Cow Buried in Cavin

G. M. Henry, who resides near Soldier, keeps five cows and one of them mysteriously disappeared from the field last Thursday afternoon. Mr. Henry saw all the cows lying under a tree Thursday noon, but only four cows could be found in the evening. Friday morning Mr. Henry started out in search of the cow and he found tracks which he followed to a point between two trees, from ten to twelve feet apart, and there he lost the cow tracks and the roots of the trees looked as if fresh ground had been taken off them. Mr. Henry passed on without thinking much about the appearance of the fresh ground, but he could not find cow tracks beyond that point. He returned to the point between the trees and by digging some dirt away and making careful examination discovered that there was a cavin between the trees and that his cow was in there. The roots of the two trees had held up the top earth so that there was no sign of a cavin, but when the cow walked over it the roots gave way and she fell into pit and the rootsprung back to place and the cow was buried alive. The earth had opened and swallowed her. Had it not been that Mr. Henry followed the cow tracks to that point and could not find tracks beyond there the cow would have starved to death and no one would have known what become of her. An opening was dug on level with the cavin and the cow walked out about noon hungry and thirsty but apparently none the worse for her strange experience.

DEATH OF AN OLD CITIZEN. Passes Peacefully Away at the Age of Nearly 72 Years.

Ludwig Priester, of Henderson township, Jefferson county, died at his home Puesday, July 25th, 1905. He was born n Herzog Nassau, Germany, January 18th, 1834, and his age was 71 years, 6 months and 7 days.

He was united in the bonds of wed lock March 13th, 1862, to Elizabeth Hoop, of Covode, Indiana county. To this union nine children were born, five of whom are living. They are Emms C., wife of D. J. Pifer, Big Run, Pa. Ida C., wife of P. S. Hawk, Reynolds ville, Pa., Jacob P., residing on a farm near Eleanora; Henry, following the drilling business, and Mary, at home. Eight grandchildren succeed him. The surviving children are all grown up and good useful citizens.

Mr. Priester came from Germany when about eighteen years of age, and a few years after settled on the land he has since occupied.

He was a self-made man and gave convincing rebuke to the believers in 'luck." He went about his work with a set purpose and a firm will making obstacles to move that at times seemed insurmountable. He was of that honest, hard working German extraction, and early in life erased the word "fail" from his career : his purpose in life was not to live for self alone, but was always ready and willing to lend a helping hand to his friends and neighbors when in need. His examples for honesty and fair dealing were of the highest order and were always exemplified in all his transactions. He was a life long member of the German Reform Church, in which he was a consistent member and good christian, and every act of his was characterized by meekness, courage and generosity.

His death was due to a paralytic stroke which he survived only three days, and up to this time was active and attended to his usual affairs and was always strong and robust.

He was rational and conversed to the last hour of his demise, passing away quietly, peacefully and happy, resigning himself in the care of "Him who doeth all things well" and fully prepared to accept the final message.

What a beautiful contemplation over a useful life well spent, the wisdom and reverence of age, the eternal and glorious beyond may well inspire the best efforts of man to attain. A character that cherishes no wrong, but is ever open, free and out spoken, a lover of God and country, of kin and friends; knowing that the world is better for them having lived in it.

Mr. Priester, with the aid of his family, gained a nice competence and fully enjoyed life and its environments and all his duties were sacredly
