"Why did this walter give you a lit tle wine before helping the rest of us? asked a man of curious mind.

"Oh," said the host, "that's always

"I know it's niways done. That does not answer my question, though. Here, walter," the man persisted, "you tell me why when you open a bottle of wine you pour a few drops into the host's glass before serving the guests."

The waiter smiled and answered: "It's a matter of form, sir; an old custom, a politeness. Its origin lies in the fact that after the removal of the cork there might be left in the neck of the bottle a little dust or a few specks of cork. The first drops poured out would in that event contain the dust or the cork, and thus the guest were he served first might get this refuse; hence the host is given the first drops.

"As a matter of fact, if you know how to open wine you have no difficulty in keeping the bottle's neck clean. The custom, therefore, is a formality in America. In Italy, though, it is a real ecessity, for over there they pour little oil in the necks of their bottles of native wine before corking on the ground that this makes the wine air tight. No doubt it does, but it also in some cases gives to the first plans from the bottle a decidedly olly flavor. Therefore the first glass the host gallantly takes."-Philadelphia Record.

HE WON THE AUDIENCE. The Way Fred Douglass Got the Besof Captain Rynders.

The inexhaustible sense of humor in Frederick Douglass kept bim clear of any sense of gloom, as was never better seen than on the once famous oc casion when the notorious Isniah Rynders of New York, at the head of a mob, had interrupted an antislavery meeting, captured the platform, placed himself in the chair and bidden the meeting proceed. Douglass was speaking and, nothing loath, made his speech only keener and keener for the interference, weaving around the would be chairman's head a wreath of delicate sarcasm which carried the audience with it, while the duller wits of the burly despot could hardly follow him. Knowing only in a general way that he was being dissected, Rynders at last exclaimed, "What you abolitionists want to do is to cut all our throats!" "Oh, no," replied Douglass in his most dulcet tones; "we would only cut your hair." And, bending over the shaggy and frowzy head of the Bowery tyrant, he gave a suggestive motion as of scissors to his thumb and forefinger with a professional politeness that instantly brought down the house, friend and foe, while Rynders quitted the chair in wrath and the meeting dissolved itself amid general laughter. It was a more cheerful conclusion perhaps than that stormier one-not unknown in reformatory conventions-with which Shakespeare so often ends his scenes, "Exeunt fighting." - Thomas Wentworth Higginson in Atlantic.

Which Is the Larger Incomet Here is an interesting problem in mathematics: Two clerks are engaged. one at a salary which begins at the rate of $100 a year, with a yearly rise of $20, and the other at a salary commencing at the same rate, but with a half yearly rise of $5. In each case payments are made half yearly. Which of them has the larger income?

Who is not tempted to say the for-

Yet the latter is the correct answer, for in the first year the first clerk receives $100, but the second clerk receives $50 and $55, which amounts to $105 in the year. The first clerk in the second year gets, to be sure, $120, but No. 2 gets $60 for the first half year and $65 for the second, or $125 in all.

Gin In England In the Old Days. Before intoxicating liquor was made dear by taxes and its sale was regulated by licenses the use of it in England was astonishingly common. Not only were there in London 6,000 or 7,000 regular dramshops, but cheap gin was given by masters to their work people instead of wages, sold by barbers and tobacconists, hawked about the streets on barrows by men and women, openly exposed for sale on every market stall. forced on the maidservants and other purchasers at the chandler's shop, until, as one contemporary writer puts it, "one-half of the town seems set up to furnish poison to the other half."

The Mischlevons Magple

Here is an anecdote illustrative of the magple's love of mischief and of sport; There was a field wherein clothes were often hung out to dry on posts which were let down into deep wooden sockets buried in the ground and were carried away and put under cover when they were not in use. A gravel path ran round the field, and a tame magple, which had the run of it, was observed to walk repeatedly and demure ly from the path to a particular point in the field, conveying each time a stone in her bill and then returning without it. A magple seldom continues at any one amusement for any length of time, but this amusement went on so long that the curiosity of the owner was aroused. There must be something unusually novel or piquant about He went to the spot and found that large toad bad fallen into one of the wooden sockets and that the magple was amusing herself by deliberately stoning it! As each shot told, the toad gave a little hop of distress in the hole deep below, which the magple capped a big hop of satisfaction and an irresistible "currack" of delight above, -R. Bosworth Smith in Nineteenth

