The Fifth Avenue tailor gots a hundred dollars per suit for his clothes, because of the perfection of detail. The collar hugs the neck, the lapels lie smooth and flat, the shoulders have a shapely form-and hold it, the front is braced with haircloth and canvas, and does not break or sag. The buttons stay on and the buttonholes are steadfast. Pockets are rein-

That linve the There Are Several Food Hiding untinet. I have sometimes seen a dog bury in the ground a bone for which he did not seem to have any pre-ent need. I have always understood that he did this on the principle which actuates a provident man to lay up something "for a rainy day." This may be, though I have never known a dog to dig up the bone afterward, yet some persons tell me they have known him to do this. I should think the dog must be hard pressed by famine that would attempt to guaw a bone covered with clay and dirt, as this bone must be after being buried in the ground If the dog hides it away through any such provident forethought as this it must be the slightest remnant, a mere adumization, of a former instinct of his race. He does not pursue this practice in the steady, methodical way in which an ant or a bee or a squirrel lays up a stock of food against a time of need. With him it is only a fitful and rare occurrence. His long domestication and the ages through which he has received his food from the hand of his master have obliterated largely the sense of this necessity from his mind, If he may be supposed to have a mind. The fox when he has had the good fortune to capture several fowls at the same time will, it is said, secrete such as he has no present need for under a bush or behind a log. I remember that in Rowland Robinson's pleasant book, "Sam Lovel's Boy," a young fox is represented as doing this. "He began burying the leg of a lamb in the loose state," he continues, "that, looking to the domestic dogs of the whole world, I have after a laborious collection of all known facts come to the conclusion that several wild species of canidae have been tanied and that their blood in some cases mingled together flows in the veins of our domestic breeds." He mentions a dog whose great-grandfather was a wolf, and this dog still betrayed its wild ancestry in the fact that it never approached its master in a straight line when called. But which species of the canidae from which the dog may have descended has the food hiding instinct or habit I have nowhere seen stated .- Forest and Stream.

Not an Odious Comparison

The head clerk had been invited to an afternoon wedding and in order to save time appeared at the office in the morning fully "groomed" for the ceremony. As he threw aside his over coat he was disclosed in all the majesty of a swagger frock coat of the latest cut, gray trousers fashionably creased, patent leather shoes and white puff tie. His position in the office made him immune from comments by the underlings, who, however, regarded him with serio comic admiration and longed to say what they felt.

But the barrier was broken a few minutes nifer the day's business had begun and by a friend who dropped in for a moment's chat. He was somewhat lacking in dignity, for which the clerks blessed him. "Good morning, George," he said cheerily to the head clerk. Then as he took a second glance at the sartorial "dream" he added; "Great Scott! What's up? You look like a certified check And even the head clerk joined in Animals In Art.

"Sheep are in strong demand in the plcture market," said the manager of a department store art gallery. "If 1 were a painter of animal studies 1 would confine my work entirely to pletures of sheep. They sell better than any other animal pictures. I suppose the reason is that sheep lend themselves to more artistic poses than other quadruped subjects. They can be more effectively grouped, and the contour of their bodies is in soft and rounded lines well adapted to artistic work. Then sentiment is a factor in the popularity of these pictures. The women and children always are attracted by them, especially by pictures of sheep lost in a storm, which appeal to their sympathies. Cows are a poor second to sheep in popularity, and the demand for horses is very light. The horse is a somewhat conventional subject and one very difficult to portray artistically, while the sheep can be

EASTER CUSTOMS. Curious Observances of the Past and Present In England. Some of the old Easter customs in England are curiously barbaric, and even at the present time the observance of this particular festival is surrounded with more or less superstition. just enough to lend to it the charm of mystery.

Twentieth century maidens don bright yellow garters, secure in their belief that they will be engaged before the year ends. Others give their tresses "a hundred strokes three times" with the brush while thinking intently of their heart's desire. And who does not take good care to wear their new things on Easter day? Among the earliest of Easter customs are the following: At Queen's college, Oxford, a herring placed by the cook to simulate a man on horseback is set on a corn salad and brought to the table. This is supposed to represent a red herring riding away on horseback and is the last vestige of the once popular pageants of rejoicing for the end of the Lenten fast.

