THE STATE GRANGE.

J. T. Allman, Press Correspondent.
 The farmer has submitted so long to the powers that be, that in many places he has lost confidence in his ability to do anything, and above all needs the stimulating influence of a farm organization to awaken his energies and give him courage. To do the work assigned to him as a citizen he needs an understanding of the questions of the day; he needs a preparation that will enable him to act in the management of the affairs of his time. In short, he must be able to stand up and defend his interests whenever it is required, and this ability to think quickly and act courageously only comes from a drill obtained in organization, and a farm organization teaches him to have confidence in his fellow farmers and acquaints him with the vital questions affecting his interests.
 Agriculture produces about 72 per cent of the exports and furnishes 68 per cent of the internal commerce of the country. It furnishes employment to a majority of those engaged in productive industries. In Penna. Real Estate pays three fourths of the taxes. Is it an unfair inference that the tillers of the soil should have a seat at the first table and that the annual income of the individual farmer should compare favorably with that of men engaged in other calling and that he should have no little to say in social and public affairs? The organized farmers are doing much to secure all this.
 The farmer has long been in politics as a partisan. On election day, bound by the strange spell of tradition and association he votes with his party. Neighbors whose interests are identical vote for opposite parties and opposing candidates. As a result how little thought is given by the makers of platforms and the framers of laws to the interests and wants of the farmer. Party ties have little hold on the representatives of corporate wealth and the monied interests generally. Sentiment plays no part with them on election day. They vote for what they want and the statute books show the result. The Grange has no interest in parties as such. It seeks to educate and elevate the American farmer and thus to benefit mankind. The farmer will cease to be a blind partisan only when he learns to know and to trust his fellow farmers. In the grange he is learning what his interests are and in the same school he will learn how to advance those interests.

Death of Rev. Headley

Rev. G. W. Headley died at Millstone, Pa., Oct. 4th, 1904, at 6.15 a. m., from cancer of the liver. For sometime prior to his death he had been in declining health, yet he bore his suffering with christian fortitude until his earthly career was ended and a useful life closed. Rev. Headley was born at Exeter, Wyoming Co., Pa., Apr. 11, 1843. He began teaching school at the early age of fifteen and for many years he was engaged in training the young. He was graduated from Kutztown State Normal School. He taught at Plymouth from 1862 to 1870. He then removed to Pittston where he taught the same school till 1879. He coupled with teaching the work of preaching the gospel and at the age of eighteen he began to preach. He moved from Pittston to Covington, Pa., where he preached for two years and a half. From thence he moved to Lock Haven where he preached for seven years. When his pastorate closed at Lock Haven he engaged in evangelistic work in the Christian church. He was a fluent talker and an able minister of the word and well versed in the Scriptures, and met with a good degree of success in the field of evangelistic service. He was married May 3d, 1863, to Miss Ellen S. Koerber, who died Oct. 27, 1900. Seven children were born to them, three of whom have passed to the other side. Four children are living, viz: Mrs. A. L. Keagle, Mrs. E. R. Koerber, of Rathmel, and Mrs. Charles Tompkins and Nathan A. Headley, of Reynoldsville.
 He was married May 6th, 1903, to Miss Emma McIntire who survives him. His remains were brought to the home of his daughter, Mrs. Charles Tompkins, on Sixth street on Wednesday afternoon. Funeral services were held at 8:00 o'clock in the evening, conducted by Rev. Dr. A. J. Meek, pastor of the Baptist church, assisted by Rev. J. Booth. On Thursday morning his remains were shipped to the home of his aged mother at Exeter, Pa., and on Friday he was laid to rest to await the resurrection morn. He was a true husband and a kind father and will be greatly missed. The family has the sympathy of a large circle of friends in their bereavement.

Damrosch at the Expo.

Mr. Damrosch has been playing delightful programs to cultured audiences at the Pittsburg Exposition since Monday of this week and has received all the tokens of the most distinguished appreciation. Mr. Damrosch has ever been a favorite in Western Pennsylvania both on account of his elevating readings of the great works of the master-composers and also on account of his own cultivated and charming personality, which seems to win the respectful attention of his audiences as soon as he appears before them. The success which has marked his Exposition engagement so far is but a hint of that which is to come next week, for Mr. Damrosch and his charming orchestra will be at the Exposition another week, in fact will close the sixteenth annual Exposition season.
 Not the least pleasing feature of the Damrosch concerts so far has been the charming solo work of Mme. Henriette Keil, a Pittsburg bred singer well and favorably known to music loving classes of the city. She has sung and will next week sing some of the most difficult and entrancing compositions for the voice in existence. That she is uniformly successful is due both to the fact that she has the voice to undertake great work and also the training and energy to carry them through.
 The Damrosch concerts next week will be full of intense musical interest. Some of the programs will be such as it would be indeed difficult to excel. The world of fashion and culture has been pouring to Music Hall all week to hear this brilliant orchestra and will come in even greater numbers next week. The farewell to Mr. Damrosch on closing night, Oct. 22, promises to be a scene of the greatest enthusiasm and fervor.

Low Excursion Fares to Pittsburg.

Gave Pledge to New Pastor.

Informal but thoroughly enjoyable from every point of view was the welcome tendered to Rev. P. A. Reno and wife by their parishioners at the First M. E. church last evening. The church parlors were tastefully decorated with flowers and with pink and white, the Epworth League colors. Members of the church and their friends were present in large numbers, the crowd completely filling the rooms, and both Rev. Reno and his estimable wife were given very cordial greeting. In the course of the evening the pastor received a pledge with a long list of signatures assuring him of the hearty co-operation of the young people of the congregation in the carrying out of the church work. Splendid music was furnished by the Bohl Rifles' orchestra and others, and late in the evening, light refreshments were served.—Sharon Daily Telegraph Sept. 29.

Saves Two From Death.

Clothcraft Double Breasted Sacks

A double breasted sack suit must be cut with the greatest accuracy or it won't fit properly. The sweep of the lapels and the hang of the fronts have to be absolutely symmetrical or the coat looks even worse than a poorly fitting single breasted one. You can count on Clothcraft Clothes to be rightly tailored. The illustration demonstrates that. But you say: "These are pictures, the clothes wouldn't look so well in use." Allow us to assure you that the illustration is from life, and that the clothes will look EVEN BETTER on you. Clothcraft Clothes are never misrepresented either in pictures or by what we say of them. The two models shown are the "Cornell" and the "Essex." They're made of handsome mixed materials in light and dark colors, also of black and blue Cheviots. You can get just the style you want, just the goods you want and a perfect fit at $10 to $25. The price may seem cheap, but it's the only cheap thing about Clothcraft Clothes.
