THE TARTAR CUE.

Said to Be Worn Out of Gratitude to the Horse.

Herbert Allen Giles in "China and the Chinese" says that there are strange misconceptions as to the meaning of the Chinese cue, which has really been worn by that nation for only about 250 years.

It was imposed by the Manchoo Tartars, the present rulers of China, as a badge of conquest. Previous to 1644 the Chinese clothed themselves and dressed their hair like the modern Japanese—that is, like the Japanese who still wear what is incorrectly known as the "beautiful native dress of Japan." As a matter of fact, the Japanese borrowed their dress as well as their literature, philosophy and early art from the Chinese. The Japanese dress is that of the Ming period in China, 1368 to 1644.

But where did the Manchoo Tartars get the cue? They depended as a race almost for their existence upon the horse. The accepted theory is that out of gratitude and respect for his noble ally the Tartar, so far as he could, took on himself the equine form and grew a cue in imitation of a horse's tail. This somewhat grotesque theory might fall to the ground save that it is supported by striking evidence.

Official coats as seen in China at the present day are made with peculiar sleeves, shaped like a horse's leg and ending in an unmistakable hoof, covering the hand, which are known as "horseshoe sleeves." Incased therein a Chinaman's arms look much like a horse's fore legs. The tail completes the picture.

THROWING AN OLD SHOE.

This Curious Wedding Custom is of French Origin.

The origin of the curious custom of throwing an old shoe after a newly married pair for luck has been traced back to a French peasant origin by a young man interested in folklore and quaint customs. In southern France, after the wedding ceremony, the girl is escorted to her new home by her girl friends and left alone. The young husband, also in the hands of his friends, is next led to a point a couple of hundred yards away from the dwelling, where a halt is made. Then the girl's rejected suitor, if there be such a one, arms himself with an old sabot, or wooden shoe, while the bridegroom, ducking his head, makes a dash for the house. The disgruntled suitor throws as hard and as true as possible, and the crowd cheers or derides, according to the success of the shot. A wooden shoe is a formidable missile in the hands of an angry swain, and the bridegroom is justified in having some misgivings as he sees his defeated rival practicing in anticipation of the wedding day. Just think, says the searcher into folklore, how great a relief it would be, even in this country, to take a crack at the fellow who had done you out of your best girl without having the police step in! Over in France the custom has a wider meaning. It signifies that the last ill feeling is thus thrown away, and it is the depth of disgrace for the man who has thrown the shoe to harbor any further malice against the young couple.

DUMAS AND HIS BARBER.

Origin of the Practice of Speculating in Theater Tickets.

The practice of speculating in theater tickets, strange as it may appear, was started by the elder Dumas. He patronized a Paris barber named Porcher, and one day this worthy while shaving the novelist asked him why he did not sell the tickets given him by the managers of the theaters where his plays were produced.

"To whom could I sell them?" asked the author of the "Three Musketeers." "Why, to me, if you like," replied Porcher. "And what would you do with them?" asked Dumas. "That's my business," replied the barber, continuing to lather the bronzed face of the famous story teller.

"But I give you tickets whenever you ask for them," said Dumas. "Ah! One or two are not sufficient for my purpose," responded Porcher. "I must have all your tickets, and every day too." And you will pay for them?" said the dramatist. "Cash," was the simple yet practical reply.

Dumas at that moment was very badly in need of money, so he at once concluded the bargain. Porcher, who shortly after this gave up shaving and cutting hair, made similar bargains with other authors and quickly became rich.

Up All Night.

This getting up every night with the baby, or some of the older children, is all wrong. Not that the children are to blame. If he's the baby, probably his food is wrong. Vinol will help his mother stand the strain of nursing.

We have often seen whole families of older children who keep the parents awake o' nights. First one, then the other is ailing.

These children seem well enough at times; but they are white, hollow-eyed, often listless, with irregular appetites, peevish and fretful, wakeful at night and constantly taking cold.

The use of Vinol, in conjunction with Vinlac to regulate the bowels, will benefit these children almost in a day.

There is nothing in Vinol that can hurt them. It is pleasant to take. If it doesn't do the work, we will give you the money back.

A Trying Moment.

She was a nice little cousin from the country, and she had come to a city luncheon given by some swell friends, says a New York paper. She was having a beautiful time and chatting away merrily when the salad course came on, and the butler passed a small cream cheese. It was on a dolly placed on a flat plate, and a silver knife lay by it.

