YOUR DAILY MEALS.

| Little Sermon on What to Est and

If you cat a hearty dinner at the close of each day's work, a dinner made up of food elements which have a chance to build up the body during the night's rest, then you should eat a light brenkfast, so that your new energy may go into your morning's work instead of being all used up in digesting your morning ment.

But if you have not eaten the proper quantity and kind of food for dinner you must eat a hearty breakfast, or else feel faint from undernourishment.

You should not eat meat for breakfast, for meat should only be eaten at time when complete rest can be taken. If you feel the need of ment eat eggs instead or nuts.

You should eat a well cooked cereal, but know this: The cereals which can be cooked in three minutes are hardly worth the eating, because they have so little nourishment in them. Ontmeaf that has been cooked several hours is very good. Half cooked oatmeal is so poor a food that it is almost a poison. Cornmeal must also be well cooked, too. If it is to do its best work for the human body-and soul, And if you will eat bread for breakfast cat the German zwieback, crisp rolls or brown toast. Hot bread and cakes clog your system and will make you cross and uncomfortable before

Coffee could be a healthful drink if it were properly made and not boiled until it is bitter with tannin. Clear coffee, one cup of it, may have no ill effects on your nerves. Coffee, with cream, one cup or two cups, will make you billous.

But, whatever else you eat or drink eat fruit and a great deal of fruit, for breakfast. If you want a fruit tonic drink the juice of an orange and half a lemon. If you want fruit for a food eat apples or bananas. Or if these do not agree with you ent apple sauce, cooked prunes, cooked canned fruit.

WHY HE DID NOT GET ON.

He had low ideals

thing.

He did not dare to take chances. He had too many irons in the fire. He was never a whole man at any

He thought a good business should run itself. He did not appreciate the value of appearances. He did not know how to duplicate himself in others.

He let gruff, indifferent clerks drive away his business. He trusted incompetent friends with sponsible positions. He would not change fairly good methods for better ones. He did things over and over again because be lacked system. He thought he knew all there was to know about his business.

He tried to economize by cutting down his advertising appropriation. He was a good, honest man, but he did not do business in a business way. -Success.

A Horse Which Thought.

Instances of great intelligence in horses are almost as numerous as the horses themselves, but there are few which make prettier stories than this, related in La Nature by a Parisian.

At Vincennes, in my childhood, he writes, my father had two spirited horses of fine blood. One day while one of them. Prunelle, was passing between two walls with my little sister on her back the child slipped and rolled between the horse's feet.

Prunelle stopped instantly and held one hind foot in air. She seemed to fear to lower that foot lest she should step on the child. There was no room for the horse to turn nor for a man to

In that uncomfortable position, with lifted foot, however, the horse stood patiently while an attendant crawled between her forefeet and rescued the child.

Field's Finishing Touch. Eugene Field was once visiting the house of Richard Henry Stoddard in New York. During the evening a certain well known physician dropped in. He was a serious man and a bit pompous. The talk turned on diet. "Doctor," said Stoddard, "I've heard that you eat two eggs at breakfast every morn ing the year round." "No," said the doctor emphatically. "No. On the con-trary." "On the contrary!" cried Stoddard. "What's the contrary of eating two eggs?" "Laying two eggs," came in deep, solemn tones from Field.

"Do you mean to say you didn't give that horse thief a trial by jury?" "We didn't dare," answered Bronche "If anything as unusual as a trial took place the whole town 'ud turn out to see it, and some one would be sure to sneak in and steal some more horses."-Exchange.
