"I have made a most thorough trial of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and am prepared to say that for all diseases of the lungs it never disappoints."
J. Early Finley, Ironton, O.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral won't cure rheumatism; we never said it would. It won't cure dyspepsia; we never claimed it. But it will cure coughs and colds of all kinds. We first said this sixty years ago; we've been saying it ever since.

A Profitable Possibility.
There are three items of present importation to which attention might be profitably directed by our farming people. We now import: Goat skins, $25,000,000; goat's hair and wool, $17,000,000; raw silk, $42,000,000. Here are $85,000,000 worth of imports which it is possible to produce in this country. This represents nearly 10 per cent of our total importation. The goat skin trade is largely a development of recent years. The business has doubled in the last 10 years, shows a steady increase, and promises a further increase. Raw silk is not yet an industry here, but the experiments and investigations of the Agricultural department declare it to be easily within our possibilities. In 1871 we had 31,000,000 sheep in the country. In 1902 there were 62,000,000, but we are still short on both mutton and wool.—N. Y. Sun.

CABLE CODES EXPLAINED

HELPS BY WHICH THE LONG-WINDED MAY "CUT IT SHORT."

When a Merchant Has To Pay From Twenty-five Cents to Five Dollars a Word He Realizes That Sometimes Talk is Not at All Cheap.

There are many men who in their business conversation murder brevity and step all over the humanitarian rule to say a thing once only. They maul their subject almost out of recognition. They work it slowly back into shape again. They finish off with a number of personal anecdotes and when they are leaving they turn back and start all over again.

When one of these men writes letters he finds it expedient to compress an hour's talk into a single letter page. When he telegraphs he can generally get the same matter boiled down into ten words.

When he cables and has to pay from 25 cents to $5.99 for each word, he realizes that sometimes talk is not at all cheap, and he soon learns the gentle art of cutting it short. If he has considerable cabling to do, he finds that it will be true economy to invest $15 or so for a cable code.

What are cable codes?
They are books containing lists of classified phrases, alphabetically arranged according to subject. Each phrase is represented by a code word. These code words are also arranged alphabetically so that the receiver of a cable code can easily translate the message.

A code book generally begins as follows:

(SUBJECT) ABSENCE.
60000 Aabaher—Expect to be absent on the date you name.
00001 Ancrive—The person in charge of this matter is absent.
00002 Aanduct—Cannot explain his absence.

The above code words, although closely resembling the names of Pullman cars, are not thrown carelessly together by the compiler of the code book. The different telegraph and cable authorities held a congress at Bern, Switzerland, some years ago and compiled a list of about 250,000 words, without phrases. These words commence with Aabam and end with Zyzoomes. This compilation is known as the official vocabulary. Nearly all the prominent code books have their code words selected from this vocabulary. It is expected that in the near future all words sent by telegraph or cable will either have to be in plain language or in words selected from the official vocabulary. This will put a stop to the growing system of "doubling up."

In cable messages written in plain language words up to 15 letters long can be used. In messages containing code words ten letters to the word is the limit. Five figures are also reckoned as one word.

It will be noticed in the above illustration of the arrangement of a code book that each code word and phrase is numbered. All code books are numbered in this fashion. Taking advantage of this system of numbering, various schemes have been worked out by economical souls for expressing two code phrases by one ten-letter cipher, or "doubling up," as it may conveniently be called.

Say, for instance, that a man wishes to cable the two following phrases:
06120 Duncifrot—Your letter of the 26th inst. duly received.
Answer is "Yes."
07543 Evezni—Do not take any action in the matter until you receive my letter on the subject.

The sender of this message groups the code numbers of the two phrases thus: 061207543.

He also has a table something on the following order, a copy of which is in the hands of all correspondents:

| | |
|-----|-----|
| 0-6 | 6-1 |
| 1-6 | 6-6 |
| 2-6 | 7-6 |
| 3-6 | 8-6 |
| 4-6 | 9-6 |

With the help of the above table he converts his group of figures 061207543 into this interesting combination: Agcahka—A word apparently portending lunacy, but not a bad word as code words go.

The correspondent who gets this cabalistic word proceeds to work the arrangement backward and soon decipher the message intended to be sent.

Considering that by the above manipulation 20 words have been boiled down to one word, the economy of cable codes and doubling up arrangements will be readily appreciated. In fact it is the favorite argument of cable sharps who have goods to sell that the outlay will more than save its cost in the first message.