It was erstwhile a habit in English towns for the boys after the Easter service to run into the street and snatch the buckles from the shoes of the girls whom they were able to catch. Easter Monday, however, it was turn about, and the women chased the men. If the men refused to pay a sixpence or happened to wear boe" "he women tried to snatch their han, d to recover a hat cost a sixpence.

In some old towns great cakes were brought to church and there divided among the young people.

A singular Easter custom was that of "lifting and weaving." A man sitting contentedly in his home was surprised by the servants and women of his household, who entered bearing a great armchair lined with white and decorated with ribbons and favors The man was forced to sit in the chair and be lifted by the women, to each of whom he must give a sixpence. On a day in Easter week, either Monday or Tuesday, the man lifted the women with similar attendant ceremonles.

Edward I. was lifted in his bed by his ladies and maids of honor, and a record shows the payment made by him to have been some $2,000 in sixpences.

In older days in England monks at Easter acted plays in churches, the favorite subject being the resurrection. Not only were these plays enacted in the churches on these festival days, but there was dancing, particularly in the French cathedrals,

Even the sun, it is said, dances on Easter day.

In Ireland great preparations were made for the last day of Lent. Holy Saturday, about 9 o'clock, a hen and a plece of bacon were put in the pot, and at 12 there were eating and much merrymaking. At 4 all rose to see the sun dance in honor of the resurrection.

THE DOUGLAS PINE.

A Tree That is the Memorial Both of a Man and a Tragedy.

A tree whose name is at once the memorial both of a man and a tragedy is the Douglas pine, famous for its magnificent cours. Now, David Douglas mas originally a Soutch Ind who ening under the notice of Sir William Hooker, the well known botanist, and through his influence was appointed collector of rare plants to the Horticultural society. He traveled for the society in all parts of the world and was extraordinarily successful in his finds. It was he who discovered lupins, eschecholtzias and godetias as well as many magnificent varieties of pine trees, including the one bearing his name. But when quite a young man he met a tragic fate while plant hunting. He was in the Sandwich isles, and there the natives dig deep pits to catch wild animals, covering them over with branches and grass to conceal their openings. On to one of these treacherous pits Douglas walked one day when alone and was at once precipitated to the bottom. No help was at hand, and he was devoured by a wild beast which was also imprisoned.

the empire a skilled mechanic named Yen Shih was brought into his presence to entertain him and the ladies of his court. Yen Shih had some automatic figures which not only were capable of dancing, but of accompanying their movements with song. During the performance the puppets cast such significant glances toward the ladies that the emperor became angry and ordered the execution of the originator of the play. The mechanic ripped open the puppets and proved to his astonished majesty that they were artificial. Instead of being executed Yen Shih was allowed to repeat the performance, which corresponds to Punch and Judy in England and America .-

It makes all the difference in the world to you and to those whom you influence what kind of an expression you wear.-Orlson Swett Marden in Success Magazine.

Red Hair.

When red hair makes its appearance on a human head all lukewarmness is at an end. It is either loved or loathed. Its admirers, with artists in the van, are almost hysterically enthusiastic. They call it golden, though the gold that comes out of the earth is not often exactly that shade. A red haired woman is sure of a success in some quarter, however plain her face or insignificant her figure. The detractors of red hair say it is a sign of bad temper or immorality or both and therefore to be scrupulously avoided.-London Queen.

Dirty Washing.

Natives of Morocco think that Europeans and Americans are dirty. The habit to which they object is that of washing the hands or face in a basin and, still more, taking a bath where the water is not running. The cleaner the bather becomes, they say, the dirtler the water he is washing with must necessarily become. And eventually the bather steps forth as cleansed from water which is no longer clean.

The Earthquake Belt.

Earthquakes are more frequent in volcanic areas, but are not confined to them. A great zone which is partlenlarly subject to earthquakes encircles the earth. This belt includes the Mediterranean lands, the Azores, the West Indies, Central America, the Hawallan Islands, Japan, China, India, Persia and Asia Minor. It is believed that the larger number of earthquakes originate beneath the ocean. In places where the bottom of the sea shows great variation in depth earthquakes are numerous. They have, in fact, been found to be so destructive to telegraph cables in these localities that the cable authorities have named them "danger zones."
