Separate coats are named as one of the inovations to come in the near Some very smart little jackets and blouses in black silk now shown in the shops may be looked upon as forerunners of this development. They are trimmed with lace, tucks or fancy stitching, and are exceedingly fetching.

End of Gold Trimming.

The best dressmakers are steering clear of gould trimming and the woman who has her black hat littered with gold tassels or her gown covered with gold braid would better get out the shears. The vogue of these gewgaws was short lived, for the fashion was run into the ground. Some of the best importations early last year were trimmed with gold and in the autumn ready-to-wear gowns and hats were covered with glittering cords and braids. Evening gowns trimmed with gold were "good form" for a few months, but now they are for sale by second-hand dealers. Instead of gold we have vari-colored trimmings, which promise to last six months at least .-New York Press.

When Loneliness Comes.

I envy all women with a profession When loneliness comes into their lives they have something which has to be done, whether they are sad or gay. That is the salvation of men, and I believe it is going to be the salvation of women, says Beatrice Harraden. Remember, some people only begin to wake up at 43, and then they have to crowd all sorts of splendid achievements into the remaining years. Nature is merciless in many of her ways, and mysterious; and perhaps her greatest and subtlest human mystery is the strife, conscious or unconscious, of one individuality with another individuality. And she gives no balm for it. On the contrary, she gives a sort of morbid remorse, wholly out of proportion to the quality and quantity of mistakes and failings bo.n neces sarily of unsuitable companionship.

Where the Money Goes.

A young couple after living along for nearly a year at the rate of $30 a week on an income of $25, reached the place where a sober, serious, heartto-heart talk was imperative-a situation of the greatest delicacy, with the breakers upon the reefs of matrimonial disaster roaring in their ear, says the Saturday Evening Post. But they camained cool headed, and learned. among other things, that during the preceding week they had spent $3.15 on just nothing at all, $7.40 by paying too high prices for necessities when a little thought and care would have prevented it. $2.25 for things they could have very well done without, $2 for which they could not account at all; total, $14.80. They had spent in all during the week $34.50.

Subtract what was "fooled away" from what was spent, and you have $19.76-that is, they spent for value received $5.30 less than their income. The hint in this incident is as valuable to the single as to the married.

The Loose Mantle Coat.

We have abjured it for a long time, but have come back to it now, a "slip on" which is quickly slipped off. The fashionable mantles are chiefly made in light fawn soft cloths, smooth faced or fancy woven, and those very light tones are in the majority: there are a great many cream. The gray and the black are not quite so fashionable, but are very much worn, especially at this intermediate season, when there are days on which we are glad to give up our furs, yet hardly know how to replace them. The buttons upon these coats are often a marked feature; indeed, the jeweled buttons and the stone buttons of by no means so costly material but effective, are having an immense following. The blister pearl, the amazonite, the matrix opal, and the matrix turquoise all serve as a ground for the introduction of what appear to be rubies, sapphires and diamonds. Some buttons are camoes and some are wrought in metal, carrying out the military element now so necessary an adjunct to success. We have banished the upstanding collar in favor of the one that turns down, and although the double-breasted Prussian military coat has been reproduced in such second-rate styles that we are not so keen upon it as we were, there is still a following of such a cut, but not invariably in blue or black cloths,

The Impelling Force:

but in lighter shades.

"It is easy to see what is the controlling force of Edith's life," said one woman of another. "It is love for her children. She governs her life in this or that direction; her motive always being what is for their best good."

"On the other hand," replied her friend, "Gertrude's life seems governed by fear. She is afraid of her hus ad's criticism, afraid of her neighors' remarks, afraid of offending nst this or that convention. She is always moved by some big fear of something or somebody."

"It is curious," said the first, "how the words apply, 'our motive,' the thing which moves us; and curlous, too, how careful we should be that 'the thing which moves us' is a right thing; for if, unconclously or consciously, we have allowed ourselves to be moved by a 'wrong thing,' by wrong feelings or wrong ideas, we will certainly, after a while, find that this moving power will move us in the wrong direction. and once started, it may be hard to stop this force which we have allowed to control us.' "But there is still another danger which people do not always think of," chimed in the second woman. "Even although the moving power, whether of thought or idea, be a good one, so far as we can see, it is not best to let it have unlimited control. It is as if we should always be in command of this little power engine of ours, keeping our eyes and hand ready to control it with an instant touch. A good motive run mad has been known to commit evil actions."-Harper's Bagar.

American Women's Hunt Club.

Denver boasts the unique distinction of having the only hunt club in this country composed exclusively of women. This Arraya Hunt has a roster of 40 accomplished riders, with Miss May Cordes as mistress of the hounds. The two whippers-in, who have charge of the pack of 15 hounds, are the only men connected in any way with the organization. Not only are all the offices of the club, from president to historian, filled by women, but they make the various arrangements for their meets and attend to all their own maters of hance. The most interesting feature of the Denver club is that every woman rides astride. In their experiences it has been demonstrated that more security to the rider and comfort to the mount are insured by the use of the man's saddle. If all things go as arranged, this western club is to have its counterpart in New York. There are a score of women in and about New York who have heartlly entered into the project of forming an organization patterned on like The names of Mrs. Thomas Hitchock, Jr., and Miss Marion Holloway have been suggested for misress of the hunt. Hostess Served First. At dinner, where only the famuy are present, a gentleman guest should sit at the right of the hostess. To be strictly correct the hostess should be served first, the other ladies of the family, and then the guest, and last the host: but it will be all right for the hostess to be served first and then the dishes passed around the table, serving the guest after the hostess, says Harper's Bazar. When a couple are guests the hostess should be served first, then the lady guest and so on, unless the guest is an older woman than the hostess, when it seems more polite to serve her first. If a dinner is given in honor of guests who are visiting in the house, the lady guest should be at the right of the ost, as usual, the gentleman at the right of the hostess.

Housekeepers Who Worry.

"Housekeepers do two things which they should not do," said a wise old woman. "To begin with, they soon cease to be original. They serve up the same old things every day in the week. You always know what is coming. Potatoes, meat and vegetables and pie all appear in the same old guise. They are cooked the same every day in the year and three time a day.

"Secondly, they werry too much. They take the kitchen too much to heart. They are going to have roast lamb for dinner, with peas or cabbage and browned petatees, they begin early in the day to worry about it, and they worry until the end of the chapter, which is until they lay their heads down to rest for the last time. Instead of fretting, invent a new dish and study cookery pictures and try to get up something like them. That is vest of ecru lace applied over cream ing loose and ample below the tucks. the best and most original way to set a good table."
