ROBINSON
SHOE COMPANY.

The Duration of a Dream.
One evening Victor Hugo was dictating letters to his secretary. Overcome by fatigue, the great man dropped into a slumber. A few moments afterward he awoke, haunted by a dream which, as he thought, had extended over several hours, and he blamed his secretary for sitting there waiting for him instead of waking him or else going away. What was his surprise when the bewildered secretary told him that he had only just finished writing the last sentence dictated to him.

A Striking Simile.
Old Employee—You know as well as I do that I have been as faithful as clockwork in your employ.
Old Employer (bitterly)—Yes, just exactly as faithful as clockwork. You struck every time you could and never gave more than five minutes' warning.—Baltimore American.

Classifying Him.
"Yes, ma'am," said the peddler, "this here hair tonic will raise hair on a billiard ball."
"But will it raise hair on a pumpkin?" asked the lady of the house.
"Well, I should say so!"
"I'll take a bottle and get my husband to try it!"—Judge.

Servants.
First Housewife—Some days I undo about everything the servant does.
Second Housewife—Gracious! How do you dare?—Detroit Free Press.

COURTESY IN THE HOME.

It is Essential to Happiness in the Family Circle.
There is no place where there is greater need of true, refined, everyday courtesy or where it will be more greatly appreciated than in the home circle. Yet in how many households do we see an entire lack of it.
The husband comes in tired and surly, hurries down his meal, gives the cut a kick and departs without one kind word or gracious act to any one.
The children are noisy and quarrelsome. The mother, tired and nervous, has only sharp, reprimanding words for her husband, the children and the servant. The whole atmosphere appears surcharged with the very quintessence of disturbing and disheartening elements.
Let a visitor come in to make a neighborly call, however, and how quickly everything is changed. Both husband and wife welcome him with the sweetest of smiles and courtesy. When the visitor departs, he is bowed out with the most charming grace and in silver tones invited to call again.
This is eminently right and proper, but why should not the same consideration prevail among those who are bound to each other by ties of family relationship—"our own, whom we love best"? Why should not the wife, the child, the servant, whom you meet every day in the most intimate relations—why should they not, I ask, be vouchsafed some courtesy as well as the guest who calls for a brief hour?

"Charity begins at home," we are told, and I think courtesy should too. No one, be he man or woman, can stand weeks and years of continual fault finding or habitual discourtesy.
You bow to your next door neighbor when you meet her in the street and give her a kind or cordial word. Why not be respectful to members of your own family? Try it. You will find you will become an ideal one, and every one will be influenced to good by the light which will radiate from it.—Pittsburg Press.

The First Lexicographer.
Dr. Johnson, even if we except his predecessor, Bailey, was not the father of lexicographers. In a volume issued by the historical manuscripts commission on manuscripts in the Welsh language it is stated that the idea of illustrating the meaning and correct use of words by actual quotations from the literature of a living language seems to have been first put in practice by Griffith Hiraethog, the herald bard of Wales, who died in 1554. It was not till the days of Dr. Johnson, 200 years later, that a similar idea took root in English soil. An abbreviated copy of Griffith Hiraethog's Welsh Dictionary was made by his pupil, William Llyn, between 1597 and 1573 and is now in the free library at Cardiff.—London Times.

SECRETS OF SUCCESS.

Push, said the button.
Never be led, said the pencil.
Take pains, said the window.
Always keep cool, said the ice.
Be up to date, said the calendar.
Do business on tick, said the clock.
Never lose your head, said the barrel.
Never do anything offhand, said the glove.
Doing a driving business, said the hammer.
Be sharp in all your dealings, said the knife.
Trust to your stars for success, said the night.
Spend much time in reflection, said the mirror.
Make much of small things, said the microscope.
Strive to make a good impression, said the seal.
Find a good thing and stick to it, said the glue.
Turn all things to your advantage, said the lathe.
Make the most of your good points, said the compass.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

All That Was Lacking.
He had been away on a business trip for quite a long time and had brought his wife a handsome fan upon his return.
"You're just perfectly lovely, Fred," she said. "It's the daintiest and most beautiful fan I ever saw."
"I'm glad you like it," he returned, with evident gratification.
"How could I help liking anything so pretty?" she asked, and then she added with a sigh, "I only wish I could carry it some time."
"Why can't you?" he demanded.
"No gown to go with it," she answered promptly. "There ought to be a gown to match or at least one that wouldn't look shabby beside it if!"
She got the gown. He kicked himself for two days and ever thereafter bought fans to match what she already had.—New York Times.

Runciman and Henley.
It is related that shortly after Runciman, the well known writer on seafarers and smugglers and poachers, had bitterly fallen out with W. E. Henley he lay dying in London. To Henley in Edinburgh, lame and ill, came an indirect message that Runciman believed that if Henley could come and look on him he would get well. It was a dying man's whimsy, but Henley took the train from Edinburgh and arrived in London to find his friend dead.

A Modern Instance.
"In some circles of ancient magnificence," said the pedantic person, "it was customary to have a skeleton at the feast."
"We follow that custom at our house," answered Mr. Meekton. "We have a turkey one meal and the skeleton for the next four."—Exchange.

ONE WEEK'S SALE AT THE
Cash New York Racket Store

FIRST, we are compelled by need of space to lessen stocks. Room, room, is the cry from every part of the house. Then incoming holiday goods that must be housed demand a quick exodus of what's already here. And so you see 'twixt demand and necessity we've but one alternative—that is, to quicken the sale of merchandise. Nothing will bring this more expeditiously than lessened prices. And so we've blue-penciled many stocks—merchandise of the most desirable character.