A number of codes have also been compiled to express numerals consecutively from 00000 to 99999. At first sight it would appear that 100,000 different code characters would be required for this, but the expert codifier gets along very comfortably with just 1100 characters. Each of these characters consists of five letters or less. The first 1000 characters indicate numbers from 000 to 999. The next 100 characters express figures from 00 to 99. For instance, if it is desired to cable the number "54312," reference to the code will show that 543 is represented by the word "Hope" and 12 is indicated by the word "Town." "Hoptown" is therefore the character for "54312."

It might appear at first that these codes are unnecessary, and that if a man wished to cable the figures "54312," he would simply cable those figures, without troubling himself by changing it into Hoptown. The answer to this is that cable messages are often mutilated in transmission. If the figures

RAILROADS IN HOUSES.

Mr. Leigh Has Spent $100,000 on His Railway Hobby.

To have a railway in one's private house is a luxury which few can afford, even if they have the space which such a mechanical novelty requires, says London Tib-Bits. Nevertheless, there are several miniature railways in existence and the most elaborate is that owned by Percy Leigh, a gentleman who resides at Brentwood, near Worsley.

It is difficult to compute how much Mr. Leigh has spent on his hobby, but it must have cost at least £10,000. Before laying it down, the owner built on to his house a special chamber, measuring 90 feet in length, and erected therein two stations. There is 1200 feet of line altogether, laid in two sets, and the engine, which draws five barriages, is five feet long and cost nearly £350. In addition there is a perfect system of signals, besides tunnels and bridges, and all the stations are lit by electric light. Mr. Leigh has spent years in perfecting his railway, which is modeled upon the London & North-western line.

John Adams, who lives near Fowey, in Cornwall, is likewise the owner of a private railway in his house. Mr. Adams has been an engineer all his life, and constructed the railway with his own hands. Altogether the line is 45 feet long, and runs from the dining room into the garden, where the terminus has been built. This railway has three signals, worked from two signal boxes; two stations and two locomotives, with eight carriages and five feet from the ground, and the locomotives are driven by electricity, and weigh 1400 pounds each.

The underground railway owned by Baron Peroud, a wealthy, French nobleman, is certainly a triumph of mechanical skill. The baron, who is himself a skillful engineer, has constructed the line at his house at Vichy. The visitor, on entering, is taken down by a lift to the cellar, where a large station is built, brilliantly lit by electric light, and is invited to step into a carriage, attached to which is a miniature electric engine. At a signal from the driver the train starts into the tunnel, and a few minutes later emerges at the terminus, situated at the end of the grounds. There are two sets of metals, which cover a distance of 830 feet. The baron admits that the railway cost him £23,000, and was constructed in five months by a firm of London engineers.

The Tricky Brain Cell.

The anatomy of the nervous system and consequently its physiology, was regarded in the past as very simple. Cayal showed that the specific brain cell is an independent unit provided with multiple processes, by means of which it is capable of acting not through one nerve alone but several. This independent brain unit or cell is called a neuron. A simple illustration of how the neuron acts is furnished by our not infrequent hunt for a name or an idea which we know we possess. We feel that the name is there, but we cannot recall it. We get various names near it, beginning even with the same letter or the same vowel sound, yet only after minutes or even hours does it actually occur to us.

What is supposed to happen is that the particular cell of intelligence which we are using throws out its process among the cells of memory for names, and though this process is brought in connection with cells containing similar names, it is only after a more or less prolonged search that it hits on the right one. It is as if the telephone operator in the central office felt around blindly for the connection wanted, and only after putting the plug into various holes eventually struck the proper one.—Dr. Joseph Walsh in Booklovers Magazine.

Where Ireland Scores.

Whether Ireland is the finest country in the world for growing flax it is, beyond dispute, the finest in the world for bleaching linen. Nowhere else can the snow-white finished fabric turned out to rival the Irish bleach. France, Belgium, Germany, and America have all entered into competition with us, and retired unsuccessful. The quality of the water, the climate, and the inherited experience of the Irish bleachers all contribute to the result.—World's Work.

CONCERNING CORRECT SPEECH.

Oh why should the spirit Of grammar be proud With such a wide margin Of language allowed?

Of course there's a limit—"I knowed" and "I've saw," "I seen" and "I done it," Are rather too raw;

But then there are others No better than they. One hears in the talking He hears every day.

"Where at?" asks one person, Quite thoughtless. And "Who," Asks another, "did Mary Give that bonnet to?"

Here a maid as she utters: "Oh, yes, I went out With her and her fellow In his runabout."

