratch!"

"Well, he hasn't come." "Is that so?" "Yes, it is. Now, how do you ac count for it?"

John gave the matter a few mo ments' consideration. "Well, my dear," he said finally, "either he's lying or I am, and to relieve us both from your suspicions I'll just step down to his place and see what's the matter." And the charita-

A Bull For a God.

The ancient Egyptians believed that the spirit of their greatest god, Osiris, dwelt among them in the form of a pure white bull marked by a certain sign. Herodotus mentions two of these signs-a black eagle on the back and a black forehead with a square of white in its center. These creatures when found were worshiped during life and mummified after death. The New York Historical society has one of these "bull gods," a fine mummy from the temple of Scrapis.

TRAILING THE GROUSE.

Tracking the Birds on Snow Without

There is one form of grouse shooting for which I confess a weakness. This is still hunting, or trailing the birds on the snow. When a new snow falls, the woods are like so much clean paper, and the furry and feathered folk are so many unintentional scribblers. Here a wood mouse dotted along, dragging his tail; yonder a bare passed at speed, scared by the red rascal that made these double tracks. Small triangles show where squirrels have traveled from nest to storehouse, and larger triangles betray where the cottontalls held conference till a soundless winged owl broke up the meeting.

And here, amid the tan leaved dwarf bushes, is something. Oho! The very sight of it makes you grasp the gun tighter, and you begin to peer ahead and to breathe a bit faster, trim prints running yonder in true line were made by a grouse. Careful, now —It's fresh as— Look! Did you not see that brown thing dart from the stump to that tuft of dried fern and bush? Stendy, now! He must be light there before you, and he'll --

The Crow That Wears a Fool's Cap. The following clever way of keepin crows away from a grainfield is used by the farmer of Holland: He makes some small caps of stout paper and smears around the inner side of the mouth of each some bird lime or other sticky stuff. In these he puts some grains of corn and stands them about his fields by pressing their points Into soft earth.

When the crow finds one of these paper caps, he thinks himself in great luck until he attempts to peck at the tempting grain, when, to his astonish ment, he finds the cap attached to his head-a regular fool's cap-which will not even allow him to see what cours to take if he flies up.

However, he succeeds in reaching some coarse grass or bushes and after much bewildered scrambling and flop ping about gets his head out of this un desirable cap and ever afterward avoids the field where there are more of them.

Adam's Birthday. Formerly Oct. 23 was regarded as Adam's birthday. Theologians of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries wasted much scholarship in efforts to settle both the manner and the date of ereation. Dr. John Lightfoot, vice chancellor of Cambridge, a Hebrew scholar of European reputation, published a statement to the effect that, after years of research, he had succeeded in dis covering the precise moment when the earth "rose out of chaos" and man made his appearance upon it. This learned divine declared that "heaven and earth, center and circumference were created all together in the same Instant and clouds full of water," and that "this work took place and man was created by the Trinity on Oct. 23, 4004 B. C., at 9 o'clock in the morning."

Alexander's Miserable End. At a period when most men who suc ceed are just beginning to mount the first stepping stone of success Alexander the Great was at the summit of be power. With a trained force of less than 40,000 men he had over run all of what was then considered the civilized part of Asia and also Egypt. He over threw army after army immeasurably his superior in numbers so swiftly that the world was dazzled by the rapidity, scope and magnitude of his achieve ments. He was looked upon as a sort of demigod. And yet even he was sigh ing because there were no more worlds to conquer. He perished miserably after a prolonged debauch. His mighty empire melted like a mist under the in fluence of the rising sun and his life work went apparently for nothing.

Bread is reputed to be the "staff of life." Yet there are some people who never est bread.

We allude to this because of a curious parallel fact in medicine. We recommend Vinal and sell it on a guarantee of money back if it does not benefit the user. We don't expect Vinol to help everybody. Yet, strange to say, out of every one hundred bottles sold, less than two per cent. proved unsatisfactory. In other words, ninetyeight out of every hundred found Vinol of value-many of them great value.

We want to say that if you are run-down, weak, too thin, alling, with bad stomach, poor appetite, cough, nervousness, that we think Vinol will help
