High Speed Typists.
 A STAR reporter visited the typewriter department of the Reynoldsville Business College recently and while there held a stop watch during trial tests of speed made by several students. Will F. Herpel, who has not yet finished the prescribed course, averaged seventy-eight and two-third words a minute, producing work clean and free from errors, and the others, George Hughes and Miss Ethelyn Winslow, made records equally good in proportion to the time they have practiced. When it is considered that the average man speaks only about one hundred words a minute, this speed upon a typewriter seems almost incredible, and it is rendered possible only by the use in this college of a new system of touch typewriting wherein the student never needs to look at the keys and is thus enabled to keep his eyes constantly on the copy. Prof. Hughes is an expert typist himself and recognizes the importance of this art in the modern business world. He has paid special attention to this department and has eight of the latest improved Smith-Premier and Remington typewriters constantly in use in the college. The course prepares for actual business and includes work of every kind from a business note to a complicated bill of goods or lawyer's brief.

Meek, pastor of the Reynoldsville Baptist church, who preaches in the Church of God at Rathmel at 3.00 p. m. every other Sunday, was given a present of a well filled purse by the people of Rathmel on Tuesday evening of last week, February 24. Dr. Meek and wife were invited to Rathmel on the evening mentioned above and a special and short program, was rendered, consisting of three vocal selections from Mrs. Dr. Cranwell, who is a sweet singer, three instrumental selections by Mrs. Meek, short address by Rev. J. E. Dean and Dr. Meek, and several selections by the choir. F. M. Dean was master of ceremonies. In behalf of the Baptist congregation and friends at Rathmel, Rev. J. E. Dean, in a neat speech, presented Dr. Meek with a purse containing $65.00, part of which $9.00—was from the young people of the congregation. Dr. Meek and wife greatly appreciated the present, not so much for the financial value of the present as for the love and good will that was expressed in the giving. It was a very pleasant occasion for both pastor and people and cannot help but draw them closer together in their church work.

Six Wrecks.
 There were six wrecks on the Low Grade Division on Monday and Tuesday of this week, but none injured. Monday morning a freight train was wrecked between Red Bank and Lawtonham, caused by a broken flange. Eight cars were piled up, requiring all day to clear the track and passenger trains had to transfer, making the trains all late. The passenger train due here at 12.52 p. m. was delayed several hours by the engine jumping the track three miles west of New Bethlehem. A freight train broke in two near Sabula Monday forenoon and the rear end of train crashed into front end of train and four cars were wrecked. A freight wreck occurred at Driftwood Monday evening, caused by broken flange. Tuesday morning a freight train was wrecked at Sabula, seven cars off, and while getting the wreck crew out to go to Sabula the wreck car jumped the track in the Reynoldsville yards, caused by throwing the switch at wrong time.

Trolley Party to Punksatunne.
 The husbands of the ladies of the Utopia Society chartered one of the new cars from the Jefferson Traction Company and took the ladies to Punksatunne last Friday evening on a trolley excursion. The weather was not auspicious for an outing when the hour for starting arrived, but notwithstanding this fact the trolley party had a delightful trip. Left Reynoldsville at 4.50 p. m. and arrived in Punksatunne at 6.05, one hour and fifteen minutes making the trip. The party stopped at Hotel Pantall where they were courteously received and an excellent six o'clock dinner was served in courses.

Fascinating Lecture.
 In the trust sense a masterpiece. This can be said of the lecture on "The Trial of Jesus from a Lawyer's Standpoint," as delivered by the Hon. Walter M. Chandler, of the New York Bar. Mr. Chandler possesses a fine voice, is skilled in the use of words, presents a splendid appearance on the platform, and is withal a Christian gentleman. His hearers are won at the fall of the first few words and the eyes of all are riveted on him. He is a master of the law, interprets it without a fault and leads his hearers from one sublime lesson to another. What may appear to be from the nature of the subject, a dry lecture, proves a most fascinating and instructive discourse of the world's greatest tragedy. Men from all ranks unite in unstinted praise of the high moral value of this lecture. He will fill a return date in Elmira soon. Associations will do well to see that Mr. Chandler has no vacant dates.—H. N. HANSEN, Elmira, N. Y.

They Did the Work Splendidly.
 What we said last week about the visit of the Reynoldsville degree team to the Odd Fellows lodge here on Wednesday evening, was written before their arrival, and of course before we saw their work. It was all right, what we said, but was far short of what should have been said. The team conferred the Initiatory and First Degrees in Brookville lodge, and did by far the best work that was ever done in that lodge room. All who witnessed the work were surprised and delighted.

Nearly all who were present had seen the work of the Bradford team, and they felt that the work of the Reynoldsville boys suffered but little in comparison therewith. The stage setting of the Bradford team work was much finer, but we think the Reynoldsville work is better adapted to the ordinary lodge room. All things considered, we deem the work of the Reynoldsville team equal to any we have seen. The work of the first degree is especially fine and spirited, and presented vividly the characters of David, Jonathan and Saul. Such work as this could not fail to make Odd Fellows lodge meetings interesting.—Brookville Democrat.

EXPERIENCE WITHOUT GAS.
 A Falling Tree Shut Off Gas Supply for Twenty-Four Hours.

About one o'clock last Saturday afternoon the gas supply suddenly stopped and there were many homes in Reynoldsville that were left without heat. There were various rumors afloat as to cause of sudden stoppage, but the real cause was not known for several hours, when it was learned that a large tree, that had been uprooted by the high winds, fell across the main pipe line in a ravine near Sugar Hill, breaking the pipe at a joint, and it required considerable labor to make the repair, which was not completed until noon Sunday, twenty-four hours after the pipe was broken.

Some people depend on gas entirely for light and heat, not having a stove in their homes that they could burn coal in, and these people had to seek the hospitality of their more fortunate neighbors who burned coal or were prepared for such an emergency. Some who did have stoves that they could burn coal in didn't have coal and heating accident to get some means for heat and light. Feet were seen going in all directions carrying oil cans and lamps or lamp chimneys, or a hand full of candles. People that have grates and no coal stoves, made the grate answer for the cooking purpose. Some people turned their laundry or summer clothes, where they have coal stoves, into kitchen, dining room and sitting room. Yעדitors were fortunate enough to have a large coal stove in printing office where our meals were cooked during the gas famine.

The factories that are run by gas engines had to shut down Saturday afternoon. Six teams were put to work hauling mine props to keep up the fires at glass plant to keep the large tank of glass from getting cold, which would have been a big loss to the glass company. Some of the stores are lighted with electricity and they were not effected for lights, but the other stores had to get along with oil lamps, which gave the stores a very dingy appearance. The Reynolds drug store used candles for lighting and had as high as eighty candles burning at one time on various parts of the store, giving the store a novel appearance.

There was neither Sunday school nor preaching service in the Presbyterian church Sunday morning on account of no gas.

Crackers and cheese was the bill of fare in many homes Saturday evening.

The Imperial barbershop and James Butler's barbershop had electric lights put in Saturday afternoon.

The gas was appreciated when it was turned on again.

Falls Creek and DuBois people had the same experience as the Reynoldsville people, as the pipe line that was broken supplies the three towns.
