

Gray?

"My hair was falling out and turning gray very fast. But your Hair Vigor stopped the falling and restored the natural color."—Mrs. E. Z. Benomme, Cohoes, N. Y.

It's impossible for you not to look old, with the color of seventy years in your hair! Perhaps you are seventy, and you like your gray hair! If not, use Ayer's Hair Vigor. In less than a month your gray hair will have all the dark, rich color of youth.

FOR WOMAN'S BENEFIT

A CLEVER DRESSMAKER.

Borrowed Her Neighbor's Gown to Exhibit to First Customers.

How one dressmaker got her start in New York City is the pet story of the woman who started her.

"She rented two rooms on the first floor of a Ninety-fifth street house," said the woman. "I occupied the floor above. I had seen her sign in the window for several weeks before I saw her. One day I met her in the hall. Two days later she called at my apartment.

"I am in an awful pickle," she said, "and I am going to ask you to help me out. There are two women down stairs who want some dresses made, but before they give me the order they want to see some samples of my work. With the exception of my own clothes, and you could put all of them in a bandbox. I have nothing to show them. I find it awfully hard to drum up trade here. I haven't had a customer since I moved into this house, and I will lose those two women if I cannot make the raise of a few nice gowns to show them. Would you mind letting me have three or four of yours for a few minutes? I will return them as soon as the women go away."

"The pure nerve of the girl staggered me. 'But you didn't make my gowns,' I said. 'They were made by a dressmaker who runs a very fashionable shop.'

"So I supposed," said my neighbor. "Are they marked with her name?"

"No," said I. "That woman's style is her trademark, and I ought not to give her the benefit of it."

"The girl just stood there and looked at me and the pitiful drooping of her eyes appealed to me more effectually than any words. The upshot of the matter was I loaned her five of my newest, best gowns. Naturally the customers were delighted with them, and gave the girl a large order for summer clothes. I worried myself sick over the affair.

"What will you do," I said, "if you turn out poorly made garments? How will you square yourself?"

"I shall not need to square myself," she said, confidently.

"And she did not need to. Her work, instead of being botchy, as I had expected it to be, was beautiful. All she needed was an introduction, and after she got that, through gowns made by a swell dressmaker, her reputation and a good income were easily made."

letters of condolence should or should not be answered. Some people assume that they are never replied to, others feel an obligation to reply in writing to the kindly meant words of consolation offered by friends of the bereaved. It is true that members of a family who have sustained a loss are sometimes too much overcome to undertake the duty of correspondence. The letters of condolence are not easy to answer, and at one time there was little effort in this direction. During the past few years, however, a change has come over the face of public sentiment in this connection. The duty of replying to such letters may be divided among different members of the family and the labor of writing these need not be undertaken at once. But all the same, and often heart-breaking as it is to write on the theme of the loss, these letters are now acknowledged.

If a letter has been sent it is duly acknowledged; a few lines written on a visiting card does duty in many cases, particularly when the volume of condolence received has been very great.

The letter of acknowledgment may be brief. One page is often sufficient, for a few lines to the point are better than pages of florid writing. But the reply should be sent wherever it is possible.—Philadelphia Record.

New York City.—Fancy waists that close in the back are much in style and are exceedingly attractive in the season's materials. This very pretty May

TUCKED BLOUSE.

Manton one is equally well adapted to the entire costume and to the odd waist, to the long list of washable fabrics, and all soft and simple silks and wools, but, as shown, is of handkerchief lace with trimming of Valenciennes lace and is unlined.

The waist consists of a fitted lining, the front and the back. The front is tucked to form a deep pointed yoke, below which it falls in soft and becoming folds and is trimmed with lace. The backs are tucked in groups from shoulders to waist on lines that give a tapering effect to the figure. The sleeves are the fashionable ones that are tucked above the elbows and form puffs below. At the neck is a regulation collar.

No style suits young girls more perfectly than the simple sailor one. This very charming May Manton blouse is adapted to linen, to cotton and to wool, and can be made absolutely plain or a maze of needlework and two other sorts of laces. Mechlin and the heaviest Irish lace combine well with this attractive lace. Many of the most desirable stock ties of linen show insets of this Tenerife lace. The most notable pattern in this lace, now one thinks of it, suggests a cobweb, or a cart-wheel, done in thread, quite as much as it does its namesake peak.