The Goose and Gridiron, There existed in London long before the great fire in St. Paul's churchyard n very popular music house called the Miter. Here concerts were held, and the music at these performances had at least the merit of volume and Joyous ness. But the great fire laid the building in ruins and banished the music. When the place was rebuilt, the new tenant, wishing to ridicule the charac ter of the former business, chose as his sign a goose stroking the bars of a gridiron with her foot and wrote be low, "The Swan and Harp," At the Goose and Gridiron Sir, Christopher Wren presided over the St. Paul's lodge of Freemasons for over eighteen years, and be presented to the lodge the trow el and mallet with which he laid the first stone of the enthedral. The goose is still preserved with her unmusical in Guildhall.-Julian King Colford in St. Nicholas.

Colombian Natives.

In Colombia the huts of the poor are of logs, with bamboo plaited sides and mud filled chinks. The windows have wooden shutters, but no glass. Sleep ing places are bamboo benches with hide thrown over them, or hammocks woven by the women. Gourds of various shapes and sizes do duty for dishes, spoons and knives. Chairs and benches are hollowed logs of wood. But the peons their living easily and enjoy life well. They delight in music and dancing, and women as well as men are smokers. Cockfighting is a favorite amusement.

The peasant women are usually bare footed and bareheaded, with mantillas for special occasions. Their dress is a short skirt and bodice or an ample frilled low necked garment called a Even the poorer classes are bedecked with jewelry.

Wooden Shoes,

Wooden shoes in France are produced to the extent of about 4,000,000 pairs yearly. They are made in Alsace and Barriers by machinery and in Lozere by hand. In the last named province 1,700 persons are engaged in this manufacture, and the yearly product is more than half a million pairs. The best are made of maple. In the provinces nearly every lady possesses a pair of the finer sabots for wearing out in damp weather. These have mono grams and other designs carved on the vamps, and they are kept on the foot by ornamented leather pieces over the instep. The manufacture of these pieces of leather is a regular business

A GRASSHOPPER RACE.

Mackay Won It Because the Pro-

John W. Mackay was an early riser, hard worker and, although exceedingly hospitable, was himself abstemious and could seldom be induced to lay eards for money, and then for only nominal stakes. The only game that seemed to attract him was the grasshopper mees" with which the mining superintendents on the Comstock beguiled a portion of the noon heur while waiting for luncheon at the Savage company hoisting house. Boys det grasshoppers and sold them to the players at 25 to 50 cents each. Each layer paid a fixed stake, ranging from 1 to $20, into the pool, and the man whose hopper made the longest Jump aptured the pool. On the day before 'bristmas it was agreed to celebrate that holiday with a pool the stakes in which were to be $100 for each player, The terms were "play or pay," and at the instance of a German professor who was a superintendent of a leading mine each man was allowed to use any neans that he might devise to stimu late his grasshopper. The professor was so full of his scheme to scientifically capture the $1,000 pool-for there were ten entries-that he communicated it to a young assayer who was not a grasshopper plunger. The proessor had experimented and ascertaind that a grasshopper that was touched by a feather dipped in a weak solution of aqua ammonia would jump for The young man also experinented, and as a result be filled a bottle of the same size and appearance with evanlde of potassium and managed to substitute it for the other in the professor's laboratory. The next day, when the professor after much boasting about his scientific attainments dipped a feather in the substituted bottle and touched his insect with it, the grasshopper rolled over as dead us a salt mackerel, amid the roars of the crowd. Mackay's hopper won the big pool, and two widows, whose busbands had been killed in the Yellow Jacket mine, received a gift of $500. each from an unknown source,-San Francisco Call.

One of the most brilliant essays on nusclogy is the one which classes noses not by origin, but by mentality. The aquiline nose, for example, is the sign of goodness, amiability and weakness. By that nose Louis XVI, was led to the direct catastrophies. Let us have commiseration for the nose that is very slightly prominent. It is the muzzle of a sheep and belongs to people who are easily deceived. Distrust the nose with the medlum part elongated. That elongation marks the extent of desires and the insatiability of appetites. Look out also for the ferret nose, with its sharp point, always on the scent for secrets. It is the nose of the inquisitor. The devil-may-care nose is slightly turned up at the end. It denotes a character without firmness. But when you see a nose that rises from the depths of the orbits and stands out in bold relief take off your hat. You are in the presence of the nose of a thinker.-Toronto Mail.