The country cousin was busy talking, and without an instant's hesitation she took the plate, cheese and all, and set it down by her own salad plate. The butler gave a decorously repressed start of horror, the other guests began to talk very fast and the little cousin, suddenly appreciating what she had done, turned scarlet and sat and gazed at that cheese in dumb agony and wished she could die then and there.

But the hostess, who sat by her, said, gently putting the action to the word: "Do let me cut you a piece of the cheese."

And then the plate was passed on, and everybody began to breathe once more. But the cousin didn't speak again for ten minutes.

A Turtle Race.

"One of the most curious races I ever saw," writes a correspondent of the London Tatler, "was on Mr. Carl Hagenbeck's lawn at Hamburg. Some seven children mounted on the backs of large turtles or tortoises raced across the lawn. To give impetus to their queer steeds most of them armed themselves with cabbages, which they tied to the end of sticks, ever and anon dangling them as tempting morsels in front of the turtles. It was a strange race and occupied some time. Every now and then a turtle would grasp a piece of cabbage and then quietly eat it before resuming its journey."

A Ready Answer.

Not all visitors to the country are as ignorant of the farmer's surroundings as the farmers sometimes suppose. Browning's Magazine gives this instance:

"Waal," said Farmer Wilkins to his city boarder, who was up early and looking round, "ben out to hear the haycock crow, I s'pose." And he winked at his hired man.

"No," replied the city boarder; "I've been out tying a knot in a cord of wood."

Farmer Wilkins scowled at the hired man and wanted to know why he was not getting to work at milking those cows.

A Deserved Fate.

Some poet wrote the following: "Long is that morn that brings no eve; tall is the corn that no cobs leave; blue is the sky that never looks yellow; hard is the apple that never grows mellow; but longer and bluer and harder and tall is my own ladylove—my adorable Poll." P. S.—The author has since died in great agony.—London Tit-Bits.

Flowers on the Stage.

No actor who is imbued with the superstitions of his profession will give yellow roses to a friend; nor will he accept them himself, as he fancies the flowers are harbingers of misfortune, jealousy and loss of friendship. Some managers will allow no natural flowers whatever to be used by way of "properties" upon the stage, but that is carrying the matter further than is usually considered essential.

Uncomfortable Position.

Finnicus—I wonder why it is that those who attain the pinnacle of success never seem to be happy.

Cynnicus—Because the pinnacle of success is like the top of a particularly tall lightning rod with a particularly sharp point, and those who succeed in perching temporarily upon it usually find that they are targets for all the world's lightning.—Town and Country.

The Doctor—A queer case of insanity came under my notice the other day. The fellow is perfectly sane as long as anybody is looking at him, but raves violently when his friends quit watching him.

The Professor—Humph! Out of sight, out of mind.—Chicago Tribune.

A Horned Snake.

A very handsome species of snake is the rhinoceros viper, which bears, as its name suggests, horns on its nose. It is most beautifully colored when freshly emerging from its cast skin, but its form is by no means elegant, being very thick in body, with a bulldoglike head. It may attain a length of more than six feet and is a very deadly animal.—Quarterly Review.

The Boast of an Expert.

"This, ladies and gentlemen, is the celebrated trick mule, Dot," said the clown as the animal was led into the ring. "After many years of effort I am able to say I can make him do anything he wants to."

Many in Combination.

"Day tells me," said Uncle Ebon, "dat contentment is better dan riches, but I 'spicious dat wif de proper facilities I could hab bof 'em at once."—Washington Star.

Effect of Chloroform on Chinamen.

It takes a very large dose of chloroform to anesthetize the Chinaman. He passes under its influence more slowly and rarely shows the excitement often characteristic of the initial stage of anesthesia. Still more rarely does he suffer from sickness on his return to consciousness. This greater spathy of nature helps to recover from several accidents and operations.—London Hospital.

Unsympathetic.

"This is a cold, unfeeling world," he remarked bitterly.

"He" returned his companion. "You, too, have heard the ribald laugh when you slipped on a banana skin, have you?"

After the Expulsion.

Adam—Too sorry! It was a fool's paradise!—Smart Set.

It is a great deal easier to teach an old dog new tricks than it is to make him forget his old ones.