And hear a man saying: "Between you and I, Concerning a show, Who says to the maiden: 'Let's you and I go.'"

And this from a mother, Too kind, to her boy: "I had rather you shouldn't Do things to annoy."

And this from a student, Concerning a show, Who says to the maiden: "Let's you and I go."

There's lots of good people, That's talking like that, Who should learn from we critics To know where they're at.

—W. J. Lampton, in The Reader.

HUMOROUS.

George's Aunt—You are just as bad as you can be. George—"Huh! I guess you don't know how bad I can be.

Beesle—Is it really true that there is hardly any whaling these days? Little Bob (bitterly)—Except in wood-sheds.

"Have you seen my wrist-bag?" demanded the big sister. "No," chuckled the little Johnny, "but I've seen you beau's trousers bag.

"Why is it Willie is always so quiet when riding in the street cars? Why, his papa told him those straps could be detached."

Blodbs—I wonder why they call the ancient adages old saws, Slobs—? Perhaps because they cut with their wisdom teeth.

"Do you believe that first impressions are always best?" asked the business man. "Yes, in etchings," replied the artist.

Harduppe—A debt of honor should always be paid. Borrowwell—Yes, even though you may have to borrow the money to pay it.

Wieg—How old do you suppose BJones is? Wagg—I wouldn't venture to guess. I don't know whether he's married or single.

"I've just been reading about the Stone Age," remarked the Wise Guy. "Those must have been hard times," murmured the Simple Mug.

Sharpe—Is not Niagara the best example of hydraulic force? Wheaton—No; a woman's tears. A few of them will move hundreds of men.

Gritty George—So you were over on the golf grounds. Is de game easy? Dusty Dennis (who has grafted a quarter)—No, but de players are.

Blodbs—Politeness always pays. Slobs—That's right. While you are shaking hands with a man he can't very well be picking your pocket.

The Lady—Do you know the reason why you didn't get work this morning? Gritty George—Should say so, mum. I found a horseshoe under the road.

Gritty George—Sometimes I wish I had been an ear specialist. Sandy Pikes—Why so, pard? Gritty George—So many people turn a deaf ear to me.

"The worst thing about women is idle curiosity," remarked the Wise Guy. "Nonsense," retorted the Simple Mug. "A woman's curiosity is never idle. It works overtime."

Scriblets—I've got a winner this time. Friend—New historical novel? Scriblets—No; it's a book of excuses for borrowing money. They're all catalogued. Five for every day in the year.

Photographer—Don't assume such a fierce expression. Look pleasant. Murphy—Not on your life. My wife is going to send one of these pictures to her mother, and if I look pleasant she'll come down on a visit.

Mrs. T.—What are you making those grimaces in the glass for, my dear? Mr. T.—I'm trying to practice a look of astonishment. Some of my friends are going to make me a present to-night and I'm supposed to know nothing about it.

"Grace is greatly worried. She can't decide where to go on her bridal tour." "When is she to be married?" "The date hasn't been fixed yet." "Whom is she going to wed?" "That's another detail that is yet to be arranged. But she has her trousseau all planned."

ARBOR DAY IN AUSTRALIA.

The state schools in South Australia have a pretty annual festival, called Arbor Day, when all the scholars and teachers assemble in the open space before their schoolhouse and plant a young tree, which is the special duty of the children to tend throughout the year. The rest of the day is devoted to sports and merry-making. The trees are provided by the government and forwarded gratis to every state schoolmaster in the colony. Rapidly growing varieties are usually chosen, such as the tassels of greenish white flowers and coral pink berries; or the Moreton Bay fig, whose glossy green leaves will resist almost any heat. In a surprisingly short time the dusty playground will be surrounded with a fringe of trees forming a welcome relief for weary eyes.—E. M. Nail in Longman's.

Costume of Leather.

For the modest sum of $195, says the New York "Evening Post," one may become the owner of a complete costume of leather, as carefully tailored as the most modish cloth gown, and so contrived as to be fairly light, in weight and perfectly ventilated. The leather gown is designed for auto-mobiling. It is made with a gored and fitted skirt and a stylish shirt waist. There is much stitching on both skirt and waist, and the latter is finished with a high collar and a row of buttons. The sleeves are wide at the wrist, and there is undersleeves of mauve satin tightly shirred at the wrist against wind and dust.

No Corsets for Waitresses.

