

Miss Rose Gordon, well known as a poetess and elocutionist, of Lexington, Ky., tells how she was cured of uterine inflammation and ovaritis by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I have been so blessedly helped through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I feel it but just to acknowledge it, hoping that it may help some other woman suffering as I did. For years I enjoyed the best of health and thought that I would always do so. I attended parties and receptions thickly clad, and would be suddenly chilled, but I did not think of the results. I caught a bad cold eighteen months ago while menstruating, and this caused inflammation of the womb and congested ovaries. I suffered excruciating pains and kept getting worse. My attention was called to your Vegetable Compound and the wonderful cures it had performed, and I made up my mind to try it for two months and see what it would do for me. Within one month I felt much better, and at the close of the second I was entirely well.

"I have advised a number of my lady friends to use it, and all express themselves as well satisfied with the results as I was."—Miss Rose Gordon, 410 S. Broadway, Lexington, Ky.

The experience and testimony of some of the most noted women of America go to prove beyond a question that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will correct all such trouble and at once, by removing the cause, and restoring the organs to a normal and healthy condition.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—About two years ago I consulted a physician about my health which had become so wretched that I was no longer able to be about. I had severe backache, bearing-down pains, pains across the abdomen, was very nervous and irritable, and this trouble grew worse each month. The physician prescribed for me, but I soon discovered that he was unable to help me, and I then decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and soon found that it was doing me good. My appetite was returning, the pains disappearing, and the general benefits were well marked.

"You cannot realize how pleased I was, and after taking the medicine for only three months, I found that I was completely cured of my trouble, and have been well and hearty ever since, and no more fear the monthly period, as it now passes without pain to me. Yours very truly, Miss Pearl Ackens, 327 North Summer St., Nashville, Tenn."

When a medicine has been successful in restoring to health more than a million women, you cannot say without trying it "I do not believe it will help me." If you are ill, do not hesitate to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and write Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for special advice. Her advice is free and helpful. Write to-day. Delay may be fatal.

$5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness. Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass.

Curious Effect of Tornadoes.
One or two remarkable examples of the effect of the sudden expansion of air inside buildings when the partial vacuum produced by a tornado passes over them was noticed in the storm that devastated Gainesville, Ga., last June. The walls of a mill were blown outward, and the roof was lifted into the air and suspended there for several seconds. A stand-pipe 40 feet in diameter and 50 feet high, placed 50 feet above the ground, had its sheet iron cover, which weighed several tons. It was lifted bodily off, carried into the air, and dropped 100 feet away. In its fall it killed several persons.—Ohio Valley Manufacturer.

Feeding Animals in Winter.

As soon as the working season is over the farmer begins to economize in the keeping of his stock over winter. The plan answers well for idle hogs, but to attempt to keep a cow on a little food as possible is to entail a loss. Steers, hogs and sheep should be fed in winter as liberally as are the cows. The winter is the season when the farmer can bestow his attention on his animals, and he should endeavor to keep them growing and increasing in weight until they are ready for market without regard to the season of the year. There is no more reason for keeping an animal at a standstill in winter than in summer. Time and labor will be wasted when the stock is fed simply to keep the individual over winter.—Philadelphia Record.

Bulky Food Needed.

No one would think of feeding cows grain only, without hay or corn fodder, and expect to keep healthy animals. It is just as much necessary to give hens something for "filling" and cut hay and clover fill a place of importance in maintaining health in hens.

If given scratching material of hay, straw or leaves, or if the hens are allowed access to barn mows, they will get a supply of filling, but very likely will get an article of little food value. Still another danger, not only to profit but to health, is the depending upon corn for feed. Corn has its place and is needed as a heat-producing food; but to use it altogether, to the exclusion of wheat and oats, is to get unhealthy birds and a few eggs.

Scaly Legs.

If hens have scaly legs, do not allow them to remain in that condition. Mix one teaspoon of kerosene or sulphur with three of lard, and grease the shanks of the afflicted birds. A dry time makes the work most comfortable and effective. The scaly leg is caused by a mite or itch insect which spreads. We have found that simply dipping the hen's legs in a small can of kerosene would cause the scales to drop off. This may seem a little severe, but off come the scales and the mites with them; and if the hens have access to dust and an outdoor run, we doubt if it is at all painful, only to the mites. Any way, get them off. Scaly legs are not only an abomination in themselves, but they annoy the birds; and lack of comfort, whatever the cause, means a lack of eggs.

Care of Young Apple Trees.

Apple trees which are set out in the spring should be mounded up with earth about the base. Pile the earth up around the stem one foot in height and to a distance of 12 to 15 inches from the base.

This practice has a three-fold advantage. It acts as a stand, holding the stem in place, and prevents its being worked about by the winds when the ground is soft in the early spring; it prevents heaving; it also serves as a root protection against the sudden changes in temperature and prevents injury by mice. When the ground is covered with snow mice frequently dig over and girdle the stem of small trees. Experience has proven that when the trees are mounded up with earth Mr. Mouse goes around instead of burrowing under, and thus the tree escapes.

The All-Purpose Horse.

It is folly to talk about one breed of horses being suitable for all purposes. Consider for a moment the light harness horses tugging at the great transfer wagons, or the big two-ton farm loads on the road to market. The Live Stock Journal says that the all-purpose idea is still cherished by some farmers who never raised or sold a good draft horse. They have always believed that the draft horse was too big for farm work. But farmers raise horses now to sell and they have learned that the big draft mares are the most profitable farm team. They do the farm work of plowing and hauling to perfection, and they raise the highest priced animal on the farm, while the all-purpose horse is the cheap horse in competition with the western range horses and little trotters; don't pay to raise.