Brain Work and Longevity.

In a lecture on longevity delivered before the Royal College of Physicians Sir Hermann Weber, himself an octogenarian, gave official support to the doctrine that brain work does not kill, but rather the reverse, A few of his Instances were Sophocles, Plato, Galen, Cleero, Moltke, Bismarck, Mommsen and Gladstone, to whom we might add Hobbes, Carlyle, Spencer and Kelvin. The facts are that brain work increases the supply of blood to the nerve cells promotes their nutrition and health. Mosso, an Italian, Inid a man on a delicately balanced table and showed that the head end sank whenever the subject did a mental sum or any other brain work. The increased weight of his head was due to the life giving blood. The truth is that brain work, as such, never killed anybody,-

The Candle Nut.

The candle nut is a native of the Pacific islands, and the name is derived from the fact that the kernels are so full of oil that when dried they are stuck on reeds and used as candles. The people of Hawaii, after having ronsted these nuts and removed the shells, reduce the kernels to a paste, which is flavored with pepper and salt and is said to be a most appetizing dish. The busk of the nut and the gum which exudes from the tree have me dicinal values, while the burned shell of the kukul is used to make an indelible ink with which tattooing is done.

Newton's Blue.

It is well known that under the ac tion of gravity the water composing such a thin shell as a soap bubble tends to run down on all sides, so that the walls of the bubble grow thin at the top and thicken toward the bottom. After a time the bubble becomes so thin at the top that further flow of wa ter from this point can hardly take place, and finally the bubble bursts. But before this last stage is reached a degree of thinness in the walls of the bubble is attained which causes it to glow with brilliant iridescent colors. Newton noticed that on top of the thin bubble illuminated by white sky light a black spot is formed. With increase of thickness downward from this point on all sides, a red band next appears; then a blue one; then again red and blue, red and blue, and so on, the colors showing more extremes of red and purple in the higher orders. This blue band which first expands outward from the black spot at the top and descends slowly with the subsidence of the water Newton called the "blue of the first order," and, although somewhat dingy, he judged it to be of the same tint as the blue of the sky .- T. J. J. See in Atlantie.

Inquisitive Birds. Of the birds undoubtedly the blue jays have the most inquisitiveness. And they are the most noisy in express ing it, although crows will hold a close second place, if not fully the equal. How the jays screeched and whistled and called-a confusion of all the sounds of jaydom-near my home! More than a dozen darted into a small evergreen tree on the lawn. People came from several bouses in the vicin ity, all curious to know what was the matter with the birds. It seemed to be a "want to know" on both sides, The jays had discovered a cat walking meekly along by the fence in the low thrubbery near and under the spruce tree. There was no nest in the vicinity, and, so far as could be ascertained, the cat had not attacked the jays. But what a pandemonium of jay jargon over one meek looking, quiet cat! The Jays outdid themselves and called out nearly all the occupants of the many houses on that street.—St. Nicholas.

EXPENDITURES

To Restore Leather Bludings. To restore the leather bindings of books wash them first very lightly and carefully with clean warm water in which a tiny piece of soda has been dissolved, in order to free the leather from grease; then wash with clear water to remove the soda, and dry. Dissolve a bit of gum arabic the size of a small bean in a teaspoonful of water and beat it up with a teaspoonful of the white of an egg. With a bit of sponge go lightly over the leather with this glair and let it dry.

Should the glair froth up on the leather, as it is very likely to do if there is much tool work on the book. dab it until it subsides with the palm of the hand or with the sponge squeezed as dry as possible.

Her Husband's Male Friends

One of the most complicated duties of a wife is the shuffling off of her husband's male friends, says the Ladies' Field. Fifty per cent can go at once, for half a man's bachelor associates are, according to his wife, not fit for polite society, either because they have no manners or because they wear the wrong sort of collars. Ten per cent she may genuinely dislike, or possibly they may not take to her. Some of the rest are on the borderland of toleration. but most of them have a knack of dropping off by slow degrees. Possibly this is the inward and spiritual meaning of the farewell bachelors' dinner most intending bridegrooms give, though they never realize it at the time.

The Lion Didn't Roar. It is related that Pinnow, the faithful servant and personal valet of Prince Bismarck, once trod on his master's gouty foot. No other person, my dear Pinnow, not even the kniser himself, would have been suffered to trend on my corns."