A new vegetarian restaurant has just been opened in the wholesale district in Boston, in which the waitresses are obliged to go without corsets and to go through a certain amount of physical culture work before starting their table work in the morning. All the girls are pretty and plump, and some of them possess muscular development of which a Sandow might be proud. They claim to like the work, and declare that they are delighted to be free of the straight fronts, which have been the fashion recently. They are also required to eat only vegetarian foods prepared on the premises and conform strictly to physical culture rules laid down by the management, which is now preparing to tackle the mighty cooks and require the feminine portion of that staff to doff corsets also. Business men are flocking to the place to partake of the new kind of food and gaze upon the attractive unfettered forms of the rosy-cheeked table girls.

Big Hippokets for Congressmen.

Full styles for men that are being introduced by Washington tailors who make a specialty of Congressional trade show hippokets of enormous size. The innovation is due to the fact that the next Congress will be a dry one so far as the sale of liquors at the capital is concerned. The bar has been removed from the capitol and members of the next House will be forced to carry flasks in the hip pockets of their trousers and be content with water and soft drinks while the House is in session. The tailors are anticipating the expected demand for the sake of the feelings of the Congressmen and will try to make enlarged hippokets popular.

We should think of shooting stars as solid shot about the size of a cherry or cherrystone, each of them flying with 100 times the speed of a bullet as far as the orbit of Uranus and returning to the earth's distance from the sun three times in a century, unless it strikes our atmosphere and is burned up in a flash, says the American Inventor.

Among the courses at an official dinner at Berlin in honor of the Kaiser's birthday were "Ribs of Beet with Victoria Sauce," sweets labeled "Under Venezuelan Palms" and "German-English Sweets at La Guayra," and the ices called "Caracas Bombs."

A Popular Domestic Service.

While the kitchen has no attractions for girls who have their living to earn, there is one department of domestic work which remains popular with them. Girls have no objection to becoming nursery maids. The schools for training of infants' nurses are full and crowded. Yet the nurse has less liberty than the cook and loses more sleep. The compensation is in more pleasant surroundings and in her closer relations with the family which employs her. She grows fond of her charge and the baby's mother receives her with appreciative kindness. In short, she enjoys a home life which other domestics lack. To reinvigorate the position of cook with like attractions seems to be the problem of the hour. Now that many kinds of employment are open to women the question of making the cook's position desirable is "up" to all householders.—Baltimore Sun.

Are Most Women in Summer—Per-na is a Tonic of Efficiency.

Mrs. Fessie Nelson, 22 Broad St., Nashville, Tenn., writes: "As Per-na has done me a world of good, I feel in duty bound to tell of it, in hopes that it may meet the eye of some woman who has suffered as I have. For five years I really did not know what a perfectly well day was, and if I did not have headache, I had backache or a pain somewhere and really life was not worth the effort I made to keep going. A good friend advised me to use Per-na and I was glad to try anything, and I am very pleased to say that she bottles made a new woman of me and I have no more pains and life looks bright again."—Mrs. Fessie Nelson.

Mrs. Fessie Nelson.

JOSEPHINE MORRIS, 236 Carroll St., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: "Per-na is a fine medicine to take any time of the year, but I have found it especially helpful to withstand the wear and tear of the hot weather. I have taken it now for two summers, and feel that it has kept my system free from malaria, and also kept me from having that worn-out, dragged-out look which so many women have."

"I therefore have no hesitancy in saying that I think it is the finest tonic in the world."—Josephine Morris.

Per-na is frequently used as a mitigation of the effects of hot weather. What a bath is to the skin, Per-na is to the mucous membranes. Bathing keeps the skin healthy, Per-na makes the mucous membranes clean and healthy. With the skin and mucous membranes in good working order, hot weather can be withstood with very little suffering.

Frequent bathing with an occasional use of Per-na is sure to mitigate the horrors of hot weather. Many ladies have discovered that the depression of hot weather and the rigors they have been in the habit of attributing to malaria quickly disappear when they use Per-na. This is why Per-na is so popular with them. Per-na provides clean mucous membranes, and the clean mucous membranes do the rest.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Per-na, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Evil of Piano Playing.

An eminent Berlin nerve specialist who had his attention attracted to the chronic nervousness of many pianists, has been studying the piano from the pathological point of view. Out of 1,000 young girls whom he examined, each of whom had begun to study the piano under the age of 14, no less than 600 had some nervous malady, while out of 1,000 who had never studied that instrument only 100 were afflicted. The Berlin specialist, has promulgated the theory that no child should be allowed to learn the piano before the age of 16.