Seed Corn.

Permit me to give my plan for saving seed corn that I have practiced for 20 years with very good results. I leave the shuck on the corn and hang it up in the barn. It will need no other protection, if you keep the mice away from it. I have corn hanging in my back yard on a pole that has had all the rain, hail, sleet, snow, fog and sunshine for two years and a recent test shows that it will not only germinate but will send up a vigorous stalk. In that time we have had a temperature of 98 degrees in the shade and it has been as low as 10 degrees below zero. Don't strip the shuck back to examine the ear, but gather an abundance of seed and you can select at planting time. By being careful you can examine the ends of the ears to see if they are well filled if you wish and if the shuck is loose on tip end tie a string around it.—Correspondent Farmers' Guide.

Scrub and Pedigree Cows.

Breeders and others who are familiar with pedigree cows are fond of talking and writing about their pets. They urge farmers to get rid of the scrub stock, buy the pedigree stock and change their loss in the dairy to profit. Unfortunately, this is only half the story. We are quite ready to admit that the pedigree cow is superior to the scrub cow, but why should any farmer sink his money in pedigree cows until he learns thoroughly that such animals would be little better than his scrubs under the present plan of feeding?

If those who urge the pedigree cow would take some trouble to educate the farmer in proper ways of feeding, there would be more pedigree cows sold than now. It is the man who has learned to feed properly who most quickly sees the value of the well-bred cow. A high-bred animal is not likely to do any better, if as well, on a ration of corn and cornstarch than the scrub cow. The chances are nine out of ten that failure to make the dairy pay is due to improper feeding of the cows. Correct this fault and one will quickly see how much better the dairy would pay with better cows back of it.—Indianapolis News.

Keeping the Apple.

Frequently apples are gathered before they are ripened. But there is a considerable difference in the weight between the fruit ripened on the trees and those which are gathered prematurely and left to ripen in a heap. M. Lechartier of the Agronomic station of Rennes, France, experimented as follows:

The same variety of apple was taken, one lot was packed on Oct. 21, and the other on Nov. 21, and the two lots were analyzed when completely ripe. The fruit gathered on Oct. 21 averaged 48 grams, while that picked a month later averaged 70 grams. The sole fact of having left the fruit a month longer on the trees gave an increase of nearly one-half. Thus one can see the great advantage there is in leaving the fruit to mature upon the trees, especially in a year when the yield is slight, as is the case this season.

As regards the chemical composition, the properly ripened apple contains more acid and more mucilage, while the quantity of sugar and tannin are the same in both cases. A foolish practice is often followed, that of leaving the apples in a heap exposed to the wind and weather. This is wrong, because the sugar is gradually washed away by the rain. One may prove this fact by putting an apple into water and leaving it for a day or two, when the water will be found to contain all sugar matter. Apples should be placed under a slight cover or shed, where they are protected from the weather.—Indianapolis News.

Planting New Trees.

When the trees come, unpack unless there is freezing weather, in which case put the box in a frost-proof building until mild weather; when the box is opened until each bush, shake out all packing and dip the roots in thin mud, prepared by stirring rich soil into a half barrel of water. Then heel in; cover roots and a foot of body with soil, taking care to work soil well among roots, and tread firmly.

To winter trees north, where fall planting is considered unsafe, dig a trench two feet deep on a dry knoll, using the soil to make a sloping bank on the south side; lay in the trees with tops slanting south and bury their very tips. Tread firmly; then another layer of trees, etc., covering all deep with soil, rounded to centre; no danger of putting on too much earth. Spread trees in this layer; until all branches. Dig trenches to drain off all surface water.

Plant either in fall or spring; the above plan combines all good points; trees live and grow better than if fresh dug in spring and are at hand just when wanted. The planting season is not regulated by date, nor by your season, but by condition of trees to be planted.

Prepare soil for trees at least as well as for wheat, corn or potatoes. Plant when soil will powder, not paste. Dig large holes to admit roots; never bend roots, cut back rather. Cut off bruised or broken roots up to sound wood. Then dip roots in thin mud—and never let it dry. Don't set too deep; trees after ground settles should stand same depth as in nursery—except dwarf pears, which set four inches deeper.

Straighten out all roots in natural position; fill in with fine moist earth, firming it among the roots; leave no air pockets. When hole is one-quarter full, tread softly; and so, until level full; then strew an inch of fine loose soil on top.—Massachusetts Ploughman.

Horticultural Notes.

The failure of trees to fruit is usually due to one of two causes, lack of available plant food in the soil or too much top allowed.

Whenever root grafting is used in the winter the plants should not be set out in the spring unless the grafts have grown together.

Examine the branches of fruit trees for signs of caterpillar eggs. Cut them off and burn with the branches on which they are found.

Few persons who burn the piles of limbs trimmed from apple trees know what they are losing in the way of first class kindling wood.

It is useless to plant fruit trees unless they are hardy, vigorous and productive of fruit that will not only keep well, but will sell well to consumers.

In taking up and potting geraniums and other bedding plants for indoors, cut them back pretty close to the crown and keep them in a partially shaded place for a few days.

spoonful of Peru-na every hour will shortly cure it, leaving no trace of it behind. After chronic catarrh has become established, or the first stages of chronic bronchitis or consumption have been reached, it will take much longer to effect a cure.

It seems strange that as well known and well established as these facts are any one should neglect to profit by them, and yet no doubt there are many who pay little or no attention to them and go on catching cold, acquiring chronic catarrh, bronchitis and consumption.
