Sandy Valley.
 Was any surprise felt over the result of the election?
 Harry Cribbs and Lester Wells, who have been ill with typhoid fever, are recovering slowly.

Earl Garvin, who was badly crushed between an electric motor and rib of coal at Iselin, Indiana county, is slowly regaining his health.

Miss Minerva Clontz, who has been at home the past week, returned to DuBois Monday morning where she intends remaining for some time.

An old-fashioned shooting-match will be held at Sandy Valley Saturday, Nov. 12, 1904. Everybody come. There will be chickens and turkeys galore. Inquire of H. A. Sherwood.

Saturday evening a telephone message was received here to the effect that Mrs. W. J. Stanford, of Rimersburg, was dead and would be buried at that place Sabbath afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. It was thought at the time to be our old friend, Rachel Stanford, nee Reltz, wife of William Stanford, now of Rimersburg, but subsequent inquiries proved the incorrectness of this as it was Mrs. Wesley Stanford, wife of the brother of David Stanford, of Pardus.

The Byron Troubadours are very popular with their audiences. Do not fail to go to Assembly hall Nov. 15 in order to hear them.

The High School Bulletin

Edited by members of the Reynoldsville High School.

The Shakespearean Literary Society met October 28th and elected the following officers: President, Fred McEntire; vice-president, Jennie McGaw; secretary, Frank Strouse; critic, Prof. McClure; editor-in-chief, Geneva Milliren; first assistant editor, Maud Pratt; second assistant editor, Ethel Kunes; local editor, Lena Hoppel; program committee, Frank King, Irene Phillippi and Craig King.

Quite a number of the high school pupils attended the great football game at DuBois on Thursday. They made quite a hit with a parody on the high school yell and it was later reported that the Reynoldsville "Indians" were going to take the high school bunch along every time to root for them, no matter what salary they asked.

Cora McCreight is confined at home with a bad case of the mumps.

An exciting debate took place in the Shakespearean Literary Society on November 4th. The question for debate was, "Does the critic do more harm than good?" The judges decided in favor of the negative.

What's the matter with the Subs these days? They don't seem like the same old Subs since last Thursday afternoon. That examination in History!

The Juniors say they can everyone prove that all straight angles are equal. I wonder why?

The Sub-Juniors are at last naturalized. They have done away with that wild and mirthful conduct and are now beginning to act like high school pupils.
