School Laws Conflict.

There are two laws on the statute books of Pennsylvania that conflict seriously and our lawmakers will have which we published last week, was to repeal one or the other of these laws. largely attended by ministers and dele- They are the compulsory attendance law and the compulsory vaccination law. The one provides that all children under a certain age must attend school and school boards are authorized to appoint officers to see that this law is enforced. The vaccination law forblds any child who has not been vaccina ted from attending public school. The one law says you must send your children to school and other law says you cannot send your children to school unless certain conditions have been complied with. A number of parents in Jefferson county refuse to comply with the vaccination law and their children are refused admission to the public schools. County Supt. Teitrick says there are school districts in this county where all the pupils of some school were sent home because they were not vacclusted. A compromise has been made, however, and scholars of these schools have been admitted to school without being vaccinated. One of these school laws must be violated unless parents are willing to have their children vac-

Annual Round Table,

A large crowd attended the annual teachers' round table held in Assembly Hall Friday evening, September 22. The devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. Dr. A. J. Meek, assisted by Prof. Bish. Miss Acherman, from the Indiana State Normal, gave a very interesting address on the 'Recitation". The most important part of the recitation is preparing the child's mind before presenting the new thought, for a man's mind interprets the new in terms of the old. Do not teach when there is indolence, antagonism or disinterest. Teach vividly.

Prof. J. G. Becht, from the Clarion State Normal then gave a short talk on the "Live Teacher". A live teacher should be consecrated to high ideals. Nothing is more real than ideals.

Prof. S. C. Hepler, from New Bethlehem, gave some reminiscences of his

The program was closed with a few remarks by Prof. Teltrick on how to make this the best school.

Ope of the Best. If you enjoy a good show with plenty of chances to laugh, Dan Darleigh and his company, "Si Stebbins," are bound to satisfy you. Of Mr. Darleigh it has been said that the mantle of Denaman Thompson could fall on no more deserving shoulders. He depicts the innocent old farmer in a masterly way, making for himself hundreds of admirers. The piece is of that quaint type which leads one back to younger days. One can almost smell the sweet perfume of wild flowers and new mown bay, so rural and true to nature is the play and the company's interpretation of it. "The Old Homestead" and "SI Stebbins" are of the same congenial class. At Reynolds opera house Friday evening, October 6.

In "Si Stebbins", Animals play no small part in theatrical shows. The productions that emoften seen. Dogs, monkeys and ponies give whole entertainments by themselves. The rural play "Si Stebbins" which comes to the Reynolds opera house October 6 has departed from the custom of using of the former mentioned animal kind, presenting in their stead in the world. He is unique among cats and pigs. The latter, two unique brute comedians, do not say anything but raise shouts of laughter by their truly piggish ways and never fail to bring forth the vigorous applause of the audience.

Association Team.

It is said that the men employed at the London Mine, and some from Rathmel, are organizing a foot ball team to play the game according to Association rules, and that it is their intention to send out challenges to all the towns in this vicinity. The Association game is interesting and quite popular in the mining towns. There are several strong players at the London Mine .-

Death of an Estimable Lady.

Mrs. Lucy D. Wagner died at the some of her daughter, Mrs. E. Neff, in this borough Friday morning, Sept. 22 at the advanced age of nearly 84 years

Mrs. Wagner was born in Wurtemburg, Germany, December 10, 1821. She came to this country in 1849, a widow with a little daughter seven years old. A few years later she was married to Andrew Wagner and settled in Ohio and later in Michigan. Her husband served in the 24th Michigan Volunteer Infantry and was wounded through the right breast at the battle of Gettysburg while carrying the colors of his regiment. He died in April, 1867, as a result of his wound. The family was at the time living in a newly settled portion of Michigan and had a hard struggle to make a living. In 1871 Mrs. Wagner's farm was swept by the forest fires that devastated that part of the country that year. The family came to Erie, Pa., and lived there till 1880, returning to the farm in Michigan that year. In 1881 the farm was again swept by fire. During all these years of hardship and struggle Mrs. Wagner disclosed sterling character, courage and integrity. She devoted her whole life and strength to the education and welfare of her children. She was a bright and intelligent woman. A great reader.

She is survived by Mrs. E. Neff, of Reynoldsville, Mrs. Dora Johnston, of New York, Carl A. and Albert A. Wagner, of Port Huron, Michigan. Funeral service was held at residence f'Squire Neff at 2 00 p. m. Sunday, conducted by Rev. Dr. A. J. Meek, pastor of the Baptist church, deceased having been a member of that denomination assisted by Rev. A. D. McKay, pastor of the Presbyterian church. Interment was made in the Reynoldsville come tery. The Sons of Veterans attended the funeral in a body.

Creatore and his Italian band are at the Pittsburg Exposition all of this week and next. Since the opening of the exposition the attendance has monstrated conclusively the popularity of the Point show and since Creatore's band concert on Monday afternoon the crowds which have thronged music hall have been immense. Creatore, one of the first Italian band leaders to com into prominence, has had remarkable He was at one time a celebrat ed trombone soloist and band teacher in Italy. He came to America with only his trombone in the fall of 1900. H quickly obtained band playing at Atlantic City, and then gained rapid advancement until he is now one of the most famous musician bandmasters. While modest and unas-summing, his mannerisms are most glaringly peculiar. He seems to be the spirit of music rendered. His gestures ism which moves the band at every concert soon sways the audience.
