Mr. Pierce is 78 years old and as he had never had his pocket picked before he was not suspicious of the "light figured" young fellows and was an easy victim.

The day was not an ideal one for such an occasion, the air having too much of a frosty tinge to make it a choice picnic day, but the six knights and companions had a good time even if was a cool day. The well filled baskets were emptied of good things at the noon hour. In the afternoon the men got warmed up in a game of ball, Sir Knight against Sir Knight. Fred Butler and Ed. Hunting With Muzzled Dog.
Thomas H. Edelblute, youngest son of the proprietor of the National Hotel, has a valuable dog that he prizes very highly, and since it has been announced that the borough "dads" have passed an ordinance, that will soon become a law, compelling dog owners to muzzle their canines, "Nell" has been penny-packered. One day last week Tom took "Nell" out to hunt groundhogs, but did not remove the muzzle before starting. The dog did finally scare up a woodchuck, but how could a muzzled dog catch a woodchuck? Tom had to catch his dog and take off the muzzle. The woodchuck did not wait to see Tom remove the cage, but "Nell" is a swift runner and she soon overtook the groundhog and it became Tom's game.

CAME HOME TO DIE.
Miss Minnie Whitmore Died at Home of Parents Sunday, August 9th.
Miss Minnie Belle Whitmore, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Whitmore, died at the home of her parents on Mabel street at 2.00 p. m. Sunday, August 9, 1903, after a hard and brave fight for life against the ravishings of consumption. Over a year ago Minnie realized that the dread disease was fastening its fangs into her vitality and she concluded to go to Casper, Wyoming, where she was offered a good position as school teacher, hoping the western climate would enable her to successfully combat the disease and finally regain her wanted health. July 8, 1902, Miss Minnie said goodbye to the ones she loved and went to Wyoming, but the climatic change did not have the desired and hoped for effect, and after four months' work in the school room at Casper she was forced to resign her position on account of failing health. She seemed to be determined to continue the battle for renewed health and accepted a position as governess of one boy on a cattle ranch, but after four months as governess she was compelled to give up that light work. A girl with less indomitable will would have given up and come home to die, but she would not give up. Some one told her that if she would go out on the mountains where sheep were herded it would benefit her health. Being so anxious and determined to live, Minnie decided to try the mountains and an opportunity opened and a trip of 80 miles, three and one-half days journey on a wagon, was made. It only required a few days to convince Minnie that the trip to the mountains was a mistake and that she was getting worse every day; she remained there, and that her life's journey was near the end and no time must be lost if she would look upon the faces again of those near and dear to her. The return trip was made to Casper on a wagon, arriving there Saturday evening, August 1st, and the following Monday morning she started for home and mother, arriving here on the 6.15 p. m. train Thursday in a weak and helpless condition, and died the following Sunday afternoon. She made the long journey of 2,300 miles alone, but had to be carried or wheeled from one train to another the last two or three times she changed cars. Mrs. G. G. Williams met her at Red Bank. It is remarkable that in her emaciated condition she reached home alive, but her anxiety to see her parents, brothers and sisters seemed to buoy her up and give her strength for the home coming. Minnie Whitmore was born in Reynoldsville October 21st, 1874, and would have been 29 years old next October. She was a graduate of the Reynoldsville high school and Clarion State Normal. She taught six terms in the public schools of this borough and was considered an excellent teacher. Twelve years ago she united with the Baptist church and was an active and consistent christian and a faithful and zealous worker in church and Sunday school while her health permitted. She was president of the B. Y. P. U. for some time and had charge of the Jr. B. Y. P. U. three or four years. She was also a teacher in the Sunday school, teaching a class of boys who loved her. It can be truthfully said that Minnie was a noble and unselfish girl with a beautiful character. Although cut down in early life, yet her life was not a failure, and the good she did will bear fruit in the lives of others in years to come.

On account of repairs being made in Baptist church, funeral service was held in the Presbyterian church at 2.00 p. m. yesterday, conducted by Rev. George Ballentine, of Clarion, assisted by Rev. J. E. Dean, Rev. J. Booth, Rev. A. D. McKay and Rev. Perry A. Reno. Interment was made in Baptist cemetery. The floral tributes were many and beautiful, including a wreath from the B. Y. P. U.

The deceased is survived by her parents, three brothers and two sisters, Charles, Foster, Samuel and Gertrude, at home, and Mrs. Blanche Hoffman, of DuBois.