Beautiful Hats.
Hats trimmed with fuchsias increase in favor. Nothing could be lovelier than a white lace straw, with black velvet ribbon bows on the outside, and a cluster of coral and purple fuchsias hung under the left side of the brim, and encircled by a fringe of lilies-of-the-valley. As regards hats, there are so many becoming shapes and such lovely materials and at all sorts of prices that no one need go unsatisfied in this important part of the summer outfit.

Flowers Grow in Favor.
Flowers of ribbon work, for millinery use, for hair ornaments and gown decoration, grow in favor and are of exquisite beauty. The latest in this ribbon work is made from sombre and shaded ribbons of very narrow width, which come out in lovely relief in Noisette roses, snowballs, marigold, daisies, violets and wistaria. The crimped and knotted ribbon "dangles" and fringes are as lovely as they are unique.

Garnitures of Black Spangles.
Very handsome garnitures of black spangles are much seen in Paris. They are designed for the adornment of black or white toilettes.

Misses' Sailor Blouse.
No style suits young girls more perfectly than the simple sailor one. This very charming May Manton blouse is adapted to linen, to cotton and to wool, and can be made absolutely plain or and three-fourth yards thirty-two inches wide or two and one-fourth yards forty inches wide.

Woman's Tucked Eton.
Loose fitting Etons are much in vogue and are always satisfactory to the wearer, inasmuch as they can be slipped on and off with far greater readiness than any tighter garment. The very stylish May Manton model shown in the large drawing includes a fancy stole collar with shoulder strap extensions, and is adapted both to the suit and to the odd wrap. As shown, it is of black taffeta, stitched with corded silk, and is trimmed with a stole collar of white peau de soie edged with fancy braid in black and white.

The Eton is made with fronts and back and is shaped by means of shoulder and under-arm seams. The fronts are laid in box pleats at their edges, and in backward turning pleats from the shoulders, but the back is elongated to form a postilion and is laid in box pleats that give a tapering effect to the figure. Beneath these pleats is attached a shaped belt which is brought round and fastened under the loose fronts. The neck is fastened with a fancy collar whose extensions fall over the shoulder seams. The sleeves are pleated for their entire length, but stitched above the elbows only and form frills below that point.

The quantity of material required for the medium size is four and three-fourth yards twenty-one inches wide, two and one-half yards forty-four inches wide, or two and one-fourth yards fifty-two inches wide.

A Dainty Lace.
Tenerife lace is the charming novelty of the season. Just how much of it is made by the natives of the cliff-bound island, which is the largest of the Canary group, is a question. It is a fact, though, that the most characteristic pattern of this lace suggests the conical peak of Tenerife. In fact, the last has much the look of very fine drawn work. One of its peculiarities is that it looks equally well on a soft silk evening dress and on a linen morning rig. On certain lovely new dresses of white crystalline this lace figures in elongated with hand trimming as preferred. The original, however, is made from blue linen with embroidered dots, and is trimmed with a band of plain white which matches the shield, collar and cuffs. With it is worn a tie of soft silk.

The waist consists of the fronts and the back and is fitted by means of shoulder and under-arm seams. Both fronts and back are gathered at the waist line, but the backs are drawn down tightly while the fronts blouse slightly and becomingly. The neck of the blouse is cut away and finished with a big sailor collar. The standing collar is joined to the shield and together they close at the centre back, the edges of the shield being held in place by buttons and buttonholes worked in the blouse beneath the collar. The sleeves are full at the wrists but snug at the shoulders and finished with straight cuffs.

The quantity of material required for the medium size is three yards twenty-seven inches wide, two and three-fourth yards thirty-two inches wide, or one and seven-eighths yards forty-four inches wide, with seven-

Woman Landowner.
Mrs. King of Corpus Christi, Tex., owns more land than any other woman in this country, perhaps in the world. Her holdings are not less than 1,300,000 acres, located in the counties of Nueces, Hydaigo, Star and Cameron. Her late husband, Captain King, was one of the old-time cattle barons. Mrs. King has about 65,000 cattle grazing on her broad acres. Under the terms of her husband's will the estate must not be divided until his oldest grandchild comes of age. Mrs. King has one son and three married daughters.

New Jersey's Historic State Building
New Jersey's State building at the World's Fair will be a reproduction of Washington's headquarters at Morristown. The New Jersey site joins that of Iowa on the main plaza. In this historic reproduction no exhibits will be permitted. The rooms will be fitted up with furniture in vogue in colonial days, and the decorations will embrace many Washington relics. The building will be headquarters for the New Jersey Commissioners and a resort for visitors from New Jersey.

