The New Exposition Open on Labor Day

Creatore, the musical wonder, in Music Hall; 150 magnificent exhibits and displays and 10 of the most interesting special attractions ever seen at any Exposition

Of course you and your family will go to Pittsburg on Labor Day. Monday, September 7. All the world, practically, expects to be there. Mills, factories and shops are all to be resting then, and naturally one will desire to spend the day where attractions are best and most numerous. This will be in Pittsburg, where arrangements have been made for a parade of 80,000 working men, and where for the first time in 14 years a Labor Day will find the City's great EXPOSITION holding open house. The railroads are prepar ing to take care of record breaking growds, so nothing stands in the way of an interesting, enjoyable for the NEW EXPOSITION col-

Of the special attractions enthusiasm may go far and not say too much. There are ten of these. One better than the other if that were possible. Heading the list it the Th atorium, trans-formed from the dingy Cinemat-ograph soom into a magnificent, light-flooded auditorium, by the expenditure of fully $5,000. Here will be seen the great American Vitagraph, and for the opening week Prof. Dooley and his trick donkey, "Wise *ike,"

Next there are the "Baby Incubator;"
"Laugha-Bit;" "The Johnstown

VICTIMS OF VESUVIUS.

Pompell and Herculaneum Not the Only Cities It Has Buried.

The road out of Naples toward Vesuto reach Pompett. When intending to go up the mountain the tourist leaves the Pompeli road at Resina, the modern city which overlies Herculaneum. Apropos of these two unclent towns, It is remarkable how many people speak of them as the only buried cities in the vicinity. In fact, there are many, and It may not be uninteresting to mention them. Next to the two familiar ones, the one whose name is most frequently heard is Stabine. Then there are Cumre, the oldest Greek colony in Italy; Baise, a watering place, resort of the Roman swells in the first year of our Lord; Parthenope, Paleopolis and Neapolis, three buried cities in g under modern Naples, from the last of which It took its name; Dikearchia (later called Puteoli, now Pozzuoli), another Greek city of large wealth and with much commerce; Capua, one of the great military posts of ancient Rome, now covered by a modern city, also a garrison, and Suessola, whose medici-nal springs held high repute among the gouty epicures of the Roman time.

Cataclysmic have been the earth's threes around that laboring monster Vesuvius, for some of these buried citles, which were great seaports 2,000 years ago, are now far Inland. On the other hand, offshore at Balze you may look down from a boat when in smooth water and discover ancient houses and streets far below you at the bottom of the sea. Some of these buried cities were much larger and more important places than either Pompell or Herculaneum, yet to many travelers their names seem unfamiliar.—Argonaut.

EDUCATING OYSTERS.

Training Schools In Which the Bivalves Are Taught Some Sense.

"A school for oysters," said a dealer in fish, "Is an institution that you would swear could not exist, for oysters are notorious for their stupidity. It is, however, a fact that there are many oyster schools. I will explain them to you in such a way that you will believe in them. An oyster's intel ligence is limited, but still it has intelligence, Yours ago certain wise fish dealers discovered that if you take an cyster suddenly from its subaqueous bed it opens its shell, whereupon the life giving water inside it all escapes and the oyster dies. But if you exlifting it out of the water for a few minutes and then returning it again, it gradually learns that to keep its shell closed when out of the water is the best thing for its health. These investigators found that they could take two pysters, one trained and one untrained, and the trained oyster, keeping its shell closed while out of the water, would live a long time, while the untrained one, opening its shell, would die in a few hours. Therefore training schools for oysters were established. The schools are in appearance nothing more than reservoirs full of water. Oysters are put in them, and the water is drained off and then returned again. It is kept off for a few minutes at first, then for ten minutes, then for half an hour and so on. Oysters in these schools learn that they will live longest and keep healthlest out of water if they hold their shells tight shut. As soon as they learn this they are graduated and go out into the world."-Philadelphia

A quick Witted Partridge. Nesting upon the ground, the par-tridge is likely to be disturbed. A bird of this species was once startled by a plow passing within a yard or so of its nest. Destruction was almost a certainty, as the plow must pass entirely over it in the next round, and the laborer wondered how the partridge would act. The time necessary for going around the field was about twenty minutes, yet in that almost incredible period the parent birds had effected the removal of some twenty-one eggs to a safe spot. Careful search led to the discovery of the bird calmly seated upon her treasures in the bottom of the hedge out of reach of the plow. Nine-

School for Nursen.

The Philadelphia School for Nurses in alliance with the American Red Cross has undertaken to train a sufficient number of young women who shall be subject to the call of the Red Cross or the government for prompt nursing service in the event of national calamities or in case of war. Co-incident with this plan an effort will be made to carry nursing skill and hospital knowledge into small towns and rural districts of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Deleware and Maryland, taking some of their young women and training them in this science.

This will secure the requisite number of nurses for Red Cross work. It will give a means of livelihood to arge numbers of most excellent and deserving young women who have but few opportunities, and at the same time it will benefit thousands of homes by the spread of their knowledge.

Every village and township in nearby States may ultimately be reached and belped in this way.

The undertaking involves the expenditure of large sums of money, but realthy and influential men and women in the four states named stand ready to earry the plan to fruition.

Any young women who aspires to Red Cross membership or to nursing service in any capacity can get full information by addressing The Philadelphia School for Nurses, Witherspoon Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

The movement is designed especially to benefit young women in small towns and rural communities.
