Let us assume that your shoes fit you. Now what next? What is most important? Unquestionably "style." Demand that a shoe shall possess "style." If it has style and little else, you want it; if it has not style but everything else, you don't want it. The style of a "Dorothy Dodd" is unique. It cannot be duplicated by any other maker, because the "Dorothy Dodd" is a totally different construction from any other shoe made. It holds the four firmly at the waist (that's the instep), prevents the toes from all pulms forward and thus rives a correct posse in walking. Yes slipping forward, and thus gives a correct pose in walking. Yet it makes the foot look nearly a whole size smaller. That's curious and you went believe it till you see it. Just for once try the style of a "Dorothy Dodd."

A MARINE AUTOCRAT.

The Captain of the Battleship and

Over the vast establishment rules the captain in supreme and isolated authority. All his accomplishments must be those of the seaman, for he directs the movements of the ship in all evolutions, and his decision upon all profesdonal points is final. His responsibility at all times is grave and exacting. In time of war it will strain the stoutest nerves. In the hour of battle it is nothng short of appalling when be stands alone in his conning tower, having con-trol of all the tremendous forces lying latent in his ship only to be released at the proper moment by a touch of his hand. He is the guiding spirit of an enormous projectile of 15,000 tons that rushes through the water at a speed, it may be, of fifteen knots, and he knows that the slightest mistake of his head or heart may mean a national disaster.

But besides being the naval and milltary chief of the establishment he is a lawyer-a kind of justice of the peace, as it were, who holds court every morning, investigates reports of misdemean ors and assigns punishment to the guilty. The delinquents are brought to the "mast" - the quarter deck - with their accusers. Both sides are heard, and swift judgment usually follows. In this capacity it will be noted that the captain is court, judge and jury. Not infrequently he acts as clergyman and as such is the bishop of his diocese, acknowledging no ecclesiastical superior. reading the service on Sundays, offici ating at the burial of his dead and in the old days occasionally marrying lovers.-Lieutenant Commander Gleaves n World's Work.

A Case of Interpretation. "What shall we do with the prisoner?" demanded the spokesman of the "Do thou, O royal chamberlain, haste to the presence of his majesty and learn his wish."

The royal chamberlain burried to the presence and bowed himself thrice to the floor; then he asked the monarch's pleasure regarding the desperate out-

"Away with him!" said the king in loud, harsh voice.

But the chamberlain was something of a humorist, and when he returned to the mob he laughingly announce that in regard to the misdoings with the prisoner the king had said only that it was "a way with him."

Whereupon the mob reluctantly released their quarry. .

But in trying to explain the joke to the obtuse king the royal chamberlain became confused and completely lost his head.—Baltimore American.

Color of Judas' Hair.

In very early times all pictures of Judas were shown with great shocks of red hair falling down well on the shoulders. This and the fact that the Judas in the "Miracle Plays" was provided with a red hirsute worked the superstitious people of the middle ages up to such a degree that it was actually unsafe for a red haired person to appear in company. Seeing that things of all classes began to rebuke and denounce "the senseless prejudice against those of lively colored hair." Cyrano cent an extension of final return limit de Bergerac in his "States and Empires of the Sun" boldly praised and glorified the despised color in the fol-lowing words: "A brave head covered with red hair is nothing else but the sun in the midst of his rays, yet many speak ill of it because few have the honor to be so."

Some Examples of "Nerve,"

In a recent big libel case the foreman of the jury received a letter from a publican, apparently otherwise sane, asking him to insure that the jury should find for the defendant because he had a heavy bet on the result, and this astonishing epistic was read in court. It is interesting to note that the writer lost his bet anyhow. Equally bland was the request once made to Mr. Balfour during his premiership to have dismissed from the commission of the peace a justice who had very properly sentenced the author of the request, a notorious ruffian, to a stiff term of imprisonment for sending begging letters.—London Answers.

Coutions.

A lawyer happened to be acquainted with a juror in a petty civil case, and he met him during a recess of the court. The lawyer was just "lighting up," and under ordinary circumstances would have offered the other a cigar unhesitatingly, but it occurred to him that it might not look right.

"I suppose," he said guardedly, "that a cigar would not influence your ver-

SOME QUAINT ENGLISH.

Portuguese Idea of the Language In a Book of "Learning."

A book as amusing as it is rare is in the library of a Wissubickon student. The work is called "O Nova Guia da Conversacao." It is supposed to in-struct the Portuguese in English conversation, and the following, a dialogue headed "For to Ride a Horse," is the kind of English conversation it sup-

'Here is a horse who have a bad looks. Give mi another; I will not that. He not sall know to march, be is pursy, he is foundered. Don't you are ashamed to give me a jade as like? He is undshoed, he is with nails up; it want to lead to the farrier."

An anecdote in the book is:
"A day came a man to consult this philosopher for to know at o'clock it was one to eat. 'If thou art rich, told him eat when you shall wish; if you are poor, when you may do.'" In the preface the most elegant paragraph is the following:

"We expect then, who the little book (for the care what we wrote him, and for her typographical correction) that may be worth the acceptation of the studious persons, and especially of the youth, at which we dedicate him particularly." The authors of this strange volume are Jose da Fonseca and Pedro Caro-lino. It would be interesting to know

The curiosity of the natives of wild countries as to everything belonging to the traveler often leads to amusing situntions. Mr. J. W. Wells tells in "Three Thousand Miles Through Brazil" of his visit to one settlement where the only shopkeeper of the place proved very inquisitive. He was a frequent visitor and would carefully examine the few belongings of the traveler. His curios ity was finally punished in a very funny manner.