IN EVERY WALK OF LIFE.
People in every walk of life have bad backs—kidneys go wrong and the back begins to ache. Cure sick kidneys and back ache quickly disappears. Read this testimony and learn how it can be done.

A. A. Boyce, a farmer, living three and a half miles from Trenton, Mo., says: "A severe cold settled in my kidneys and developed so quickly that I was obliged to lay off work on account of the aching in my back and sides. For a time I was unable to walk at all, and every makeshift I tried and all the medicine I took had not the slightest effect. My back continued to grow weaker until I was unfit for anything. Mrs. Boyce noticed Doan's Kidney Pills advertised as a sure cure for just such conditions, and one day when in Trenton she brought a box home from Chas. A. Foster's drug store. I followed the directions carefully when taking them and I must say I was more than surprised and much more gratified to notice the back ache disappearing gradually until it finally stopped."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Boyce will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists, price 50 cents per box.

Colorado Citizen's Clever Idea.
"Our Governors' Lighthouse Tower" will form a unique and interesting World's Fair exhibit at St. Louis. L. C. Landis of Colorado Springs, Col., is the originator of the idea, and the tower will be a conspicuous sight in the Colorado State building. The miniature lighthouse is a tower nine feet high and three feet across at the base. The windows are photographs of the governors of all the states and dependencies of the United States. Under each governor's portrait will appear his autograph. The tower is to be built of Colorado wood highly polished.

Brushing the Hair.
There can be such a thing as brushing the hair too much, it seems. The good old "one hundred strokes of the brush night and morning," which our mothers used to preach as a sine qua non to a fine head of hair is more observed in the breach than in the observance—at least, that's what the most famous hairdresser in London is saying. He has startled the fashionable women of England by warning them that in following the old traditions they are brushing the hair out of their hair. "The incessant brushing of the present day is ruinous to the hair," he says. "Some women used to give their hair one hundred strokes of the brush night and morning and have good hair in spite of it; an occasional person might do so now; but the good hair is in spite of the brush, not because of it. All new hairs appear first as a soft, delicate fuzz, easily pulled out or destroyed. Stiff brushing will wear them out just as it will wear out the nap of cloth. The hair roots try to make up for the destruction. They are forced into abnormal growth and their force is depleted. The old hair is falling. The new hair is not being allowed to live and grow. The life force is being exhausted. The hair gets thin, straggling, unhealthy, dies out altogether, and there you have the bald woman."

Exalted by Gossip.
Sometimes a bit of gossip about a person, when it is not scandalous, scores to his or her advantage and creates a personage out of an individual who might otherwise remain entirely unnoticed. A certain man who has made his way into the innermost precincts of smart society because persona grata entirely on account of the mystery which seemed to envelop his antecedents. No one could find out just where he came from. He was a crack polo-player and capital cross-country rider, and gradually got to know a lot of men, who found him a thorough sport and liked him for his quiet, gentlemanly ways. Some of them introduced him to their wives, and he began to be socially known in a small way. Then the mystery idea was started, and people began to talk about him. From being acquainted with only a smart set he became known to society generally, and smart women who had nothing to do grew interested in discovering his antecedents. There was a well-bred dignity about him, however, that prevented direct questioning, and no one could find out anything about him. As his conduct is irreproachable in every way, his means abundant and his manner exceptionally good, he has become a great social success.—New York Tribune.

Stenciled Gowns.
From Paris comes the very latest idea in dress decoration. The women art students are the originals and those who have seen it pronounce it charming. Where heretofore embroidery has been used the new style is to stencil the design, and, as the peculiar method used is said to be very simple, it is not necessary to have an unusual art education or talent. Any clever woman can have a dozen frocks, each different, for here is scope for her own individuality. The work is done on all textiles, being as satisfactory on wash materials as on fine silks and chiffons. Unusual as the idea sounds to those who have not seen the results, it has already passed the fad stage and has become a permanency, at least as much so as fashion is ever permanent, and many of the noted modistes are giving the art students large orders to fill.

Eschews a Downy Bed.
The Queen of Serbia is a late and distinguished convert to the idea that if one would preserve a good figure she must eschew luxurious beds. Her Majesty is conceded to possess the best figure and most stately carriage of all the royal women of Europe.

She has given up the soft bed and down pillows and sleeps on a hard and narrow divan spread with an unyielding mattress. There is no vestige of pillow under her head, but her feet rest on a small one. Previous to taking up with this unregal method of resting the Queen had been a sufferer from insomnia and nightmare, but from both these terrors she is now entirely free.

A Nice Point of Etiquette.
It is a much-mooted question whether
