Judas Iscariot.

"We do great injustice to Iscariot in thinking him wicked above all common wickedness. He was only a common money-lover, and, like all money-lovers, didn't understand Christ. He didn't want Him to be killed. He was horror-struck when he found that Christ would be killed; threw his money away instantly, and hanged himself. How many of our present money-seekers, think you, would have the grace to hang themselves, whoever was killed? But Judas was a common, selfish, muddle-headed, pilfering fellow. He didn't understand Christ; yet believed in Him much more than most of us do; had seen Him do miracles, thought He was quite strong enough to shift for Himself, and he, Judas, might as well make his own little by-perquisites out of the affair. Now, that is the money-seeker's idea all over the world. He doesn't hate Christ, but doesn't care for Him—sees no good in that benevolent business; makes his own little job out of it at all events, come what will. And thus, out of every mass of men, you have a certain number of bag-men whose main object is to make money. And they do make it—make it in all sorts of unfair ways, chiefly by the weight and force of money itself, or what is called the power of capital. That is the modern Judas's way of 'carrying the bag,' and 'bearing what is put therein.'—Ruskin.

Unique Alphabet.

S. T. Hurd, of near Rochester Mills, Indiana county, who was in town Monday, has a curiosity in the shape of a complete alphabet which is composed of rustic letters which he picked up in the classic forests of Canoe township. The characters which were found in the root and limb formations of trees and shrubs, are of uniform size and represent almost perfectly a complete alphabet of capital letters. Mr. Hurd was induced to begin the collection of his unique alphabet about two years ago when the finding of a perfect capital "A" suggested the idea to him. It is doubtful if there is another alphabet like it in existence, and the owner feels justly elated over having collected in two years from the handiwork of nature a group of characters which had taken centuries to evolve and which has figured so conspicuously in the evolution of human thought. The collection will be photographed and a copy sent to the Smithsonian Institute at Washington, D. C.—Panxutawney Spirit.

The readings in the last week of the Chautauqua Assembly program at Chautauqua, New York, include a very interesting series by Miss Lucine Finch, a talented young Southern who has made a special study of Southern songs and stories and who as she sings and tells them, discusses interestingly the inner characteristics of the people who produce them. These five o'clock hours will be supplemented by two evening readings by Mrs. Isabel Garghill Beecher, the first a presentation of "Much Ado About Nothing," the other "An Evening of American Fiction."

Chautauqua.

Chautauqua, N. Y., which was first opened August 4, 1874, with a Methodist campmeeting, is now a famous undenominational summer resort. It is located in a beautiful grove on the banks of Chautauqua Lake. Never in the history of the Chautauqua Assembly has the attendance been as large in one season as it has been this season. People from every state in the union and from foreign lands visit Chautauqua. While it is a great educational and religious resort, yet there are other attractions, such as fishing, rowing, bathing, lawn tennis, base ball and numerous other amusements, making it a delightful place for most any person to spend two weeks. Only the best of talent obtainable is engaged as lecturers, readers, teachers, singers, &c., for Chautauqua Assembly each season. Chautauqua is a summer city with a population of 15,000 or 20,000, and nowhere on the face of the earth will you find a more congenial or better class of people in that large numbers be found than the population of Chautauqua during the Assembly season. People who have never visited Chautauqua, N. Y., have no idea what a delightful place it is to spend a couple of weeks.

Lost a Dollar.

Ten years ago a farmer put his initials on a dollar, went to town and spent it with a merchant. Before the year was out he got the dollar back. He thought it a stroke of luck and the next time he was in town he called and paid the printer a year in advance for his paper and related the story of the dollar. Soon after he sold a cow to a neighbor who was a milkman. Among the money received was the marked dollar. The printer had paid up his milk bill. Four times in six years the dollar came back to the farmer for produce, and three times he heard of it in the pockets of his neighbors. The last time he got it four years ago he sent it to a mail order house. He hasn't seen that dollar since, and he won't. That dollar will never pay any more school or road tax for him, will never build up or brighten the homes of the community. He sent it entirely outside the circle of usefulness to himself.—The Kane Leader.

Grangers' Picnic at Williams' Grove.

To Drill for Gas.

There is a movement on foot among the citizens of the place to organize a company for the purpose of putting down a test well for gas and oil. The Record is not in possession of all the facts concerning the project but it is said that it is the intention of the promoters to make a thorough test of territory in this community and it is the general opinion that gas will be found in paying quantities. The movement is a good one and should receive liberal encouragement. Further developments of the enterprise will be reported in these columns at the proper time.—Brookville Record.

Charge to the Grand Jury.

The August term of the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace opened before Judge John W. Reed, with more than the usual large attendance of litigants and interested parties. In instructing the Grand Jurors as to their duties at the opening of court Judge Reed laid especial stress upon the importance of the work upon which they were entering, making it particularly plain that it was the duty of each juror to act not alone upon those matters brought to his attention by the court, but also to report to his fellow jurors all infractions of the law which are known to him personally, and which, through their objectionable character, might not be reported to the authorities by the individual citizen owing to the fact that he does not care to figure in the public prosecution of the cases, notably, illegal liquor selling, keeping disorderly houses, etc. His Honor took especial care to make plain to the Grand Jury that information thus made to that body by its individual members should be inquired into as thoroughly as though it were brought to their attention by the court.—Brookville Republican.

Candidates for Assembly.

Already the political bee is beginning to buzz in the bonnets of those Jefferson county gentlemen who aspire to represent the Republican party from this district in the House of Representatives. S. Taylor North, the present Assemblyman, has announced his intention of being a candidate again and is informing the people of this fact. R. H. Longwell, of Brookville, known over the country as the tall sycamore from the Beechwoods who went down in the last nomination for Assembly with colors flying, is also looking over the ground with a view to being a candidate. It is also stated that C. R. Vashinger, of Brookville, is talking of running again but we have not heard this from an authentic source. There is no doubt but that there will be enough candidates to make a contest.—Brookville Record.

Our Dumb Animals.

Of all the dumb animals mankind has to deal with, there is none more deserving of kindness than the dog. The dog is your best friend. You should treat him accordingly. You should not neglect him or punish him unduly. There is a law for the protection of dumb animals and where there is a case for action, the law should be enforced. No one who is not willing to care properly for the animals he keeps about him, should be permitted to neglect or abuse them. If you cannot show your dog the kindness and attention he deserves, sell him or give him to another who will care for him. Remember cruelty to dumb animals is punishable by a heavy fine and you cannot blame your neighbor if the law is set in motion on account of your conduct.—Fall Creek Herald.

Pennsylvania Railroad Mainline Schedule.

During the month of July the Pennsylvania Special arrived in Chicago exactly on the minute of its schedule every day. The eastbound Pennsylvania Special arrived in New York on schedule time twenty-three days. The average detention on seven days was less than ten minutes, due entirely to conditions for which the train crew could not be held responsible. The greatest breach in the schedule was on July 14, when the Special was held up behind a freight wreck, which blocked all four tracks on the Middle Division, entailing a loss of two hours and twenty-two minutes in the regular arriving time at New York.

It is difficult to find a match for this record. It demonstrates that the schedule has sufficient elasticity to take up any ordinary detentions which may occur between termini, and that even a faster regular schedule may be made should it be deemed wise. The fine condition of the roadbed, the efficient motive power, and skillful operation all contribute to the ease with which the Special accomplishes its work.—New York Tribune, August 13, 1905.

Deer is more plentiful in Pennsylvania than they have been for many years, according to the reports to the state game commissioner. The reports also indicate a large abundance of wild turkeys and pheasants and an unusually small quantity of quail.—Lock Haven Express.