On one of his visits, writes Mr. Wells he found my bottle of spirits of ammonia on the table, and, seeing it was something he had not bitherto inspected, he naturally laid hold of it and asked of me, "What is this?"

"Only a medicine," I replied, and with a perhaps unworthy satisfaction I watched him hold it up to the light, look at it all round and finally remove the glass stopper and then take a good

I had to rush forward to save my precious ammonia, as he staggered and gasped for breath and ejaculated, "I am dying!" By dint of much slapping of his back and dousing of cold water he quickly recovered, but nevermore did he touch any of my things.

The fake humorous speaker has an easier career than even the fake eloquent speaker. Yet at any given dinner the orator who passes out mere clocution to his hearers has a success almost as instant and splendid as his clowning brother. It is amazing what things people will applaud when they tude. They will listen after dinner to anything but reason. They prefer also the old speaker to new ones; they like the familiar taps of humor, of eloquence. If they have tasted the brew before, they know what they are going to get. The note of their mood is tolerance, but tolerance of the accustomed, the expected; not tolerance of the novel, the surprising. They wish to be at rest, and what taxes their minds molests their intellectual repose. They do not wish to climb any great beights to reach the level of the orator.-W. D. Howells in Harper's.

In University college, London, is a singular object that is preserved carefully in a remote gallery inside a glass case, which again is contained in a huge wooden cupboard, the doors of which are locked and the keys in safe custody. The relic which is thus so zealously guarded is described in some notes on the history of the college as the "skeleton" of Jeremy Bentham, "clad in the garments in which he lived," while his head only is stated to have been "mummified." It has always been understood that Bentham's body was embalmed, and in that case it cannot be his mere skeleton which is reposing there under lock and key.

ODD RUSSIAN CUSTOM.

An Annual Assembly For the Promo-

In compliance with an ancient Russian custom all the young men and wo-men of the mercautile class in St. Petersburg assemble on Whitmonday, the former to stare and the latter to be stared at. The young girls, dressed as richly as their means will allow, are arranged in long rows by the sides of the flower beds in the summer garden, with their mammas standing behind them. The wardrobes of their mothers and grandmothers are laid under contribution, and everything bright and gaudy is carefully brought forward to enrich the drapery, the headdress or the girdle.

Some of the young ladies are so cov-ered with gold and jewelry on these occasions that their natural charms are altogether concealed; indeed the lu-dicrous excess to which this sort of decoration is sometimes carried goes beyond what has ever been attempted elsewhere. Thus bedizened the blushing damsels are drawn up in mute rows, while the papas, in flowing caftans and curling beards, parade their sons up and down. Here and there the papas and mammas try to lead the young folks into conversation with one another, in the course of which certain little looks and emotions may arise, pregnant with future circumstances. Eight days or so after this bridal exhibition private family meetings take place, at which those whose hearts are captivated at the grand show are more formally affianced to one another their parents and relatives .-"Sketches of St. Petersburg."

Kindergarten and Citisenship.

The kindergarten offers a special advantage-namely, the opportunity for practice of citizenship before real civic duties present themselves. Theory is a necessary preliminary to performance, even when the doer is not sufficiently enlightened in his work to be aware that he holds a theory. But practice is the test of theory. Right here in the kindergarten our six-year-olds are unconsciously testing theories of life through problems which will arise, willy nilly, even in a child's life, as soon as that child begins to come in contact with other children. The children solve these problems for themselves. But the wise eye is upon them, the suggestive word awaits their need. the helping hand adjusts conditions and provides the material for the children to act against. The master mind of the kindergarten-for such it ought to bepermits mistakes, it is true, but at the same time it prevents the fumbling apprentice from the discouragement the unnecessary stumble.—Gunton's Magazine.

Wonderful Things In Heredity.

It is a fact well established by students of heredity that children are apt to inherit not only the physical, mental and moral traits of their parents, but to be influenced by their age as well. Children born of very young fathers and mothers never attain so vigorous a growth of mind or body as those of older men and women, while children of old people are born old.

One of the most surprising cases in nedical history is that of Marguerite Cribsowna, who died in 1763, aged 108 years. When ninety-four, she was married to a man aged 105. Three children came of this union, but they had gray hair, no teeth, were stooped, yellow and wrinkled, decrepit in movement and could eat only bread and vegeta-

A Very Old Hat.

Among the treasures in the safe custody of Corpus Christi college, Oxford, is an old, old hat which was found in an Egyptian tomb and must date back at least 5,000 years.

Its simplicity of make has been its safeguard, for it has no nap or perishable trimmings, such as moths might corrupt. It is closely akin to what is now known as a panama straw hat and is of such excellent quality that it can be folded or crushed without any harm to its appearance. It is also quite as well adapted for practical use now as it was in the days of the pharaohs.

Keeping Track of Ships.

In the course of a year more than a dozen ponderous books are filled at Lloyd's with nothing but the names of ships, their captains and the dates on which they touch and leave port. Every known vessel in the world of more than 100 tons register has its record in them, and the underwriters can easily turn to the name of any British or forelgn ship and tell approximately where she is at the moment.—London Tit-Bits.

"Dreams," says an eminent lecturer on theosophy, "consist of recollections of the combined impressions received and workings of the physical and astrat minds.
