Why Some Farmers are Not Successful.
 "Flotsam," in the Volanteer, says he never expects to be reconciled to the way he finds farms and gardens on his travels out of town. It is usually the women who keep the gardens up and they are the ones who should have the credit or blame. There are a great many so-called successful farmers who, if they had to get their farms by the sweat of their own brows, would have neither farm nor garden. Now if "Flotsam" would go to the trouble to try and get our law makers persuaded to enact laws for the state to loan money to the farmers to the amount of fifty per cent of the value of their farms at 14 per cent interest, he would be rendering more practical service. I believe such action would cause the greatest boom in agricultural development that ever was. The state has plenty of money scattered around in the different National banks that would assist many a man to become a successful farmer. There are plenty of men who have never had a fair chance to prove to the public what kind of farmers they are. Some of them have money out of the building and loan and possibly just about the time their crops should be planted they see a place where a little money can be made to pay up the monthly dues, and that oftentimes, through wet weather setting in, deprives them of any crop at all. Then, there are others who must borrow money from a class of people who charge the full rate of interest and have it go through the third man, and he will charge an additional two per cent brokerage. So you see there is a certain per cent of farmers who could make a success of farming but, never having received financial aid from home or through the wife, are handicapped. And to return to the garden again, when you find a poor one the chances are there is no woman there at all or else is sickly and unable to attend to the work.

An Important Reynoldsville Organization.
 The Keystone band is an organization that many a city would feel elated over. It is an organization that strangers from afar discuss its merits. The Keystone band is an advertisement to Reynoldsville, as the engagements played in other towns this summer was evidence of that fact, especially the trip to Buffalo with the Elk delegation to the Grand Lodge Session of that order. The unfair treatment they got at the band contest in that city caused a general comment on the matter all about the city by strangers and citizens of Buffalo. Many strangers, and in fact all would say, "Where is Reynoldsville? What is the population? What maintains your town?" etc., etc. Of course an explanation followed such questions. They would say that they never heard of Reynoldsville before and that the band was a fine organization. Thus it can be seen that the Keystone is an advertisement to our town.

 At the Brookville fair after the band finished playing, the judge of the horse races called to the manager and told him to express his congratulations to the band, as it would cause quite a search to find a band of the Keystone's equal. He said, "I am a musician myself and know whereof I speak. My wife is one of the leading singers of Cleveland, Ohio." The lady trick rider asked her horse to make a bow to the good band. She stated afterwards that the band is far ahead of the average band she meets.
 The band has running expenses to keep up in order to make it permanent and in order to make up money for expenses, have arranged a series of dances for the winter season at Reynolds Park pavilion. The first dance will be Tuesday evening, October 5th. It would be very encouraging to the band to have a large turnout and it would show what estimation they are held in. Tell all your friends to turn out to these dances and help the band. Unfortunately both heads of the bass drum were broken out at Brookville and several members of the band have been indisposed or several street concerts would have been given of late, but the concerts will be given before cold weather arrives.

Disposed of Store.
 Scott McClelland, who has been engaged in the mercantile business at Reynoldsville for several years, during which time his clothing and gents' furnishing goods store, which was under the management of W. H. Bell, received a liberal share of the public patronage, disposed of the same last week to Mr. Bell, and hereafter he will give his attention to other business pursuits. Mr. McClelland is president of the First National Bank of Reynoldsville, with a capital of $75,000 and a surplus fund equal to the full amount of the capital, and this institution on account of its constant growth and expansion in volume of business is calling for more of his time; then he has extensive coal interests in that section and other business pursuits that require personal supervision, so that he has numerous enterprises that are looking up to him for success and he could well afford to be a little generous and turn over the store business to Mr. Bell, who has been a very valuable and most trusting worthy assistant.—Reynoldsville Republican.

Mr. McClelland should be a resident of Reynoldsville instead of Brookville.

The High School Bulletin
 Edited by Members of the Reynoldsville High School.
 We, as pupils, are all glad to say that thus far this has been the most prosperous term for years. The enrollment having passed the 700 mark, the board of directors have decided to open another room to relieve the overcrowded condition existing in several of the rooms. With this addition, we have 15 rooms and a faculty of 16 teachers. The present senior class is unusually large, numbering 13. On the whole, present indications point to a highly successful year.

This year the High School boys manifested considerable interest in football. An organization was effected and a good schedule arranged. Bert Hoffman was elected manager and Leonard Harris captain. Owing to a mutual misunderstanding the first game of the season, with DuBois High School was canceled. There have been many changes made in the line up and strenuous practice entered into the result. Reynoldsville High School will be well represented on the gridiron. The first game will be played Saturday on the local field, when Brookville will be the victims. A large attendance is asked in that the boys need both the money and the encouragement.

The members of the High School classes met and organized the High School Literary Society Friday, September 15, electing Carl Kirk president. The first regular meeting was held Friday afternoon, September 22, in the Auditorium when an excellent program was presented. The importance of the literary society in school work cannot be over-estimated and the members of the faculty are encouraging the work in every way possible, in the hope that the pupils this year, as never before, may take an added interest in things literary.
 The patrons and friends of our school will give a reception to the teachers in the Assembly hall on Friday evening, September 29.
 One of the noticeable features in the High School is class spirit and class rivalry. The Sophomores having won their way to the top have taken on reserve and dignity and look over the heads of the insignificant (?) Freshman. The Juniors, so near the goal, feel their importance. The Sophomores strive to show his prominence over the Freshman. Class pride and competition but brighten the standard of work and conduct, so we welcome it.
